*J. A. Beek, Secretary, Senate,
Capitol, Sacramento, California*

Have had conference with National park officials regarding your wire sixteenth. Under present laws, Secretary of Interior has authority to permit grazing in National parks where not detrimental to park service. From my conversation, believe department will be very liberal during war period. Applications for California should be made to Owen E. Tomlinson, Regional Administrator, National Park Service, Sheldon Building, San Francisco. The incidental trespass form lands adjacent to parks was thoroughly discussed. My opinion is, park officials during period of war emergency will be very reasonable in the enforcement of trespass laws. Congressmen Tolan and Phillips are cooperating with me in this matter.

ALBERT E. CARTER, M.C.

"SECTION 1. Section 3493 of the Political Code is amended to read:

3493. An action may be brought by the Attorney General in the name of the people of this State, upon his own information or upon the complaint of a private party for the dissolution of a swamp land or reclamation district for a misuse of its corporate powers. In such action the complaint and summons may be served personally upon a majority of the trustees of such district, or upon the president of the board of trustees. If two or more districts have been formed to include all or a portion of the same lands, they may all be joined in the same action.

In any such action, when service of summons has been made upon the defendant or defendants, and the defendant or defendants have appeared or default been entered, the court, upon the application of any of the parties, shall thereupon enter an order fixing a day for hearing, which shall not be less than 25 days from the date of the order, and shall, also, enter an order directing notice by publication, to be given by the clerk to all persons interested in said district or districts, either as owner or owners of land in said district or districts, or creditors of said district or districts, or otherwise, requiring them to be and appear on the day fixed for the hearing of said cause, if any they have, why the district or districts named in the complaint, as defendant or defendants, should not be dissolved. The court shall order the notice to be served by publication in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the district or districts are situated, for a period of not less than 20 days. On the day fixed for a hearing or some later date to which the cause may be continued, the court may proceed with the hearing, due proof having been first made of the service of the notice by publication for the length of time required by the order. Any person interested in the district or districts that is defendant or defendants shall upon showing his interest be allowed to file an answer or objections to the dissolutions of the defendant or defendants, and shall from the filing of said answer or objections become a party defendant, and be entitled to all the rights of a defendant in any civil action. Any vacancy in the board of trustees heretofore or hereafter caused by resignation, death, removal from the State, or otherwise, may be filled by the board of supervisors of the county in which the district is situated upon the application of any person or persons owning land in the district. The appointment of a trustee or trustees to fill a vacancy or vacancies shall not operate to destroy or remove any cause of action existing before such appointment or appointments were made, against the corporation or district for non-user of its corporate powers; provided, suit be commenced within one year after the passage of this act. If upon the trial of any such action it be determined by the court:

1. That trustees have not been elected for said corporation within five years prior to the passage of this act.

2. That the trustees have not within five years, prior to the passage of this act, exercised any of the powers of a corporation, or performed any of the duties of trustees.

3. That the corporation is not in debt, or if in debt, that all claims are barred by the statute of limitations, the court shall then enter a decree dissolving the corporation, or make such further order as may be deemed necessary to protect the rights of all parties interested.

A reclamation district may also be dissolved in the following manner:

Whenever a petition signed by landowners representing not less than 50 per cent of the lands of the district as shown by the last county assessment rolls praying for the dissolution of the district is presented to and filed with the board of trustees of the district, the said board of trustees shall submit the question of the dissolution

Introduction

The report of the Senate Fact-Finding Committee created by Senate Resolution No. 156 (1941), pertaining to the care of children in California, filed with the Legislature at the Fifty-fifth Session in 1943, stated:

"Mothers and fathers who are employed have found it necessary to make arrangements for the day-care of their children, and in many instances for overnight care. For the most part, these children have been placed in private homes and nurseries. Prior to the entry of the United States into World War II, the facilities for the care of children of working parents were admittedly inadequate. Since December 7, 1941, there has been a greater number of mothers who have entered industry, and the number is expected to increase tremendously. The need for more and better facilities for the care of their children is one of the crying demands at present."

The 1941 Senate Committee on Economic Planning, in its report called attention to the necessity of taking care of children of working mothers. The committee pointed out that it will be necessary to recruit an army of women to replace millions of men drawn from civilian occupations into the armed forces.

The State Legislature, in the 1943 opening session, enacted Assembly Bill No. 307, which was subsequently signed by Governor Earl Warren. The bill, in substance, enables the governing board of any school district to set up a child care center under standards established by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, for children between 2 years and 16 years of age, subject to the further provisions of the bill, and in particular subject to the provisions prohibiting the use of funds derived from taxes levied by any taxing agency and prohibiting the use of any funds of a district derived from the receipts of district taxes or money apportioned to the district for the support of the schools, for or in connection with a child care center; but permitting the school district to accept funds from the Government of the United States, or any agency thereof, for that purpose.

Senate Resolution No. 51 was adopted by the State Senate, which authorized the creation of this committee to investigate the need for and all problems connected with the establishment and operation of child care centers and nursery schools for children of working parents.

Need for Child Care Centers

Aircraft War Production Council, Inc.,

Northrup, North American, Ryan, Vega, Vultee*

"Until children can be taken care of, it is not feasible for many mothers to work, so the percentage of women employees who have minor children needing care probably is not large.

"Answering your question—Will the establishment under school supervision of child care centers for the children of working parents promote the war effort?—the answer is yes. It will release mothers for work in war production and thereby assist the war effort. You are, of course, aware of the labor shortage in California and anything which will tend to increase the number of workers available will expedite the production of war goods."

Basalt Rock Company, Inc.

"The Basalt Shipyard is now employing approximately 165 women. These women have approximately 50 minor children. The establishment of child care centers makes it possible for a great many women to enter war work who would otherwise have to stay at home. With the manpower of the yards being rapidly depleted by the armed forces, it is certain that women in ever increasing numbers must come into the picture. In this way it will directly promote the war effort."

Bendix Aviation, Ltd.

"We have approximately 950 women employees. We keep no record, nor do we have any way of being able to determine how many of these women have minor children. . . . We haven't, as yet, made an investigation in this connection because we haven't found that this situation has become critical. . . . In our judgment, the establishment under school supervision of child care centers for the children of working parents will help to promote the war effort. While we have stated that it hasn't, as yet, presented a difficult problem to us, it could easily do so; and too, we find that very often it is necessary to reject a woman applicant for employment because she has not been able to satisfactorily show us that arrangements have been made for the care of her child."

Columbia Steel Company

"We employ 105 women with minor children needing care. . . . It is our opinion that the establishment of child care centers for minor children of working parents will materially expand the field for defense employment of a considerable number of mothers who would accept employment if assured of supervised care of their children. Because of the lack of such care, we have already lost the services of some of our women workers. It is estimated that, due to our defense expansion program, we will employ 350 additional women during this year, and our list of applicants indicates that approximately 60 per cent of the women will have minor children."

Consolidated Aircraft Corporation

"A critical situation in relation to the provision of child care centers for the children of working mothers in war industries in California demands attention. . . . War industries have no desire to employ women with children young enough to require supervision. Production requirements leave them no choice."

Lockheed Aircraft Corporation

"Inasmuch as we anticipate the new hires in our company alone will be 80 per cent women, we feel very definitely that the establishment under school supervision of child care centers will be essential to the war effort.

"(a) We are concerned with the extended care for children; that is, the care before and after school.

"(b) We are also concerned with the care for children on Saturdays, holidays, and vacations, including the summer vacation.

"(c) In the Aircraft War Production Council Survey, we also learned that 40 per cent of the children of our women on the swing and graveyard shifts needed care. We need some provision for these children, in order to be certain they are not being left uncared for.

"(d) We are also concerned for the sick child, inasmuch as this will definitely hinder the war effort by keeping women home to care for the sick children."

Moore Dry Dock Company

"We wish to give the following report of our findings regarding the need for care of children of working mothers now in our employ:

	Approximately
Number of women in our yards (exclusive of administrative personnel) .....	3,000
Number of women with children .....	1,000
Number of women with children needing care .....	335
Number of children needing care .....	500
Ages of children needing care:
Children 5 years of age or under .....	60%
Children between 5 and 8 years .....	30%
Children between 10 and 15 years .....	10%
Hours during which they need care:
6 a.m. to 6 p.m. ....	80%
2 p.m. to midnight .....	20%

"The consensus of opinion of those that had no need for such centers was that at the present time they had been able to work out a satisfactory arrangement for the care of their children. In many cases this is a temporary plan, and these mothers will be desirous of a permanent, dependable plan such as that offered by the Child Care Program."

North American Aviation, Inc.

"We have approximately 2,000 women with minor children. From the requests we have had for child care we would estimate that probably one-third are in need of child care. Of the 2,000 women with minor children, two-thirds work the day shift and one-third the second shift. . . . The placement of children of working mothers seems to be a serious problem and anything that can be done to relieve the situation will, we are sure, further the war effort."

Northrop Aircraft, Inc.

"In our best judgment the establishment under school supervision of child care centers would definitely promote the war effort by making the woman employed who has such minor children a better worker. She would be relieved of the anxiety attendant upon the realization that she has had to leave her child or children sometimes in the care of persons with no training—nor perhaps inclination even—for that kind of a job, and she could thereby give her whole energy and attention to her own job whatever it may be in the plant.

"In any war effort which involves the use of women, we have to think of the generation coming along which must ultimately assume the responsibilities placed upon them by the inevitable results of such a war. Adequate care of these children, our future citizenry, in their formative years will pay rich dividends in the kind of citizens America can be sure of when the actual fighting is over."

Richmond Shipyards

"A survey of the women in the Richmond Shipyards shows that there are 4,358 women now employed with 7,692 minor children."

Statements of School Officials*Alameda County*ALAMEDA

"We have had six (6) child center schools under WPA, four (4) of which have been abandoned during the last year due to lack of funds. We received notice the other two (2) would be abandoned on February 15th, but the time has been extended. . . . We do not plan to operate on a 24 hour basis. Our present plans call for opening the school at 7.30 a.m., and closing at 5.30 p.m., six days a week."

BERKELEY

"We already have four Federal nursery schools which have been financed by WPA for the past several years. Last fall these schools were converted from the type serving the needs of children from homes on relief to schools serving the school age children of working mothers. In order to show the need for this service, I shall refer to information from the War Manpower Commission.

"We are advised by the War Manpower Commission that 38,250 additional workers will be needed in the immediate area in which Berkeley is located by May 31, 1943. Since the supply of manpower is becoming quite limited because of the selective service, and the small number of physically able men remaining in non-essential industry, the great majority of these new workers (approximately 22,000) will have to be women. Industry wants women who are strong physically. Therefore, these women will be those young mothers who have very young children; because virtually all the young single women are already working. In addition to the labor requirements in the immediate vicinity of Berkeley, the shipyards and other industries in Richmond just a few miles away will require 42,500 more workers by May 31, 1943, according to the War Manpower Commission. Large numbers of these workers will have to be women because of the shortage of men.

"Parents, as well as industries, have expressed an interest in having this child care service provided.

"In addition to the four schools which we now have organized, it is planned to have three additional ones as soon as Federal funds are provided. We already are taking care of one hundred sixteen (116) children and have a waiting list for our present schools of thirty nine (39). Farther than this, we have made a survey which shows a need for providing facilities for seventy eight (78) more children of mothers who are now working, or who plan to go to work soon. Before the establishment of our nursery schools, there was no particular agency to take care of the children of working mothers.

"Insofar as our present information is concerned, it does not seem necessary for us to plan to operate on a 24 hour a day basis."

HAYWARD

"There is a definite need for such schools and or centers in this area. Parents have requested the service."

OAKLAND

"It is estimated that 1,000 nursery school children and 1,250 kindergarten and elementary school children will be enrolled in the services offered at the child care centers. At the present time I do not see how any of the child care centers which we contemplate establishing could be operated on a 24 hour a day basis."

Contra Costa County

ANTIOCH LIVE OAK

"In the past there have been working mothers but the number has been so greatly increased, especially in the past few months, as to create a new problem. No plans have been made to operate a 24 hour a day nursery school."

PITTSBURG

"There is a real need for day care centers in Pittsburg. As far as we have gone with the problem it is probable that we would require two shifts running from somewhere around 8 o'clock in the morning to 8 or 10 o'clock at night. Very few women are employed during the midnight hours."

RICHMOND

"The war industries in this area which are employing women are (1) the ship yards being operated by the Maritime Commission. These shipyards now employ 87,000 workers of whom 40,000 are women. They plan to employ by July 1, 1943, 125,000 workers, 30,000 to 40,000 of whom will be women. (2) The Standard Oil Company of California, which operates the largest refinery in the world here, is employing a great number of women as are many of the other industries handling war materials.

"The shipyard management feels that it will be necessary to operate some of the child nursery centers on a 24 hour day basis because jobs on which women are employed are 24 hour jobs and the women work in three shifts. Personally, I feel the need for day nurseries in this area is very great. As it is at present, parents are working and children are left to get themselves to school as best they can. In some cases, they are obliged to get their own breakfasts. The result is a great deal of truancy and delinquency."

Fresno County

FRESNO

"There is a need in our district for child care centers. . . . The Lockheed Vega Aircraft Corporation has just completed arrangements for opening a plant for the manufacture of airplane parts. They will employ several thousand men and women (60 per cent women) and will expand if help can be had. Other war industries are negotiating for plants here. Such plants, no doubt, will increase the need for child care centers. At present, it will not be necessary to operate any child care centers on a 24 hour basis."

SELMA

"80 to 100 mothers desire child care centers. . . . It will not be necessary to operate child care centers on a 24 hour a day basis."

Imperial County

EL CENTRO

"We felt that insofar as possible, women who did not have small children should enter necessary employment first, and that we should discourage, insofar as possible, the women who have small children from entering employment necessitating that some means be provided for taking the responsibility of their children. There has been sufficient demand for child care to overrun the limited facilities provided by private individuals for taking care of children. Parents of children have requested this service. . . . I do not think that it will ever be necessary to operate child care centers here on a 24 hour day basis unless conditions change materially."

Kern County

BAKERSFIELD

"A survey was conducted in the Bakersfield City School District by the Kern County Welfare Department showing that approximately 186 parents would make use of child care centers if they were established. The centers have not been requested by parents or industries, but have been recommended and encouraged by welfare workers. War industries that will employ women with young children are now in the process of being established. It is too early for requests for child care centers to come from either industry or parents."

TAFT

"The need for such a care center here is quite apparent. . . . Many women have professed a willingness to work provided some means may be had with which to care for their children during their working hours. . . . The problem of child delinquency looms big here. . . . The local industries could so arrange the working hours of these mothers of small children that they could care for their children at night. For the sake of these children we should nearly insist that this be done."

Kings County

LEMOORE

"In my opinion I doubt if it is necessary to establish a child care center in this small community."

WESTWOOD

"Social welfare workers have recommended it. It has not been requested either by parents or the industry, which in this town is essentially lumber. There are 25 mothers of children between the ages of 2 and 16 who are now working, and 132 mothers who are not working but who may be doing so when husbands are drafted."

Los Angeles County

ALHAMBRA

"The need in our district for child care centers is not exactly certain. . . . It is my belief that industry can make sufficient adjustments in the work schedules of mothers of small children so that the mothers can be home with the children at night."

BELLFLOWER

"Douglas Aircraft officials have told us that while they employ approximately 54 per cent women now, by this time next year they will have to rely on personnel that will approximate 80 per cent women. To date we have had many parents ask that we extend additional services through the schools to take care of children while the parents are actively engaged in war work."

"At the present time the defense industries are attempting to assign women to the day shift, but we have been told that the point is rapidly being approached when this can no longer be done."

BURBANK

"The terrific demand for manpower in war industries has led to an extensive use of women in war industries. Between 28,000 and 30,000 women are now employed in these industries in the Burbank area. . . . Already 5,000 mothers of children living in and around Burbank are employed in war industries. The only existing facilities for child care are two small private nursery schools whose facilities are limited. There are four nursery schools which are conducted under the auspices of the WPA. These are able to serve only a fraction of the children needing child care. These WPA schools are now being closed down in line with the President's order for the liquidation of the WPA. . . . We believe that it will be necessary to operate some child centers in our district on a 24 hour basis."

COMPTON

"The nursery school service has been requested by parents and civic organizations in Compton. . . . There is only one privately operated nursery school in this area. It has a total capacity of 20 children. . . . One other nursery school, with a capacity of 40 children has been sponsored by the Compton Union High School District and operated by the WPA. For the present, the hours of operation will be from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., daily, with the exception of Sunday."

GLENDALE

"The need for child care centers in Glendale is determined by a study of school records of the number of elementary and junior high school students whose mothers were employed. This survey was made in October, and indicated that there were 1,962 working mothers with children attending the Glendale schools. . . . It is anticipated that the number of women employed will be greatly increased during the next few months, due to the expansion of the plants and the replacement of men inducted into the armed forces. The extension of employment of women is directly conditioned upon adequate and proper care of the children of employed mothers. . . . We had not planned to operate our schools on a 24 hour basis."

GLENORA

"We have six citrus packing houses which employ over 150 women. We expect this number to increase as men leave for the armed forces. A group of citizens recognized the need for a child care center. The demand here was acute and has been steadily growing. I do not think it will ever be necessary for a 24 hour day."

HAWTHORNE

"We have in our files questionnaires from 49 families involving the care of 61 children under 5 years of age and 60 children over 5 years of age. The nursery school will run from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., with the understanding that schedules will be modified and adjusted to meet the needs of parents whose children are in attendance. Extended day care. This service to be offered at the five centers for school age children from 6 a.m. until 9:30 a.m., and from 3:30 p.m. until 6:30 p.m., and from 7 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. on Saturdays and vacation periods. Schedules to be adjusted to meet the needs of the parents."

INGLEWOOD

"The local school board was informed, last November, that there were approximately 90 children needing this care because their mothers were working. . . . Parents of 65 children have made definite requests for nursery school care. Many of these parents have children of school age, and have requested care for those children outside of school hours. Also, we have requests from many other parents, who have children of school age, for care out of school hours. . . . It appears to be impractical for industry to make the necessary adjustments to avoid or to make unnecessary, on a 24 hour a day basis. Since there are many mothers working at night, it definitely is our judgment that at least one center in each school district will have to operate on a 24 hour a day basis."

LONG BEACH

"At the present time over 8,500 women are employed in this area. In the coming year approximately 12,000 additional women will be needed for employment in war production plants here. . . . A large number of women currently engaged in defense plants have minor children. A good many women leave their employment because arrangements made with private persons for the care of their children have fallen through or proven unsatisfactory. Practically all women who are available for work and who do not have minor children are currently employed. . . . An emergency situation exists in the community. . . . day nurseries are full and have waiting lists, children are not receiving proper care. . . . Petitions, oral and written, have been received from parents and from industries. Both industry and parents have been urgently requesting the schools to establish child care centers."

"A minimum of 500 children, under 5 years of age and whose mothers are employed, now need nursery school care. . . . So far there is little indication that 24 hour care will be needed in this district."

LOS ANGELES

"Our evidence is the following: There is an ever-increasing demand for extended child care in many of our schools, especially those in areas where defense workers are living. These requests are not from any one source but are coming from parents direct, from the principals of the schools involved where parents have made the request to them, and through the welfare chairman of the CIO and the A. F. of L. Our telephone lines are clogged by the importunities of parents seeking care for children. The majority of these want care for pre-school children. Approximately 23 of our schools have requested that child care centers be set up either on their grounds or as near them as possible. We have had urgent requests for this service from the personnel offices of Lockheed-Vega, Douglas, and North American. . . . Figures with regard to women laborers in the Los Angeles districts given us by the War Manpower Commission are as follows:

311,000 women now employed in the Los Angeles area.

102,000 are mothers with children needing supervision.

215,000 additional women needed by the end of 1943.

"The War Manpower Commission further estimates that in the Los Angeles School District there are now, for working mothers:

9,391 children under 2 years of age.

14,087 children from 2 to 4 years of age.

32,707 children from 5 to 11 years of age.

26,595 children from 12 to 16 years of age.

"This sums up to a total of 82,780 children, a number which War Manpower says will be greatly increased by December.

"We do not believe that provisions for the care and supervision of all of these children will become a school responsibility. Certainly the care of infants will be no part of the school problem. Where mothers of children under two are obliged to work, relatives, friends or foster care will surely have to be found. Also, relatives, friends, and various types of foster homes will doubtless take care of a great many of the children of school age. But that there will remain a tremendous number which the schools are now called upon to supervise, no one who has been close to the problem can doubt.

"Our current request for funds under the Lanham Act contemplates the operation of child care centers only from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. It is quite possible that it may later become necessary to operate centers on an 18 or 24 hour basis."

MONTEBELLO

"We have estimated that our district needs four or five child care centers for small children at the present time. . . . Whether or not child care centers would have to be operated on a 24 hour per day basis depends upon the practice of industry in regard to the hours which they assign mothers."

PASADENA

"Early in November, a survey was conducted in the schools. . . . At that time there were 1,456 children who were left without adult care at some portion of each day because of absence of both parents who were working in defense industries. . . . At present we do not contemplate operation of any child care centers on a 24 hour basis although if the war crisis deepens it may be necessary for us to do so."

POMONA

REDONDO BEACH

"Talks with children in school, with social workers, and with parents themselves show that there is a need for child care centers. Only a few parents have requested the schools to render this service. Social workers have urged and community organizations are urging elementary schools to establish this service. . . . I should be very unwilling to recommend 24 hours a day in child care centers."

SANTA MONICA

"According to the statement of the coordinator of women's activities in Douglas Aircraft, the number of women now employed is in excess of 50 per cent. The employment of women is expected to increase rather than decrease. The greatest problem of these women is child care and requests for such service are an everyday affair. The aircraft industry has repeatedly requested Santa Monica to provide care for young children. Parents of young children are also requesting this service daily through public and private agencies and by making application directly to the public schools. Child care has been recommended, also, by the Santa Monica Council of Social Agencies which has just completed a survey of the resources of Santa Monica.

"There is at present one day nursery sponsored by a private organization and the Community Chest. There are, also, four small private nursery schools. All these together would make little impression on the total number of children for whom our aircraft industries feel we should provide. The children of working mothers are accommodated at present in the above mentioned schools and in the two child day care centers open on the school grounds. That, however, leaves a vast number of busy parents to work out their own plans. Too often there is no working plan and the young child becomes a burden upon the entire neighborhood or is allowed to run the streets with no supervision. Almost daily calls from citizens in the community to the various agencies prove this point.

"We believe it will be found necessary to operate one or more 24 hour centers for the reason that Douglas Aircraft Company assures us that in furnishing day care only we are meeting just a part of the problem of women in defense industry."

Marin County

MILL VALLEY

"The people of this community have requested that a nursery school be established here as the need is very great. More than 100 parents have asked that the schools give this service. . . . We estimate there will be approximately 100 children to be enrolled in the nursery school. . . . I do not think it necessary to operate a child care center on a 24 hour per day basis. We have arranged hours from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m."

Merced County

MERCED

"Due to the fact that a number of mothers are working in and near Merced and taking the place of men who have enlisted in the service, there has been a need for the establishment of this child care center. . . . The requests came from both parents and industries employing parents. In my opinion, it will not be necessary to operate our child care center on a 24 hour basis."

Napa County

NAPA

"There is a need in this community for a child care center, perhaps more than one, because we do have many working mothers. . . . The information collected brought to light the fact that there were already a hundred or so working mothers who desired more adequate care for their children, and the same number would go to work if they could be sure their children were well cared for. . . . If and when more mothers go into war work, and especially when they go on swing and night shifts, we will have to give 24 hour service."

Orange County

FULLERTON

"I found that 142 children ranging in ages from 5½ to 15 years of age had no supervision whatsoever, and were not responsible to anyone from the time school closed until 5.30 or 6 in the afternoon. Such a situation is a fertile field for juvenile delinquency."

ORANGE

"There have been several requests for child care centers by working parents. . . . As far as I know there will be no 24-hour centers operated. . . . They would take the responsibility away from the parents all the time and the child would suffer."

SANTA ANA

"The need for these centers has been determined by a school survey. The juvenile authorities have indicated that this service is quite necessary due to large numbers of unsupervised children and consequent increase in juvenile delinquency. Parents and industries have not specifically requested this service though they are deeply interested in its provision."

"The total reports of need of uncared-for children of school age revealed some 600 or more children in that category."

ROSEVILLE

"We have 24 mothers now working in the war effort. Twenty-three of these mothers state they will use the nursery school when one is provided. These 23 mothers have a total of 41 children, ranging in ages from 2 to 11 years."

"We have 81 mothers who say they will go to work in defense plants when the child-care school has been established. These 81 mothers have 134 children, ranging in ages from 2 to 12 years."

"We have 30 mothers who will work in the fruit industry this summer, providing child-care centers are established. There are 43 children in this group whose ages range from 2 to 12 years, inclusive."

"The nursery school, as set up in this community, will provide a 24-hour service."

HEMET

"On receipt of a notice that our WPA nursery school expected to close about February 15, 1943, parents started worrying about the care of their children. . . ."

"We feel that eight or nine hours are ample at the present time. Our program will very likely expand to 16 or 18 hours per day as soon as the processing of food season starts in full force."

RIVERSIDE

"Occasionally, parents have made inquiry for such service. . . . For the most part they have been adequately cared for by individual means. . . . In answer to your final question as to whether or not in my judgment it will be necessary to establish child-care centers on a 24-hour day basis. . . . I sincerely trust that no such child-care centers will need to be established. My own strong conviction is that while the community has a responsibility in sharing with parents their responsibility for childhood care, I still believe the basic responsibility for child care rests in the home and that the first duty of parents is to see that the children are cared for."

Sacramento County

NORTH SACRAMENTO

"I estimate that from 100 to 150 school-age children (6 years through 14 years) need supervision before and after school. Approximately the same number of children of preschool age (2 years through 5 years). Bases for estimate are: (1) A survey made last spring to determine number of children not properly supervised at home; (2) a survey made last December to determine number of parents requesting such service; (3) statements of Sacramento Air Depot officers that more women must be employed, and that unmarried and childless women are nearly all employed. . . . I do not believe it will be necessary to operate any child-care centers in this district on a 24-hour basis."

San Bernardino County

BARSTOW

"A recently completed survey shows we have 61 children affected by working mothers. Of this group, 15 are within the ages of 2 to 5 years; 46 are of the age group of above 5 to 16 years. . . . Some parents have asked regarding the service. No industries have requested the service, although employees at the Marine Base have asked regarding it. Welfare workers have recommended it."

FONTANA

"The need for child-care centers in our district has not been determined. I have a 'hunch' that we will need a center capable of handling 40 children. . . . I do not contemplate the operation of any 24-hour centers. I do believe, however, that it will be necessary to operate at least one 16-hour center."

REDLANDS

"The need for child-care centers in our district has been determined by a survey of the need of mothers who are and would be available for war-connected work if the child-care centers were established. The following estimate is based on requests as shown in results of the survey and more recent requests by parents for day and extended school care of children.

Ages 2-5	-----	75
Ages 5-8	-----	150
Ages 8-12	-----	150
Over 12	-----	50
Total	-----	425

"In all probability, it will be necessary to operate at least one of the centers on a 24-hour basis."

SAN BERNARDINO

"The request for this service has come from the San Bernardino Air Depot. On January 1, 1943, Major John Milledge, Air Corps, Acting Chief of Civilian Personnel, said:

"It is anticipated that approximately 10,000 women will be employed at the San Bernardino Army Air Depot within the next nine months, of which it is estimated 60 per cent will be married women.

"Approximately 5 per cent of all resignations are due to inadequacy of child care while the mothers are working, and this number is increasing. A growing number of applications fail to materialize into employment because of inability of women to secure proper care for their children. This phase of the situation will be greatly aggravated as more mothers become employed, for not only are children added to the number requiring care, but the number of homes capable of providing care is also reduced.

"Round-the-clock employment of women with dependent children will necessitate a 24-hour per day nursery program."

San Diego County

CORONADO

"The dean of women at North Island Naval Base and the Consolidated Air Plant urged that such a program be set up and that the nursery school would have 35 in attendance. Some mothers have hesitated in taking employment or placing their children in the school until they found whether or not the school was to be a permanent one. The school is operated from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., and doubt if a 24-hour school is necessary.

"The recreation program is to care for children of grammar school age after school hours from 2 to 5.30 o'clock whose parents are engaged in some form of activity in support of the war effort. . . . Over 700 questionnaires were sent to parents of grammar school children. Four hundred twelve were returned, expressing the need of such a program. One hundred sixty-eight expressed the desire to make use of this service immediately. One hundred one were children with ages from 6 to 8 inclusive and 67 were from 9 to 12 years of age."

ESCONDIDO

"Parents of a number of children have requested the service as have a few of the local industries. . . . Child care centers will normally operate from 8 o'clock in the morning until 5 or 6 at night. . . . at the present time, no requests have been made requiring services earlier than 4.30 in the morning nor later than 7.30 at night."

LA MESA-SPRING VALLEY

"The Board of Education of the La Mesa-Spring Valley School does not consider that the need for child care centers is sufficient to make application for the Lanham Act Funds."

NATIONAL CITY

"At the present time, I do not believe that there is a critical need for child care centers, particularly nursery school. . . . Although we are not at present contemplating operating nursery schools or 'extended day care' for children during the school year, we are looking forward to a considerable need for day care centers, or at least a summer playground program to take care of the number of children of school age who will probably be left unsupervised. . . . Of the 1,630 children in the six grades in National City, 475 have both parents working or away from home. In many cases, adequate care is provided, but in 231 cases either there is no supervision provided at all during the daytime or supervision is left in the hands of a brother or sister under 15."

OCEANSIDE

"Approximately 40 parents have requested child care center service. Schools only on a 24-hour basis would serve the needs of this community."

SAN DIEGO

"It is estimated that there is an immediate need within the city of San Diego for facilities to care for 1,000 children from 2 to 5 years of age and another 1,000 children of school age. It is probable that by next fall facilities will be needed for 2,000 children 2 to 5 and 3,000 children of school age. . . . At the present time there are more applications for children to enroll than there is space in existing nurseries."

"The Department of Welfare has been directed to handle the 24-hour and night care program. The Department of Welfare is expanding its licensing of boarding homes for this purpose. Therefore, it is expected that the school district will have no responsibility for other than the day care of children. The present child care program contemplates operation from 5 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday."

San Francisco City and County

An application has been made for Lanham Act Funds to cover a program of 30 centers which would accommodate 3,000 students. Care could be given children from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., with recreation hours from 2.30 p.m. to 7 p.m."

San Joaquin County

LODI

"The Lodi Coordinating Council sponsored the establishment of a day care center here last summer. It was felt at that time that there was a need for one—first, because of the possibility of neglected children, and second, because of the need to release every worker possible. . . . It is my opinion that child care centers do not need to be based upon a 24 hour per day basis. It is my opinion that mothers of small children can arrange their working time so as not to be away from home at night."

STOCKTON

"The need in our district is for child care to keep about 120 pre-school children and 500 to 800 school-age pupils. . . . The USIS has a list of mothers willing to work who have requested child day care. Some weeks ago, they stopped adding to this list because they had no facilities to offer. . . . Dozens of women with children have started to work, found that their child care plans would not work out, and have quit work, in many cases after being trained for the job. . . . The only real pool of untouched labor is women with children. . . . It is our opinion that we will eventually be forced to operate at least two pre-school child care centers on a 24-hour basis. We propose to start with a day care program only, and work into 24-hour care only as we are forced to."

San Luis Obispo County

SAN LUIS OBISPO

"It is quite likely that there is a need in this district for a child care center since a great many mothers are working in many types of work here, due to the presence of an army camp of 20,000 soldiers. . . . I think it would be safe to say that a child care center here should not be in operation on a 24-hour a day basis."

San Mateo County

MILLBRAE

"There doesn't seem to be any need for a nursery school or child care center."

REDWOOD CITY

"Numerous requests for child care have been received from parents. Letters from three local industries stating that their future manpower needs must be filled from the ranks of married women, and that until child care centers are established this problem will be very difficult. It has been recommended that we establish a child care center by the San Mateo County Social Welfare Department. . . . We have not yet contemplated operating any of our centers on a 24-hour basis."

SAN BRUNO

"The parents of children have requested that child care centers and nursery schools be established. . . . The industrial organizations themselves have requested that such centers be established and representatives of social welfare groups have recommended their establishment. . . . We do not contemplate operating child care centers on a 24-hour a day basis."

Santa Barbara County

SANTA BARBARA

"A survey of the need for child care was undertaken by the Child Care Section of the Social Service Agencies of Santa Barbara about two months ago. At that particular time there did not seem to be any extensive need. No parents have thus far requested this service, nor have industries requested it. The social welfare workers have requested that we make application under the Lanham Act. . . . It does not appear at the present time that it would be necessary to operate child care centers on a 24-hour basis as there are no activities on more than a two-shift basis."

SANTA MARIA

"We have made an occupational survey along with registering patrons of our district for War Ration Book II. The survey revealed 141 children of nursery school age and 547 for extended child care service. . . . Twenty-four hour schools are not necessary in Santa Maria."

Santa Cruz County

SANTA CRUZ

"The Santa Cruz nursery school has been operating since 1937 under the Works Progress Administration. . . . All WPA assistance will be terminated on April 15th. . . . The service of such a nursery school has been requested by many parents of the community. We have letters on file recommending the continuance of the nursery school from the United States Employment Service, Santa Cruz Police Department, Santa Cruz Chamber of Commerce, Santa Cruz Branch of the American Association of University Women, Santa Cruz County Health Department, and Santa Cruz Social Welfare Department. . . . It will not be necessary to operate the Santa Cruz nursery school on a 24-hour a day basis."

Solano County

VALLEJO

"The need for the child care centers was determined by an increasing number of requests from parents, by strong recommendations of the officials of the Mare Island Navy Yard who are by far the greatest employers of women in this area, and also by the recommendation of social welfare agencies. The county welfare department was being besieged by requests for such service, and furthermore, from all contacts they found that many children were being neglected. . . . We are not planning on operating any centers on a 24-hour day basis."

Stanislaus County

MODESTO

"Survey has shown that there is need now for 12-hour child care for children of working mothers for two to three units of nursery children—30 each, or 60 to 90 children—and two to three school child units, 60 to 90 pupils, for extended care 12 hours supplementing the school day program. Parents have urgently requested the service. Industries in our immediate region have asked the Modesto Board of Education to provide for it. The Stanislaus County Defense Council and the Stanislaus County War Manpower Commission have sent written requests to the Modesto Board of Education to provide it, and the Stanislaus State Welfare Department has recommended it. . . . It will not be necessary to operate the child care centers on the 24 hour a day basis in Modesto."

RIVERBANK

"During the summer of 1942, at the request of the Riverbank Canning Company, and The Riverbank Dry Yard, the Riverbank School Board allowed the use of the local school plant for the conduct of a day care project. At that time there appeared to be a need for service for about a hundred children. However, the actual total enrollment was about 35. . . . We gave 12 hour service last year."

TURLOCK

"The immediate need for a child care center or centers in this community is not pressing at present. . . . A nursery school for children of working mothers, with an average enrollment of about 25, has been conducted by the WPA since December 14th of last year. . . . After considering an application for Lanham Act Funds for several meetings, the Turlock Elementary School Board voted to take an application. However, after receiving a petition signed by 32 mothers, and requests from the Turlock Chamber of Commerce, the Turlock Com. Council, and from several local industries employing mothers, the school board reconsidered and will make application for Lanham Act Funds. . . . We are not planning to operate any child care center on a 24 hour a day basis."

Tulare County

VISALIA

"A survey has just been completed by the Visalia Chamber of Commerce which appears to indicate the need of such service in this community. . . . It will probably not be necessary to operate child care centers on a 24 hour a day basis."

WOODLAKE

"We have no immediate need for child care centers and it is the policy of our board of trustees not to start such a thing in the Woodlake community unless pressure comes from parents in sufficient numbers to warrant child care. So far only social workers have been urging such a plan."

Ventura County

OXNARD

"In my judgment under present conditions the need for women labor is not such, but what mothers of young children are more needed in their homes than they are in industry."

VENTURA

"To date we have 44 applications on file. It appears that there is a definite need for a small number of parents, but the need in this district is not very widespread. So far, industries employing women have not requested the service. . . . Mothers who are working at the present time have made arrangements for private persons to take care of their children. Many of them state that this is not satisfactory, particularly because there is no organized program of training or care. . . . It will not be necessary to operate them on a 24 hour basis. Most of our requests have been from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m."

Yolo County

WOODLAND

"A great many of the parents work in the tomato crop, the cannery, and the sugar factory during the summer and fall months, and they have requested that they have someone care for the children while they are away from home. This request has also come from the various employers. . . . It is not necessary to operate on a 24 hour basis in Woodland. Eight hours in the daytime and four hours at night would be sufficient."

The committee finds that there is a growing need for child care centers with the increase in the number of mothers who are working due to the demand for more workers in various types of defense industries. In past years mothers who found it necessary to work could usually find some means of caring for their children. Domestic help was available; neighbors, relatives, and friends would care for the children; and sufficient private nursery schools and boarding homes were available. However, because of the large number of women who are now and will be employed, the means which were formerly used can not now be relied on to any great extent. The committee finds that supervised playgrounds for after-school-hour use will in many instances solve the problem for school-age children.

It should be noted, however, that the committee decries the use of any child care center by mothers who may attempt to shirk their responsibility in caring for their children.

It should be noted also that the need for child care centers arises primarily from the demands of industry for additional labor supply due to the war; it is not intended that these facilities should be used by "bridge playing" or "cocktail lounge" parents.

Types of Care for Children

The Bureau of Public Administration of the University of California at Berkeley, in its February, 1943, issue of War-time Nurseries, lists the forms of day care in the United States:

"INDIVIDUAL CARE"

"Individual children may be accommodated by foster-family care and house-keeping (or homemaker) service. Foster-family care consists of caring for a child in a family home other than his own. It is particularly useful for infants, for whom group care is seldom recommended, and for older children who do not readily adapt to group programs because of physical, emotional, or mental problems. In this category might also be considered the 'parent-child' homes, where room and board, or a room alone, are provided for a parent and child. Care and supervision of the child are given during the parent's absence. Housekeeper (or homemaker) service enables a child to receive care in his own home. This has been successfully practiced on a National scale in low income homes by means of WPA projects. Women generally available to give such service have been attracted in increasing numbers to more remunerative work, however.

"GROUP CARE"

"Group care of children includes day nurseries, nursery schools, kindergartens and extended school programs. Day nurseries, for children from about 2 to 5 years of age, have been more concerned with welfare needs. Family casework, parent education, health aspects, and preschool education have been included in the programs of better day nurseries.

"Nursery schools, while serving approximately the same age group of children from 2 to 4 years, emphasize preschool education. Careful intake policies screen out the children for whom such services would benefit least, and parent education and health factors are considered.

"Kindergartens render service comparable to that of nursery schools and accommodate children of the next age group, from about 4½ to 6 years of age. They are administered by the local school districts and their program is accordingly geared to educational needs.

"Many schools are now devising means whereby extended school programs will offer supervision and recreation. Such care should be available for children from 5 through 16 years and necessarily involves a variety of activities suitable to the age of the child. Plans for after-school care involve the coordinated efforts of not only the schools but other recreational centers, settlement houses, churches, and related community resources."

Reports From Other States

Louisiana

"The Department of Education is inaugurating a program of extended school services for children of working mothers in the war-affected areas in Louisiana. This program includes nursery school and before and after school care of children. The program cares for children on Saturdays and during the summer months. The State Department of Public Welfare is cooperating with the Department of Education in fostering the extended school service program in Louisiana. They are also caring for the children through foster-home care for children under 2 years of age, through day-care nurseries, and through cooperation with other agencies and private institutions in the various communities.

"In the extended school service program as planned by the department, the only charges made to parents will be for food. The amount to be paid will range between 25 and 50 cents per day, depending upon the number of meals served each day and the cost of commodities in that community."

Michigan

"We have just received our first day care center grant of Lanham Act Funds in Michigan. The City of Highland Park has received $56,000 in Federal funds and will immediately attempt to open these centers. Many other cities are making application and our State departments, including the Department of Public Instruction, Health Department, Social Welfare, and Labor and Industry are cooperating in meeting the situation.

"There is no local financing for day care programs in Michigan. Each district is making application for Federal funds to be submitted with fees collected from the families. The following is a suggested sliding scale of fees for nursery school service:

"There are no 24 hour day care centers or nursery schools operated as congregated child care centers.

"Michigan has about 45 nursery schools. The membership in these schools ranges from 5 to 35. There is a total of approximately 1,200 pupils in all of these centers and about 275 persons employed to service these centers.

"Surveys show that mothers would be willing to go into industry if proper care is offered for their children.

"Reports indicate that juvenile delinquency is on the increase in Michigan. This seems to go hand in hand with war and our schools are taking a very active part in this problem of day care in order to offer some solution to this problem."

CITY OF DETROIT

"There are 69 nursery schools. The average attendance for each is 25. This would mean that about 1,700 preschool children are being accommodated in this community. About one-half of these are the children of war workers. This would mean that about 800 children of war workers are participating in this child care program. In this community there are about 100,000 women in the war labor force. One out of every three is a mother. This would mean that there are about 33,000 mothers with an average of 1 1/2 child per mother. This would mean they handle about 50,000 children of war working mothers in this community. About half of the children of war working mothers are being cared for by relatives, or approximately 25,000. This leaves another 25,000 children being cared for by neighbors or left alone."

Minnesota

"In Minnesota the problem of day care is being handled through the Director of the State Division of Social Welfare in cooperation with the Office of Civilian Defense and the many private and public agencies interested in the problem of day care. The program is conceived of as an emergency program, of a general welfare nature in which the existing social agencies have a large responsibility.

"The program is financed by State Civilian Defense funds managed through regular departments of the State Government. Additional moneys are received from the President's Fund for day care through the Federal Children's Bureau. Private social agencies are making contributions of staff, space, and equipment. The WPA is contributing through its continuance of nursery school services. Surplus commodities are used for lunches. Fees are collected from the working parents who are served by the program. Finally, Lanham Act funds have been applied for by many localities.

"Our experience has not carried us far enough yet to make a final determination on what fees to charge, whether to make them uniform or base them on parents' earnings. By and large, the emphasis is going to be placed on the parents accepting as much responsibility as possible for payment of costs and this will tend toward a uniform scale of fees.

"We do not have 24 hour nurseries or day care centers although consideration will be given as soon as the need is indicated. In this respect, the defense industries have cooperated by adjusting hours of work of mothers who have children to eliminate the necessity of 24 hour nurseries."

New York

The New York State War Council, on March 10, 1943, recommended an appropriation by the State Legislature of $5,000,000 for a State-wide program to care for the children of mothers working in war industries. The program is to be financed one-third by the State, one-third by the localities, and one-third by the parents.

The program will be available to all children of the State whose mothers are working either in war industries or in manpower shortage areas. Applications shall be filed by local war councils. Child care centers to be conducted in the public schools will be investigated, passed upon and supervised by the State Education Department, while all other centers, whether sponsored by religious, charitable, fraternal or other community effort, will be investigated, passed upon and supervised by the State Department of Social Welfare.

The cost of child care under the program is estimated at a maximum of $275 per year per child between 2 and 5 years of age, and $100 per year per child over 5 years of age. Thus the State, localities, and parents would each contribute a maximum of $1.80 per week for the care of each child under 5 and 65 cents per week for each child over 5 years of age.

The War Council adopted the following statement of policy and rules and regulations under which applications for State funds should be considered by the Secretary:

"(1) That it be established in connection with each application that there is (A) a general shortage of manpower in the area involved, or, in the alternative, (B) that the mothers of the children involved are engaged in the production of goods for the United States or its allies;

"(2) That it is not the policy of the War Council to encourage women with children to enter industry except in areas where there is a manpower shortage;

"(3) That each application for State funds for child care projects must certify that at least one-third of the cost of each such project will be paid by the parents or guardians of the children to be cared for;

"(4) That where facilities presently exist and are in operation for the day care of children which can be converted to the services of mothers working in war industries, such facilities may be continued temporarily under the financial formula specified in the resolution until the changeover can be accomplished;

"(5) That where application for Lanham Act or other Federal grants municipalities or local agencies for child care projects are pending or may hereafter be made, State funds may temporarily be made available to such projects pending approval of such applications by Federal authorities. Upon the award of Federal funds to any child care project, the payment of State funds to any such project shall cease."

Ohio

Cuyahoga County, in which the City of Cleveland is located, reports:

"We encouraged the volunteering and training of acceptable women who might supplement the training force in present established nursery schools. More than 150 women have taken intensive training courses and are now serving in this capacity, principally in institutions such as settlement houses, child care units of similar organizations, etc., and second, we encouraged housewives who felt that they had the time, abilities, and facilities to take care of the children of other women, to register with our proper Civilian Defense committee. Some 350 of such private homes were registered, and 150 passed rigid inspection and were licensed....

"All this progress is in addition to the nursery school work conducted through the Board of Education. There are 20 nursery school units under various institutions that are now caring for about 1,200 children. We estimate the total need in our community to be between 3,500 and 4,000. An additional number are being very largely taken care of by other means.

"Child delinquency is on the increase and, to a very large extent, grows out of inadequate care of the children of these mothers who are working. In a great number of cases, mothers have taken employment—they think they have made adequate arrangements for care of their children by neighbors and others, but this care is inadequate.

"In practically all cases, mothers are paying for the care of children. The amounts which they pay vary and, to a degree, they are determined on the ability of the mother to pay.

"We have no 24 hour child care institutions set-up, particularly, to take care of children of working mothers."

Pennsylvania

"A bill providing $5,000,000 for two fiscal years for the use of school districts who have established or do establish, equip and maintain centers for day care of below-school-age children of parents gainfully employed, and before and after school education-recreation centers for children of school age, has been introduced in the State Legislature, but this bill is still in committee, and has not been acted upon. This bill places responsibility for rules, regulations, and standards upon the Superintendent of Public Instruction."

Washington

"Here in Washington we had a very few private day nurseries prior to the present emergency. These have expanded their facilities slightly but had neither the facilities nor the funds for expansion commensurate with the need. After discussion between the educational and welfare groups in the State it was agreed between them that the schools already having plant, equipment and staff and being accustomed to the organization of group programs could more effectively expand such facilities than could other agencies not having such a nucleus with which to start. The Superintendent of Public Instruction early advised local school directors that the operation of nursery schools for children 2 years of age and upward was a problem and after-school programs for school-age children was the responsibility of the schools and that they should plan accordingly, applying for Lanham Act funds as they, together with other local interested groups, determined a need to exist.

"Approximately 32 day care centers and nursery schools are now in operation over the State. Some were started by the schools, with the assistance of WPA funds, in advance of receipt of Lanham Act money. Appropriation for funds is pending for an additional 86 nursery schools and 56 before- and after-school centers. In some instances, local community funds have underwritten the purchase of needed equipment, etc., in order that the program might go forward promptly.

"It is our understanding that the State Day Care Committee has recommended in the matter of charges for day care that each community make its own decision in regard to this but in general a sliding scale from 10 cents to 50 cents per day is used as a basis, the exact amount to be decided according to the particular place to pay. Some favor a uniform fee, and it is believed that any fee charged should be small enough so as to encourage the use of the day care center for any child who needs this type of care.

"I believe there are no day care centers operating on a 24 hour basis in the State of Washington. Operation, rather, is on a 12 hour shift though this may prove not to be adequate as experiences develop.

"There appears to be no question but what more and more women are going to be needed in industry.

"It would appear that the need for before- and after-school programs for school-age children will soon much larger than does the need for nursery school care for the younger children."

The Bureau of Public Administration, University of California, at Berkeley, in its February, 1943, issue of Wartime Nurseries, reports the following:

CHILD CARE ACTIVITIES IN OTHER STATES

"By December, 1942, approximately 35 states had formed day care committees or were planning to establish them. These committees usually have representation from state departments of health, education, welfare, WPA, state employment office, and related agencies. Many such committees are operated by part of the state defense councils. Approximately 250 communities have organized some type of local committee with similar representation on a local level.

"Community Surveys

"About 200 community surveys have been made to determine the need for child care programs, often with the cooperation of the local office of the United States Employment Service. In almost every survey it has been found that existing facilities are inadequate; that large numbers of preschool or school children were without responsible supervision. In Ogden, Utah, the mothers of 805 children between 6 and 12 years were working. 382 of these children entered for themselves, and of them, 196 were under 9 years of age. A survey carried on Bristol, Connecticut, showed 46 children who had absolutely no supervision while their mothers were employed. In Texarkana the United States Employment Service indicated that of 1,324 women accepted for employment at the ordnance plant, 226 had 350 children, many under 5 years, for whose care no plans had been made.

"In Trenton, New Jersey, a survey was conducted with the cooperation of state agencies, school officials, and teachers, to discover to what extent mothers with school and preschool children were employed, and what care their children had while the mothers were away.

"It was estimated that about 19 per cent of the mothers of Trenton public school children worked; 46 per cent of the mothers considered did not have responsible supervision provided for their children during out-of-school hours.

"A survey of Detroit indicated that there were 80,000 children whose mothers were employed and that while there were 55 nurseries in the city, they could care for but 1,000 children. In St. Louis, 4,048 employed mothers had 7,764 children. No provision had been made for 2,563 of these children.

"State Plans Approved for Federal Funds

"In November, 1942, Alabama became the first state to secure approval of the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services for federal funds to assist in a program of child care. Other states which subsequently received approval of their plans were: Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oregon, Virginia, and Washington."

Present Laws

Federal Lanham Act

The Federal Works Agency, under the Lanham Act, may make contributions for child care programs.

Under the original directive contained in War Public Services Letter No. 8, Lanham Act Funds were available for all costs of maintaining child care centers except the cost of food, which was to be defrayed by fees paid by parents.

On February 13, 1943, War Public Services Letter No. 8 (Revised) was issued, in which the following statement appeared:

"111-4 Fees to be charged together with local contributions shall be sufficient to defray at least 50 per cent of the current operating cost of the facility. Charges for equipment and rent shall not be included in computing the current operating cost."

California Assembly Bill No. 307

The California Legislature, in the 1943 opening session, enacted an emergency act, which accomplished the following:

1. The governing board of any school district was empowered to establish and maintain child care centers within the district, and to determine the hours, days and months in which such centers should be maintained.

2. Children between 2 and 16 years of age were to be eligible if the persons having custody of them were gainfully employed and living within the district; the children were to be cared for only during the time that the parents were unable to do so due to work-connected absence.

3. The responsibility of establishing standards was delegated to the State Department of Education, although local school districts were authorized to draft their own regulations if these did not conflict with State standards.

4. School facilities and personnel were made available and the governing board was given permission to enter into agreements with other public agencies, cities, or cities and counties.

5. Employees of the centers were required to hold permits issued by the State Department of Education, or to be engaged in training which would qualify the person for a permit.

6. The governing board of each school district was authorized to accept Federal funds for child care purposes.

7. The governing board was directed to charge fees, not necessarily uniform, to supplement Federal funds so that the district would be reimbursed for the cost of the center.

8. All such funds would be known as the "Child Care Center Fund."

9. No funds of a district derived from the receipts of district taxes or derived from moneys apportioned in the district for the support of the schools thereof, nor funds derived from taxes levied by any taxing agency, may be expended for or in connection with a child care center.

10. The governing board was given permission to discontinue child care centers with 30 days' notice.

11. The act terminates on July 1, 1945, or six months following the end of the war, whichever date is the earlier.

12. No person employed in a child care center shall be deemed to be one employed in a position requiring certification qualifications, or eligible to participate in the State Teachers' Retirement System.

Financing of Child Care Centers

The directive of February 13, 1943, under the Lanham Act, requires that fees to be charged, together with local contributions, shall be sufficient to defray at least 50 per cent of the current operating cost of the facility. It will therefore be necessary to adopt one of two courses: (1) Charge fees of the parents in such amounts as will defray the entire 50 per cent of the cost of operation; or (2) make a contribution from tax funds in order to assist setting up and maintaining child care centers.

Consolidated Aircraft Corporation

"Parents can and will pay fees for such services but those fees would be prohibitive in many cases for families having several children if the fee had to cover all operating costs. This directive specifically prohibits including rental on properties, buildings, and equipment as part of operating costs, which could otherwise be figured as part of the 50 per cent contribution of the local school districts.

"If this directive stands and if the State of California takes no action to make State funds available to school districts for the operation of child care centers as a war measure, it is almost certain that the centers for the care of pre-school children now operated with Federal funds, which were to be taken over by the school districts if Lanham Act funds were available, will be discontinued. Moreover, it is certain that provisions for supervision centers for children of school age, before and after school and during the summer vacation months, will not be made. This will mean that the war industries of California will be deprived of services of thousands of mothers now making splendid contribution to the war effort. It will also mean that as manpower needs grow greater because of increases in the armed forces, recruitment of some of the best and most stable women workers will not be possible because their first obligation is to their children.

"War industries have no desire to employ women with children young enough to require supervision. Production requirements leave them no choice."

Lockheed

"It was discovered that the average amount women expected to pay, and could pay, was $1 per day. If there is more than one child to be cared for, this runs into too much money. Consequently, the nursery schools now in operation have been charging approximately 50 cents a day, per child. They establish their rate on the circumstances of the family, which we feel is proper."

Moore Dry Dock Company

"In regard to cost, all seemed more than willing to pay a reasonable fee for this service."

North American Aviation, Inc.

"You are probably aware of the charges made in the Federal nursery schools. For example, in Inglewood the daily fee is 25 cents to 80 cents a day, dependent upon the parent's income and financial responsibilities. The majority of the foster day homes charge from $1 to $1.25 a day per child and the 24 hour homes about $10 per week per child."

Richmond Shipyards

"The director of the Richmond nursery schools informs us that each child receiving care will be charged at the rate of 50 cents per day."

Statement of School Officials Pertaining to Cost to Parent and Cost of Operation

Alameda County

ALAMEDA

"The charges that I have set up will be 50 cents per child per day. For each school there will be a teacher for each 10 children, a cook, matron, and a janitor. Salaries as set up are as follows:

Head teacher.....	$175 00	per month
Assistant teachers .....	140 00	per month
Cook .....	135 00	per month
Matron .....	135 00	per month
Handy man.....	135 00	per month."

BERKELEY

"It is planned to charge parents fifty cents ($0.50) per day for each child in nursery school. It is contemplated that forty four (44) teachers will be used to handle the children directly. Other individuals, including a doctor, nurse, cooks, and a handy man, will be used in general on a part-time basis to facilitate the operation of these units."

HAYWARD

"I should say that parents should pay $1 per day per child for the feeding and caring for such children. Standard wages should be paid and each teaching employee should be able to take care of at least 20 children; but other employees are necessary to take care of cooking and household duties."

OAKLAND

"We have made no estimates of charges to parents, except that at present we are charging 50 cents per day. What is charged parents will depend upon the policy of administration of Lanham Act funds.

*Contra Costa CountyANTIOCH-LIVE OAK

"The committee is working on the problem for an estimated $1 per day as an appropriate charge to parents who are both gainfully employed. Charges should be scaled down to zero for working mothers who have more than one child that must be cared for and when such mother is the only wage earner in the family.

"Since this program is just getting under way, it is impossible to estimate accurately the number of employees that will eventually be required. At present, the committee plans to use a head teacher, two assistant teachers, and a cook. Wages will be determined by the demand. It is expected that the head teacher will probably receive $175 per month. The assistants will be paid $75 to $100. The staff detailed above is estimated to be reasonably adequate to care for an enrollment of approximately 40 children, or 10 to 15 per teacher."

"It seems that parents would be willing to share a portion of the cost of caring for the children; the price range from 50 cents up to $1 per day."

RICHMOND

"We estimate that the charges to parents will be about 50 cents per day for food. We plan to operate, when we receive our grant, 10 units. Each unit will take care of about 20 children, and it is estimated that it requires one caretaker to 10 children. This will include teachers, nurses, cooks, and custodians."

Fresno County

FRESNO

"I believe that under present circumstances a charge of 25 cents per day per child will cover the cost of food in a day child care center. Of course, all other charges would have to be taken care of by Lanham Act Funds or by funds from some other source.

"Estimate of the Number of Employees Needed

To give nursery child care center service to a unit of 30 would require:
1. 1 Nursery school supervisor for entire city, per month	$175 00
2. 3 Matrons at $150 per month (to work a six or seven-hour day, six-day week, staggered shifts)	$450 00
3. 1 Cook, per month	$100 00
4. 1 Handy man (elderly man would be satisfactory) to do repair jobs, sweeping, etc., per month	$75 00
Total	$800 00

"Estimate of the Number of Employees Needed for Child Care Center Recreational Activities for Children of School Age

1. Two playground teachers (one man and one woman) paid at the rate of $1 per hour. After school, 2.20 to 6.00 p.m. and all day Saturday; also during all vacation periods.
- 22 Recreational playground centers should be operated—a total of 44 playground teachers per month (approximately) $6,000 00
2. Additional employees needed—1 playground supervisor, per month $175 00

Approximately 200 or 300 children of school age will be cared for at each recreational center."

SELMA

"We estimate the charges to the parents will be 25 cents to 50 cents per child per day. We contemplate using 8 to 10 employees at $75 to $125 per month for each employee."

Lassen County

WESTWOOD

"Seventy five cents per day, charge to be adjusted one way or other according to experience. The Lanham Act expresses a minimum of one employee per 10 children. According to what we gather they would receive the salary of an elementary school teacher, or, in this district, a minimum of $1,450 per year and a maximum of $1,600, subject, of course to new legislation which may raise the minimum."

Los Angeles County

ALHAMBRA

"If we establish child care centers in Alhambra, it is my opinion that we will use a sliding scale based on the family income and the number of children in each family. Our fees on the basis stated would probably run from approximately 25 cents a day for a widowed mother who has several children to $1.25 a day for a family where both parents are making good incomes and where only one or two children are in the family. If we establish additional nursery school facilities in the other side of our district and child care centers at each of our elementary schools, it would be necessary to employ 25 or 30 persons to handle the program."

BELLFLOWER

"There have been a number of proposals all the way from 25 cents per meal to several dollars a day per child for this service. I believe it unwise to make this cost more than a dollar per day or it might become very difficult to encourage women to leave the home for the defense activities. In the nursery school program we expect to pay prevailing wages for teachers, custodians, cooks, and other personnel. Our average teacher's salary is approximately $1,550 for nine months, $140 per month for custodians, and approximately $75 per month for cooks."

BUREBANK

"At the present time, this cost is between 50 cents and $1 per child per day.

"On the nursery school level, it is anticipated that one teacher be employed for every 10 children, on the kindergarten level, one worker for every 20 children. As anticipated, we will need 113 workers to carry out the entire program."

COMPTON

"Fees will be charged on a five or six day weekly basis. The tentative rate will be $2.50 and $3. Children of widowed mothers or of service men will be accepted free of charge if circumstances justify such action.

"The personnel of the extended day care services will consist of 25 full-time teachers, 26 part-time teachers, 10 part-time cooks, 10 part-time clerks, and eight part-time custodians. The administrative staff will include a director, senior secretary, bookkeeper, and purchasing agent, and a junior clerk. Provision has also been made for part-time supervisors of instruction in arts and craft, curriculum, speech, music, physical education, and agriculture, and the part-time services of a librarian and psychologist."

GLENDALE

"In our plan for operation under the Lanham Act, we propose to charge the parents 75 cents per day per child for nursery school care. Each nursery school unit will have a director, a teacher for every 10 pupils, one cook, one housekeeper, and a part-time gardener-custodian. Our salary schedule would pay to the head teacher $175 a month, to the other instructors $140 per month, housekeepers $100 a month, gardener-custodian $125 per month."

GLENORA

"We charge parents by a sliding scale depending upon joint salary of mother and father.

$150	25 cents day
150-200	30 cents day
200-250	35 cents day
250-300	40 cents day
300	50 cents day

"We charge 5 to 10 cents per day for breakfast depending upon the salary of the parents.

"Our elementary school has provided us with a delightful cottage and adequate yard, ideally located between the kindergarten and main school. Their equipment is available during the late afternoon. Number of personnel and wage:

Teacher	$140 16
Teacher	132 48
Teacher	132 48
Teacher	132 48
Cook	101 76
Attendant	84 48"

HAWTHORNE

"Forty cents per day for each child in nursery school. Twenty-five cents per day for each child in day-extension school.

Nursery school only:

1 head teacher	$170 00 per month
3 assistant teachers	146 00 per month

Nursery school and day extension care:

1 nurse	$146 00 per month
10 recreation teachers	146 00 per month
6 part-time workers	65 00 per month
6 part-time helpers	53 00 per month
1 janitor	132 00 per month
1 coordinator	235 00 per month
1 secretary	132 00 per month"

INGLEWOOD

"The charges will range from 25 cents to $1 per day, depending upon the income of the mother. We will use one teacher for every 10 children, or a total personnel of one person for every six children, including head teacher, nurse, custodian, and cooks. The wages will be comparable to the remuneration paid regular employees of the local school district for similar kinds of work, modified by differences in qualifications and hours of work."

LONG BEACH

"Charges will be sufficient to cover the cost of food. This is estimated to be 50 cents per day per child in nursery schools and 15 to 30 cents per day for extended day care pupils. As prices of food change, fees will have to change.

"The following staff and salaries are planned for at each of six nursery schools.

1 Head teacher at.....	$180 00 per month
2 First assistant teachers at.....	150 00 per month
2 Second assistant teachers at.....	135 00 per month
5 Assistants at .....	125 00 per month
1 Head cook at.....	100 00 per month
1 Assistant cook and housekeeper at.....	100 00 per month
1/4 Nurse at .....	52 50 per month

"Note that this personnel, working in two shifts, will care for 80 preschool children, six days a week, 12 hours or more a day.

"For extended school service, teachers will be paid at the rate of $150 per month in vacations and $100 per month when school is in session."

LOS ANGELES

"Various informal comments have indicated that different amounts are under consideration at different times, but the range seems to be from 50 cents to $1 per day depending upon what the actual cost proves to be."

The Budget Division of the Los Angeles School District, on December 31, 1942, submitted the following detailed exhibit of budget request for nursery school funds for five months from February 1, 1943, to June 30, 1943:

MONTEBELLO

"We have found that 25 to 50 cents per day, the exact amount determined on the basis of family income, would cover the food bill. This was for children of pre-school age. The actual cost per day for caring for these small children probably runs around $1.75, perhaps as much as $2 for very small children. Older youngsters of school age can be handled for a relatively small expenditure. One supervisor paid perhaps a dollar an hour can handle a fairly large group of children of school age either before or after school.

"Our plans for child care centers at the preschool age based on having the program open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and caring for approximately 40 pupils call for the employment of housekeeper, cook, part time nurse, one senior nursery attendant and three junior nursery attendants. The following wages were to be paid: Housekeeper, $90; cook, $100; senior nursery attendant, $150; junior nursery attendant, $140. Our program contemplated one attendant per 10 pupils, plus the services of cook, housekeeper, and nurse."

PASADENA

"Parents will be required to pay the costs of food, which will range from 25 cents to $1 a day, depending upon the number of meals they are served.

"The number of employees includes teachers, supervisors, secretary, clerks, nurses, doctors, case workers, counselors, cooks, and custodians. We have tentative plans for employment of 336 people for the care of young children and for the extended day care of school children. We contemplate approximately 240 children under school age and 2,300 of school age, making a total of 2,540 children. We plan to pay a supervisor for the groups of young children $275 a month, a secretary for the four centers $125 a month, and a clerk in each of the centers $100 a month. The head teacher will be paid $160 a month, assistants $140 a month, custodians $150 a month, cooks $150 a month, and their assistants $100 a month, a part time doctor $300 a month, nurses $160 a month. Workers in the extended day care of school children will be paid at the same rate which we pay adult education workers, $2.25 an hour. Assistants from the junior college who may be interested in receiving training in child care will be paid 60 cents an hour."

SANTA MONICA

"We are contemplating a charge of 50 cents a day if there is only one parent, $1 a day where there are two parents.

"It is planned to employ five persons (one director @ $200, three teachers @ $150 each, and one cook housekeeper @ $100 a month) for each child care center. The salary rates are those suggested by a committee of school superintendents. Each child care center will handle from 40 to 50 children."

MERCED

"The cost from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., including three feedings, was 50 cents per day per child, with rates for more than one child in the same family; 25 cents for after-school children. Recently we have cut the cost to 25 cents for all day care and 10 cents for afternoon. This amount barely covers the cost of food. The WPA furnishes the personnel, the school the facilities. Under the Lanham Act for which we have applied, it is estimated that one employee can take care of 10 children. Our budget calls for $175 for the head teachers and $160 per month for each assistant teacher. This is for a 48 hour week."

NAPA

"My personal opinion is that if both parents are working they can afford to pay the full cost of care for their children, the amount of course, depending upon the cost of the operation in whatever community the center happened to be located. I do not believe the Government should take over the responsibilities of the parents without compensation.

"The number of employees will depend upon the type of care given. We have a full-time director, part-time doctor, part time nurse, cook and nutritionist, matron, and one teacher for every 10 children."

Orange County

ORANGE

"Charges have been 50 cents per day. It should depend on the number of hours the child is attending. It is estimated that each employee should handle 10 or more pupils."

SANTA ANA

"Charge to the parents for care: We have estimated at 50 cents to $1 per week. Under the Lanham Act, the only charge we can make is for food. Number of employees, wages paid, number of children cared for by each has not been determined."

ROSEVILLE

"Mothers who work have in the past and are in the present placing their children in private homes where they pay from $15 to $25 per month for the care of their children. The nursery school and child care centers will, when established, charge 50 cents per child per day and 40 cents per child per day when there are more than one child in a family.

"It necessitates 12 employees on the nursery school to care for 20 children, our budget on the nursery school will total $21,730 per year. This will care for those children from 2 to 5 years of age, inclusive. We have not completed our budget on the child care schools for children above the age of 6 years.

"The personnel of the nursery schools will be paid a monthly salary from $100 to $175 per month."

HILMEI

"Parents of children attending nursery school will pay the expenses of providing food, its preparation, and of utilities in proportion to their gross family income according to the following scale:

Gross Family Income Per Month
Below $100	$100	$125	$150	$200	$250	$300	$350	$400
	to	to	to	to	to	to	to	to

Rate per 8 hr. day	10c	15c	20c	30c	50c	60c	70c	80c	90c

"At present, with an expected average daily attendance of 30 in nursery school, we will provide two teachers, one cook and laundress, or an average of one per 10 average daily attendance. At times, the enrollment will be 12 or 15 to average 10 per employee. Teachers will receive $125 per month for a 48 hour week. Cook and laundress, $100 per month for a 48 hour week."

NORTH SACRAMENTO

"The charges in this district will be from 25 cents to 50 cents per day, depending on the number of meals served. I expect to employ six teachers at $150 per month, each caring for 25 to 35 children; two part-time cooks (28 hours per week) at 65 cents per hour; two part-time janitors (28 hours per week) at 75 cents per hour; one part-time doctor at $50 per month (on call)."

San Bernardino County

FONTANA

"I would venture a guess that the charge would be somewhere between $7.50 per child per month and $10 per child per month.

"I would contemplate using five employees for 40 children in single shifts. The minimum wage at which I could obtain people would be around $120 and ratio of children per person should run one person for eight children."

REDLANDS

"Our estimate of what the charges will be to parents: Cost of meals.

CORONADO

"Fees have been set at the nursery school at 25 cents to $1 per day according to the parent's ability to pay. Sufficient fees will be collected to cover the cost of food."

ESCONDIDO

"Parents will be charged only the cost of the food served and all families will be charged exactly the same amount.

"It is anticipated that the meals will cost children 15 cents each.

"Teachers for child-care centers are hired at the rate of one for each 10 children enrolled. In addition, it will be necessary to have janitors and cooks for four nursery schools and out-of-school care for school children we have estimated that there will be 20 teachers and one supervisor, one clerk, four cooks, and such janitor service as is essential."

SAN DIEGO

"It is expected that the fees will pay between 50 and 70 per cent of the cost of operating the child care services.

$250-Over	4	3	2

Dollars per week per enrollee listed above

*If a child is enrolled for one session only (either before school or after school) the fee shall be one-half that listed on this fee schedule.

During periods when public schools are not in session, the fees for extended day care centers shall be the same as fees for nursery centers.

The total number of employees will be determined by the total number of centers opened. Five persons will be needed for each nursery center (four teachers and one cook-housekeeper) and two teachers for each extended day center. This personnel allotment will mean one teacher for each 10 enrollees in nursery centers and one teacher for each 20 enrollees in extended day centers.

The following salary schedule for child care employees has been tentatively adopted by the San Diego Board of Education:

"Children can be cared for at the rate of 80 cents per day. You will note that we found that six people can handle 100 children, if distribution of ages is normal. We paid $160 for the head director and proposed $110 per month for untrained assistants. However, it is my belief that women will not be available at these wages."

STOCKTON

"We estimate charges to be as follows:

For full day nursery care (1 meal and 2 liquid feedings) .....	75c per child
For part-time day care school-age pupils, about 3 hours .....	15c per child
For full-time day care school-age pupils (1 meal) .....	45c per child
Day nurseries, 25 employees for 100 children.
Day care centers (school-age children) we propose to employ the equivalent of 42 full-time employees. They will be paid annual (12 months) salaries, varying from $3,600 for the director; $2,400 for supervising teachers; $2,160 for assistant supervising teachers; $1,800 for teachers; $1,200 for cooks and $900 for housekeepers. We will average 15 children or more per teacher for the entire child care project."

SAN LUIS OBISPO

"Where both father and mother are working in any establishment whereby reasonable wages are received, they should pay at least $1 per day for the care of children. That I would think ought to be a maximum charge.

"A properly developed child care center ought to employ at least four persons, a teacher, a nurse, a caretaker, and a dietitian. I can not say what the wages ought to be, but I should think they ought to compare to wages paid teachers, considering experience and training."

San Mateo County

REDWOOD CITY

"Nursery school charges will be 50 cents per day and extended day care charges will be 10 cents per day. These charges are made to cover the cost of food.

"The plan as set up by our community calls for approximately 24 employees some of whom will be on a part-time basis. Salaries will range from $125 to $200 per month with part-time people receiving $1 per hour.

"In the nursery school each employee will care for 10 children while in the extended day care service one employee will care for 30 children."

SAN BRUNO

"We estimate that the charges to parents for caring for their children will be 50 cents per day for food and materials providing that the Federal Government grants the school districts funds under the Lanham Act.

"We contemplate using approximately 20 employees in operating a nursery and leisure time supervision program. The wages paid to them will approximate that paid to public school teachers. We anticipate having to take care of 100 to 150 children."

Santa Barbara County

SANTA BARBARA

"Under the WPA project we charge a maximum of 25 cents per day.

Our projected staff in the Lanham application included:

2 principal teachers.....	$124 80/mo.
6 assistant teachers.....	120 96/mo.
1 nutritionist.....	124 80/mo.
1 janitor and handyman.....	153 60/mo.

SANTA MARIA

"The charge to parents of children attending our nursery school is around 50 cents per day. Extended service charge should be around 25 cents per day.

"We plan on using eight people in nursery school and 16 part-time people in extended day service. The cost to the Government will be $8,550. This will care for 60 nursery school pupils and 400 extended day pupils. The salary ranges 70 cents per hour for part-time people to $150 per month for head teacher."

Santa Cruz County

SANTA CRUZ

"The charge to the parents will be $5 per month per child. This is to provide a hot lunch each day for the child.

"To operate this school, it will be necessary to use five employees; three teachers, a cook, and a maintenance man. It is expected that there will be an average daily attendance of 40. The head teacher will receive $130 per month, two assistant teachers will receive $120 each, a cook and the maintenance man will each receive $100 per month."

VALLEJO

"At present we are charging parents who can afford to pay, $1 per day for the nursery care and 50 cents per day for the extended day care providing we furnish one meal to these children of school age."

"For the nursery service of pre-school children we are planning one full-time teacher to each 10 children. For the extended day service we plan one full-time teacher for approximately 25 children."

Stanislaus County

MODESTO

"The Modesto proposal under our Lanham Act application would charge the parents 25 cents per meal, or 50 cents per 12 hour day care center because of the cost to come from Lanham Act Funds, except the cost of general administration which comes from the Board of Education and the cost of heating equipment, which comes from the county health center through the board of supervisors' budget."

RIVERBANK

"We charged the parents 25 cents per day but this was insufficient to cover costs. Fifty cents should be a bare minimum. A teacher may care for about 20 children. Little folks require eternal vigilance to guarantee safety. One would be herding them if the number were increased. We pay $8.50 per day for substitute teachers this school year. A cook would be worth $6 a day and helpers $3.50 as minimums. A cook and helper should be able to serve 100 children, providing the cook and helper are efficient people."

TURLOCK

"The charge to parents will probably be not less than 25 cents or more than 50 cents per child. The number of employees and their wages have not yet been determined."

Ventura County

VENTURA

"If Lanham Act Funds are available for the establishment of a child care center, we estimate that the cost to the parents would be 50 cents per day for children between the ages of 2 and 5, which would include two meals for each child. We estimate that the cost would be 25 cents per day for children between 6 and 16 years of age, on the basis of one meal per day.

"In our judgment, it will be necessary to have a supervisor of the Nursery School Program, with an assistant for at least every 10 children between the ages of 2 and 5 years, and a supervisor of child care centers, with an assistant for at least every 30 children between the ages of 6 and 16. This is, of course, before and after school care only."

Yolo County

WOODLAND

"The charge to parents for the care of their children has been from 40 cents to 60 cents an hour.

"I estimate that we will need two women to care for the children in the daytime and one at night during the three months of harvest season. Each employee should be able to care for from 15 to 20 children; this will vary according to age and time of day. It would be necessary to pay the person in charge at least $160 a month or they would prefer to work in the harvest. In which case they would make from $175 to $200 a month.

Recommendations of the Committee

1. Continuance of Child Care Centers

Your committee recommends the continuance of the authority to the governing boards of the school districts to set up and maintain child care centers in accordance with Assembly Bill No. 307, subject to such modifications and changes as are set forth in these recommendations.

With the steady increase of the number of mothers working in industry, it is apparent that some means must be provided for the proper care of their children. The committee recognizes that a mother's responsibility is to her child; it also recognizes that industry should employ single women and married women without children before employing mothers, but with the drafting of our manpower from within industry and fathers being imminent, it is apparent that more and more women will be working. The children must not be allowed to roam the streets or left to makeshift arrangements. Juvenile delinquency must be curbed. The future of America demands better care for the children. The best suggestion that has come forward up to the present time is the setting up and maintenance of child care centers through our educational facilities. Reports from almost every section of the State show the urgent need for child care centers.

2. Type of Service

Your committee recommends: (a) The local governing boards should be continued to be vested with the power to determine the hours, days and months in which the centers will be maintained.

However, your committee finds that it is impractical to offer service for the care of infants up to two years of age. The number of personnel required to care for infants up to that age is excessive; it is far better that those mothers who find it necessary to work should provide other means of care for their children. Your committee further finds that it is advisable to have nursery classes for children whose ages range from two to five. It may be deemed advisable by local governing boards to organize classes for children whose ages range from six to ten. However, in most instances, organized and supervised use of the school grounds and playgrounds for hours before and after school should solve the problem for most school-age children. Your committee is opposed to the operation of 24-hour service at the child care centers; it believes that children should be at home at night with their parents. However, it recognizes that it may be necessary for the local governing board in certain instances to maintain a 24-hour service as it progresses. Therefore, it believes the question of hours should be left to the sound discretion of the local governing boards.

(b) Legislation should be passed empowering the school authorities to keep open and maintain school grounds and playgrounds and their facilities for hours both before and after school during the school year and during the entire vacation periods.

(c) Legislation should be passed amending the provisions of Assembly Bill No. 307 so that a parent may leave his or her child at a child care center in a school district other than that of the residence of the parent, if the school district of the parent's residence does not maintain a child care center.

This will be necessary to care for those cases where the school district does not find enough of a demand to warrant the opening of a child care center. There are many instances where parents request and need the child care service and who will find it convenient to take the child to the school district en route to work.

3. Fees From Parents

Your committee recommends that the local governing boards continue to have the authority to charge fees, not necessarily uniform, to supplement such funds as may be received by the school district for the child care centers.

Your committee finds that it is impractical to charge a uniform fee for all parents in every section of the State. The fees must necessarily be based on the number of children who are cared for at the centers, the earnings of the parents, the type of service rendered, and the costs entailed. The consensus seems to be that the fees should range from 25 cents per child per day to $1 per child per day. However, this is a matter which can best be left to the judgment and discretion of the local governing boards.

4. Appropriation of State Funds

Your committee recommends that a special appropriation to the State War Council be made of State funds to assist in the setting up and maintenance of child care centers.

When Assembly Bill No. 307 was enacted, it was understood that the Federal Government would defray the entire cost of the operation of child care centers, with parents being required to pay for the cost of food for the children. However, the Federal Government has refused to bear the entire cost and will advance funds under the Lanham Act only to the extent of 50 per cent of the cost. In some instances the parent will be able to defray the additional 50 per cent of the cost; however, in other instances, they will not be able to do so. It, therefore, becomes necessary to supplement the funds so that there can be an assurance of the operation of the child care centers.

5. Budgeting and Allocation of Funds

Your committee recommends that the State War Council shall be responsible for the strict budgeting of all child care centers.

Your committee finds that unless extreme care is exercised, the personnel of a child care center can grow beyond that which is reasonably necessary. It is the consensus that one person is needed for every 10 children between the ages of 2 and 5; that one person is needed for every 25 children over the age of 5. There is a tendency to overstaff the child care centers with supervisors, matrons, nutritionists, doctors, nurses, cooks, assistant cooks, and handymen. Many of these services can be combined; and your committee recommends to the State War Council that the budgets be carefully scrutinized to avoid unnecessary expense on the part of the taxpayers.

6. Reversion of State Appropriation

Your committee recommends that any unexpended funds which may be appropriated or allocated for child care centers will revert to the General Fund of the State on July 1, 1945, or six months after the termination of hostilities in the present war, whichever date is earlier.

7. Cooperation of Industry

Your committee recommends that steps be taken by the necessary authorities to enlist the cooperation of industry in the matter of employment of mothers. It is important that mothers be employed on the day shift instead of the swing or graveyard shifts. This will avoid the necessity of 24-hour service, and will be the means of having the children at home with their parents at night.

Industry should also be urged to employ single women and married women without children whenever possible. The survival of American home life should be kept paramount in the minds of all persons concerned. There can be no substitute for parental care. It has become necessary during the war emergency to endeavor to care for the children of working parents. However, this should not be regarded as any permanent procedure, and should be considered only as temporary in nature and scope. The future of America must be safeguarded at home as well as on the battlefields abroad. The American home is one of the foundation stones of our system of life. Everything should be done to insure its maintenance and the early restoration of complete family life.

Respectfully submitted.

SENATOR GEORGE M. BIGGAR, Chairman
SENATOR JOHN HAROLD SWAN
SENATOR CLARENCE C. WARD

MOTION TO PRINT ADDITIONAL COPIES

Senator Biggar moved that 250 additional paper-bound copies of the Report of the Committee Appointed to Investigate the Establishment of Nursery Schools and Child Care Centers be printed and made available to the Members of the Senate.

COUNTY SUPERVISORS ASSOCIATION OF CALIFORNIA
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, April 20, 1943

*Hon. Joseph A. Beek, Secretary, State Senate
State Capitol, Sacramento, California*

DEAR MR. BEEK: Attached hereto is a copy of a resolution adopted by the County Supervisors Association of California in a meeting held in Sacramento Friday, April 16, 1943, relating to Japanese now in relocation centers.

Very truly yours,

RUSSELL L. PATTERSON, President
By J. H. HUNTER, Secretary

COUNTY SUPERVISORS ASSOCIATION OF CALIFORNIA, HEADQUARTERS

RESOLUTION

In the matter of the release of Japanese from relocation centers, and, or, their induction into the armed forces of the United States of America

WHEREAS, It has been announced through the press:

1. That the Secretary of War contemplates that some 28,000 native-born Japanese shall be incorporated into the United States Army in separate combat units; and

2. That the Federal authorities contemplate the release of from 25,000 to 40,000 Japanese from relocation camps where they are now restrained, with no announced provision of adequate surveillance or control; and

WHEREAS, The County Supervisors Association of California believes that such contemplated action would be inimical to the best interests and to the welfare and effective defense of our Country; be it

Resolved, That we most vigorously and earnestly protest against the above proposed actions and each of them; that we convey this protest to the Secretary of War, to the War Relocation Board, to our Congressmen and Senators, to the President of the United States and to the Legislature of the State of California.

That we urge upon these authorities the following reasons, based upon an extensive experience with the Japanese for more than 40 years, an intimate knowledge of their character, and our observation of what occurred on December 7, 1941, and immediately thereafter;

(1) Following Pearl Harbor and for the defense of the West Coast against attack and sabotage, the Army wisely moved the Japanese from the Pacific Coast. Now to permit them to return to their former habitat would subject us again to the danger of serious sabotage and difficulty in defending our shoreline in the event of attack.

(2) Due to the temper of the American public since the dastardly attack at Pearl Harbor we feel that it would be detrimental to the best interests of the Japanese themselves to allow them to return for residence on the West Coast, and that difficult additional policing problems would be presented thereby in effecting their safety.

(3) It is impossible to distinguish between loyal and disloyal Japanese. We are in no position to judge the emotions of the Japanese inasmuch as they have maintained their own schools and religion, and in many cases, dual citizenship with their main allegiance to the Emperor of Japan.

(4) If Japanese were allowed to return to this area we could not expect the cooperation of present agricultural or industrial laborers already engaged in the war effort if they were called upon to work with Japanese evacuees.

(5) To allow young Japanese to leave relocation camps for educational purposes in our colleges would be unjust and inequitable as it affects our own American boys who have been taken out of college and are so loyally serving their Country in the armed forces to the detriment of their education and employment.

(6) It is the opinion of the County Supervisors Association that these Japanese should be contributing substantially to the war effort but we feel that it should be in areas removed from the Pacific Coast and by group movement under full and proper control and supervision by the Army. In no event should they be dispersed throughout the Country without proper provision for absolute surveillance and control; be it further

Resolved, That the Japanese, both alien and American born should be retained in relocation centers for the duration unless they are placed under direct and absolute supervision and full control of Army authority and engaged in the furtherance of our war effort.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received, read, and, on motion of Senator Biggar, ordered printed in the Journal:

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Honorable Geo. M. Biggar, Senate Chamber
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

SENATE BILL NO. 185—No. 9404

DEAR SENATOR BIGGAR: This is in response to your inquiries as to the operation of Senate Bill No. 185.

This bill defines "purchase" and "sell" and the variants of these terms to include any transaction whereby either title, possession, or control, or the right to take, possession, or control of fluid milk or fluid cream passes to another person.

This provision, if enacted, will appear in the provisions of the Agricultural Code relating to the prices to be paid producers of fluid milk and fluid cream.

The object of the bill appears to be to prevent evasion of the milk control provisions of the code by arrangements which do not technically constitute purchases or sales under the Sales Act, which governs sales of personal property generally.

The effect of the bill will be that transactions concerning fluid milk or fluid cream which are not sales in the ordinary sense will be treated as sales for the purposes of the Milk Control Law.

The result will be that when the possession or control of the milk is transferred the transfer constitutes a sale, and has all of the attributes of a sale. This results as a matter of law and the title to the milk passes as in the case of any other sale.

Under the bill, when the buyer takes possession of the milk from the producer he has purchased it and becomes subject to the provisions of the Milk Control Law relating to milk purchases from producers. Similarly, the producer has sold the milk and is relegated to his rights under the act as a seller.

These conditions ensue as a matter of law, regardless of the intent of the parties. In response to your subsidiary question as to whether or not the bill would compel a purchaser to pay for fluid milk or fluid cream which do not meet the quality requirements, we do not see how such question could arise.

"Fluid milk" and "fluid cream" are defined in Section 735.3 of the Agricultural Code, in subdivisions (b) (c), respectively, as milk and cream meeting the health regulations for market milk and the health and sanitation requirements for cream.

Unless the particular milk or cream come within the definitions of fluid milk and fluid cream the bill would not apply at all.

Consequently, we do not believe that a distributor who took possession of milk which was spoiled or which otherwise failed to meet the definition of "fluid milk" would become a "purchaser" of the milk under the bill. As we view it, the bill has nothing to do with such a situation.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel
By JOSEPH W. PAULUCCI, Deputy

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

SACRAMENTO, April 21, 1943

*To the Honorable Members of the Senate
State of California, Sacramento, California*

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith, without my signature, Senate Bill No. 184, entitled: "An act to provide for the transfer of certain real property of the State in Napa County to the Fish and Game Commission."

My objections to this bill are as follows:

This bill directs the Director of Finance to convey to the Fish and Game Commission approximately 70 acres of land which formerly constituted Napa State Farm. The bill is unusual in that it thus requires a grant of land by one department of State Government to another; it clearly intends to accomplish conveyance of title. The Attorney General advises me that such a grant as is contemplated by this bill could be construed in only one of two ways: (1) either the State is divesting itself of title, thereby making the property subject to local taxation; or

(2) the grant actually accomplishes nothing so far as a transfer of title is concerned, in which latter event the whole affair is an idle act.

Due to the possibility that such a grant might be construed as divesting the State of title to the property involved, I am withholding my approval of the measure. I am advised that the purpose of the bill will be accomplished by an amendment to another bill which is now before the Legislature for consideration.

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARRIN, Governor

In applying the above schedule to determine the tax of a taxpayer with one or more dependents, there shall be subtracted from his gross income four hundred dollars ($400) for each such dependent.

(c) For the purpose of this section—

(1) The term "married person" means a married person living with husband or wife on July 1st of the taxable year.

(2) [The word "dependent" Dependent" means a person who is, on July 1(st) of the taxable year, a dependent under Section 10 (b).]

(3) An individual not a head of a family and not living with husband or wife on July 1(st) of the taxable year shall be treated as a single person.

(c) This section shall not apply to [a nonresident alien individual,] an estate or trust, an individual filing a return for a period of less than 12 months or for any taxable year other than a calendar year, or to a married individual, married and living with husband or wife at any time during the taxable year, whose spouse files a return and computes the tax without regard to this section.

SEC. 17. Section 10 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 10. There shall be allowed for the purposes of the tax herein imposed:

(a) In the case of a single person, a personal exemption of one thousand dollars ($1,000); or in the case of the head of a family or a married person living with husband or wife, a personal exemption of two thousand five hundred dollars ($2,500). A husband and wife living together shall receive but one personal exemption. The amount of such personal exemption shall be two thousand five hundred dollars ($2,500). If such husband and wife make separate returns, the personal exemption may be taken by either or divided between them.

(b) Four hundred dollars ($400) for each person (other than husband or wife living with the taxpayer) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer if such dependent person is under 18 years of age or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective [and for each former or present spouse to whose support the taxpayer is contributing by order of a court of competent jurisdiction;]. A payment to a wife which must be included in the gross income of the wife under (k) or Section 12 (1) shall not be considered a payment to her husband for the support of any dependent. If the taxpayer would not change the status of head of a family except by reason of there being one or more dependents for whom he would be entitled to credit under this section, the credit shall be disallowed with respect to one of the dependents;

(c) In the case of an estate an exemption of one thousand dollars ($1,000); in the case of a trust an exemption of one hundred dollars ($100);

(d) If the status of the taxpayer, insofar as it affects the personal exemption or credit for dependents changes during the taxable year, the personal exemption and credit shall be apportioned, under such rules and regulations as are prescribed by the commissioner, in accordance with the number of months before and after such change. For the purpose of such apportionment a fractional part of a month shall be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it shall be considered as a month."

Sec. 3.7. Section 17952 of said code is amended to read:

17952. There shall also be allowed as a credit four hundred dollars ($400) for each individual (other than husband or wife living with the taxpayer) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer if the dependent individual is under 18 years of age or is incapable of self support because mentally or physically defective, and four hundred dollars ($400) for each former or present spouse to whose support the taxpayer is contributing by order of a court of competent jurisdiction. ## PRAYER

By invitation of the President, Senator Biggar of the Fourth District offered the following prayer:

Holy and Merciful God, as we approach that holy day which we celebrate in honor of the time when the stone was rolled away from the grave of Christ and He came forth in glory, wilt Thou be pleased to give us Faith to believe that these dark days of war and death are like unto the days He spent in the tomb, and when the clouds of war and tragedy have rolled away, peace and good will to all mankind will come forth to brighten all the world.

We thank Thee for the fortitude and courage that steels the hearts of mankind to face the ordeals of war and death; even as the bombs crash and the cannons roar, there will rise above the din of battle, carols and songs of joy and hope to greet the rising sun on Easter Morn. Verily smiles of hope breaking through the tears of sorrow.

And now as we have gathered again to resume the task of guiding the Ship of State of the great Commonwealth of California, may Thy hand be at the helm to steer us safely through the shoals of selfishness and greed, and bring us safely into harbor where we may be securely anchored to eternal truth and justice.

AMEN.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received, read, and, on motion of Senator Quinn, ordered printed in the Journal:

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

*Honorable Irvin T. Quinn
Senate Chamber, State Capitol
Sacramento, California*

SENATE BILL NO. 961

DEAR SENATOR QUINN: You have asked us whether Senate Bill No. 961, if enacted, would affect the Trinity and Klamath River Fish and Game District and how it might affect future registration concerning that district.

Senate Bill No. 961 adds a section to the Health and Safety Code and defines "pollution" as including the presence in water of any mineral, animal, or vegetable matter as a cause dangerous to human health. It specifically states that the presence of turbidity or any mineral matter which is superfluous but not deleterious in water used for farming or other industry, shall not be held to be a cause of pollution.

It will be noted that the first definition, that is, including the presence of any mineral, animal or vegetable matter as a cause dangerous to human health, relates to water for human consumption, while the exception relating to turbidity relates to water used for farming or other industry.

It is difficult to perceive how this can refer to waters in the Klamath River prior to their use either for human consumption or for farming or other industry. We are not familiar with the river and therefore are unable to do more than speculate on this point.

Assuming that the waters in the river are used in either of the manners mentioned in Senate Bill No. 961, it would appear that the bill would apply. However, this does not mean that the bill would negative the effect of Section 482 of the Fish and Game Code.

That section first declares that it is unlawful to conduct mining operations in the district between certain dates, except when the debris does not and can not pass into the waters in the district.

It next provides that it is unlawful between certain dates "to pollute, muddy, contaminate or soil the waters in the district."

It then provides that it is unlawful between certain dates to deposit any debris from mining operations in said waters that would affect the clarity (as distinguished from pollute) the waters.

Subdivision (c) is a saving clause for certain types of hydraulic mining and subdivision (d) declares violations of the section to be a nuisance, and (e), a misdemeanor.

The only portion of Section 482 that would apparently be affected by the bill if at all, would be the prohibition contained in the first sentence of subdivision (b): "It is unlawful . . . to pollute . . . the waters of the . . . district."

We have said "if at all" because, as we have indicated, we do not know whether the waters in the river are intended to be reached by Section 4025 in Senate Bill No. 961. Assuming that they would be covered by this section it would not seem to make any material difference with respect to the fish in the river because the definition of clarity would undoubtedly control the meaning of Section 482 because if there is any conflict between the bill and Section 482, the two statutes would not be in pari materia and the special provisions of Section 482 would control over the general provision which is included in Senate Bill No. 961.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel
By SIDNEY L. WEINSTOCK, Deputy

Statement Regarding Senate Bill No. 313

MR. PRESIDENT: The undersigned authors of Senate Bill No. 313 known as the "Full Crew Bill" wish to make the following statement as to why this bill was allowed to die on the Senate file after it had been voted out of committee with a recommendation of "Do Pass."

The Assembly had passed an identical bill numbered 512 which contained all of the provisions as Senate Bill No. 313, with the exception of one amendment and an emergency clause.

Since Assembly Bill No. 512 had already passed the Assembly, it was thought best to amend the Assembly bill to conform in every detail to Senate Bill No. 313, and pass that bill instead of our own. This procedure would save much valuable time, and accomplish the same purpose as though we had passed Senate Bill No. 313.

The authors of Senate Bill No. 313 wish to express appreciation to all those who aided in the final disposition of this valuable piece of legislation.

We feel that the bill, in its present form, will bring great benefit to the railroads, the railroad brotherhoods and to the people.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Swan asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following statement printed in the Journal:

Statement of Senators Biggar, Dillinger, and Swan

MR. PRESIDENT: The so-called tax reduction bills in reality constitute a revenue reduction program. The time to reduce taxes is not in the midst of great prosperity when reserves for depression can be accumulated. None of the tax bills gives any material relief to the taxpayers who are entitled to relief. The reduction in the sales tax from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent will result in an injustice to all persons making purchases under $2. The fractions on all small purchases can not be returned to the person making the purchase; so he will have to pay the full 3 per cent just as he does now. Thus, those in the lower income brackets will be taxed just as severely as they are today, and the State will lose revenue. This reduction in the sales tax is inequitable and should not have been made. Unwise curtailment of State revenue means the abandonment of many essential projects in building and construction.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Tenney asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following statement printed in the Journal:

Assembly Bill No. 876, the income tax reduction bill, was given an "Aye" vote by the undersigned today with a misunderstanding as to the contents of this bill. We desire to state that this bill differs from the so-called "Ward Senate Bill" in that the exemption granted the lower income brackets has a two-year limitation placed thereon in the Assembly bill and the reductions in the percentage of tax imposed on the higher bracket incomes is made permanent. The Ward Bill made both changes in our income tax law permanent. If this change had been pointed out, we would have voted against the bill as we feel this is not fair consideration and treatment of the people in the low income brackets.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28, 1943

It is apparent that from consideration thus far to Albion River Bridge Project that appeal board will not be favorable unless new and additional evidence can be presented to prove bridge is unsafe and may collapse at any time. Have suggested that State Highway Engineer furnish such information if possible. Independent findings of other competent engineers would be of signal value. It should also be shown to what extent bridge is being used for transportation of war goods for Army.

Navy, and other vital purposes. It is important that all pertinent facts be concisely stated.

257. Age Limit for Operators. No operator's license shall be issued to any person under the age of 16 years except that an operator's license may be issued to a person 14 years of age but less than 16 years of age upon application as required of other minors under Section 350 hereof; but the department shall not issue a license to any such person, unless it shall be satisfied on reasonable proof that there is an actual and real necessity for the operation of a motor vehicle by such person [for the purpose of transportation to and from school, or for the welfare of the applicants or his family]. In such cases the department may issue a license for a period of less than four years and may cancel any such license at any time before the person is 16 years of age when in the opinion of the department the safety of such person or of other persons upon the highways may require such cancellation. The department may require an affidavit from a parent or other person having custody of such minor, setting out the facts of the case.

The department shall impose restrictions on any license issued to such minor as may be appropriate to limit the operation of motor vehicles by such person to operation within the scope of the necessity as shown and such other restrictions as the department may deem necessary to assure the safe operation of a motor vehicle by the licensee."

(b) If the applicant has failed to furnish the department the information required in the application or reasonable additional information requested by the department.

(c) If the department determines that the applicant has made or permitted to be made unlawful use of any operator's or chauffeur's license.

(d) If the department determines that the applicant has used a false or fictitious name in any application for a license, or has knowingly made a false statement or knowingly concealed a material fact, or otherwise committed any fraud in any such application.

(e) If the department determines that the applicant is an habitual violator of the traffic laws.

SEC. 6. Section 276 of the Vehicle Code is amended to read:

276. Term and Expiration of Operator's License. Every operator's license hereafter issued shall expire four years from date of issuance and the department is authorized to cancel and require the renewal of any operators' licenses which have been outstanding four years or more. In the event an operator's license expires during the month of January the department may extend such license for a period of 30 days.

If an applicant for an operator's license has any physical or mental infirmities which, in the opinion of the department, may, during the term of the license to such person, result in his inability to exercise reasonable and ordinary control in the operation of a motor vehicle, the department may issue a license to such person to expire on any date less than four years from the date of issuance as it may consider advisable.

Whenever an applicant for an operator's license does not fully meet the requirements for a driver's license, but can, in the opinion of the department, operate a motor vehicle safely under restricted conditions until he is able to fully meet the requirements for the license, the department may issue a license to such person to a period less than four years.

The provisions of this section and of Section 257 insofar as they authorize the issuance of licenses for periods of less than four years shall not be affected by any extension of drivers' licenses for the duration of the war, but such licenses issued for a term less than four years under the authority of this section or of Section 257 must be renewed upon expiration.

Every operator's license issued prior to August 14, 1929, is hereby canceled."

- A.B. 1056—Messrs. O'Day, Gaffney, and Maloney. From Route 68 to Route 2 via Geneva Avenue—2.2 miles;
- A.B. 1080—Messrs. O'Day, Collins, George D., Wollenberg, et al. Divisional Highway in San Francisco from Waller and Divisadero Streets to Alemany Boulevard near Theresa Street—3.1 miles;
- A.B. 1416—Mr. McCollister. Provides for State maintenance of Golden Gate Bridge, etc.—1.7 miles. See S.B. 966 and S.B. 969;
- A.B. 1675—Mr. Burkhalter. From Empire Avenue to San Fernando Road via Leland Way, Front Street and Providencia Avenue—1.8 miles.

Even though under normal conditions the construction of some of these roads might tie in perfectly with the present plans of expansion by the Highway Department in the normal development of the Highway System, it is nevertheless the opinion of your committee that at no time in recent years would it be more inadvisable to recommend additions to the State Highway System than now.

There are wide extremes represented in the character of the roads proposed. In some instances no road now exists where the new road is proposed. Some are entirely local in character, and some carry very little traffic. Some are intended, no doubt, to be heavy traffic arteries. All but two of the proposals required may be by construction, and all of them will require maintenance expenditure by the State. Several are exceedingly costly to build; for instance, the proposed 40 miles from Van Nuys to Long Beach suggested in A.B. 100, A.B. 101, A.B. 606, and S.B. 283. This project alone would cost forty million dollars. Another expensive project is the proposed Divisional Highway in San Francisco, sponsored in A.B. 1080. The cost of construction for this road would run from eight million to twelve million dollars.

There are several serious reasons why a policy of adding roads to the State Highway System should not be adopted by the Legislature at this time. First and foremost is the abnormal reduction in highway revenues produced by gas and rubber rationing, a condition so serious that at the present time the plans of the department can hardly go beyond the provision of maintenance for a State Highway System for the next biennium, new construction being provided only on order of the Federal Roads Administration, in compliance with military necessities. Another factor has to do with limitation placed on material on all State construction by the Federal Government; difficulties experienced by the Highway Department in preserving and retaining adequate road equipment; the reduction in engineering and maintenance personnel; the increased cost of labor and materials; and the fact that State Highway funds are now falling behind the rate of obsolescence and service demands of traffic—deferment of improvement during the war emergency is seriously aggravating this situation.

Many roads are now being used beyond their ability to serve traffic. Military trucking is imposing requirements beyond road requirements in many cases throughout the State, hastening the end of the economic life of some roads as applied to their physical status. Construction programs for the current period are not achievable, which in itself, from the standpoint of justice, would be a reasonable cause to reject proposals for adding 466 miles to the State Highway System.

Your committee also feels that complete cooperation should be shown at this time by the representatives of the Legislature from all sections of the State in the pending program of planning, engineering, and right-of-way purchases contemplated under the provisions of bills for those purposes now passed by this Legislature, and totaling the amount of $13,500,000. This timely move will place the State in position for immediate development of tremendous size in highway construction in the postwar period, with all of the preliminaries off the boards, and with the opportunity to immediately cooperate with the Federal Roads Administration in the Federal Government plan of public works development throughout the Nation, including highway developments in many States.

Your committee has no hesitancy in recommending to the Transportation Committee that they table all bills before it providing for additions at this time to the State Highway System.

Submitted herewith is the complete analysis affecting proposed new additions to the Highway System as prepared by Mr. C. H. Parcell, Director of the Department of Public Works, and his engineers.

Respectfully submitted.

"SECTION 1. Article 1a is added to Chapter 1 of Division 1 of the Agricultural Code, to read:

Article 1a. Temporary Provisions, Conditions, Standards or Prices

35. The Legislature hereby declares that in order to protect the agricultural interests of the people of this State and to conserve the agricultural wealth of the State and protect the health and general welfare of our citizens during the continuance of the wars in which the United States is now engaged, and in order to maintain or enforce State laws, orders or regulations prescribing conditions, standards or prices it is necessary that provision be made for the promulgation of conditions, standards, or prices to take the place of those conditions, standards or prices which are rendered ineffectual or unenforceable by reason of any conflict with a Federal law, order or regulation made under the Federal war powers.

Whenever the director shall be notified in writing by the Attorney General of this State that any provision, condition, standard or price established by or under authority of this code is in conflict with a Federal law, order or regulation made under the Federal war powers, and is thereby rendered ineffectual and unenforceable, he shall prepare proposed new provisions, conditions, standards or prices to take the place of such provisions, conditions, standards or prices declared by the Attorney General to be in conflict as aforesaid, and shall as soon as reasonably possible call a public hearing to consider the same at a place within the State that he deems suitable.

Notice of such hearing shall be given at least five days prior thereto by publication in a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in the County of Sacramento and in a similar newspaper printed and published in the county where such hearing is held.

At such hearing the director shall receive and hear the evidence of all interested persons which shall be taken under oath, and all written evidence and exhibits introduced at such hearing shall be preserved and open to inspection by any interested person.

If from the evidence and data produced at such hearing and from such other knowledge and information as the director may have he shall find in writing:

1. That the conflict between the existing provision, condition, standard or price and the Federal law, order or regulation and the consequent unenforceability of such provision, condition, standard or price seriously impairs or prevents the effectuation of the purpose and intent of such provision, condition, standard or price or of the statute of which it is a part;

2. That the effectuation of the purpose and intent of such provision, condition, standard or price or of the statute of which it is a part will be best served by the adoption of such new provision, condition, standard or price as will remove such conflict with the Federal law, order or regulation;

3. That the new provision, condition, standard or price is as similar to the existing provision, condition, standard or price as is reasonably possible without being in conflict with such Federal law, order or regulation;

4. That the new provision, condition, standard or price will protect the agricultural interests of the people of this State and conserve the agricultural wealth of the State and protect the health and general welfare of our citizens during the life of the Federal law, order or regulation in conflict with the existing provision, condition, standard or price;

Then, and upon such findings, the director shall transmit his determination and recommendations thereon to the Governor. The Governor shall review the determination and recommendations so submitted and if he finds that the purposes and objectives of this section are to be attained thereby shall issue an order formulating and making effective such new provision, condition, standard or price.

Such new provisions, conditions, standards or prices so formulated and made effective shall continue in force and effect only during the life of such Federal law, order or regulation in conflict with the original existing provision, condition, standard or price, and while in force and effect shall supersede the original existing provision, condition, standard or price and be administered and enforced by the director in the same manner and to the same extent, and violations thereof shall be subject to the same penalties, as provided in the case of such original existing provisions, conditions, standards or prices.

Upon the termination of this act all provisions, conditions, standards and prices formulated and made effective hereunder shall immediately terminate and cease and be of no further force or effect and any and all original existing provisions, conditions, standards or prices so temporarily superseded shall be and become in full force and effect as though no new provision, condition, standard or price had been formulated and made effective hereunder. The same shall be true at any sooner time upon the expiration of the life of any such conflicting Federal law, order or regulation as to the particular provisions, conditions, standards or prices affected thereby.

As used in this section, "director" means Director of Agriculture, except with reference to Article 1 of Chapter 3 of Division 5 and Article 4 of Chapter 8 of Division 5 of this code; and as to those articles only, "director" means Director of Public Health.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

April 30, 1943

*To the Members of the Legislature
State of California
Fifty-fifth Session, 1943*

Pursuant to Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11, Chapter 130, Statutes of 1911, your Joint Committee of the Senate and Assembly has the honor to submit to you its report on the water problems of the State.

Your committee has held meetings throughout the counties of the State to the full extent of its time, giving an opportunity to people desirous of expressing their views concerning local water problems. The committee also has studied many previous reports prepared by other legislative committees; reports from the Department of Public Works; documents and reports prepared especially for the committee by city and county agencies, and numerous Federal reports and statutes bearing upon the problems of water conservation and flood control in the State of California. From these meetings and reports it has been possible to assemble certain facts and data concerning the State's water problems which it is believed will be helpful in this and future sessions of the Legislature in passing upon proposed bills relating to these problems.

The committee has not endeavored to pronounce any projects or policies, or express any economic or political views, but rather to determine what water problems exist in the State and present what they are and what the local people think about them.

As far as possible your committee has endeavored to obtain engineering data bearing upon the several points mentioned in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11.

Your committee has made certain findings in which it has considered projects of a war emergency nature and also the importance of water conservation projects as they relate to post-war economic adjustment, particularly in furnishing employment for our returning soldiers and those dislocated by closing of war industries and in developing valuable property needed for our growing population.

It is hoped that the list of legislative reports herein presented, as well as the general bibliography of State and Federal reports and orders, will be helpful as a ready reference and addition to important surveys heretofore made of our water problems.

Your committee has made several recommendations, the most important of which is to coordinate all water conservation activities of the State and to aid in an orderly development of all important projects which are so vital to California's welfare and future development.

Respectfully submitted.

BRADFORD S. CRITTENDEN, Chairman

FOREWORD

The orderly development of California's water resources has been a matter of deep concern to the people of this State for more than three-quarters of a century. Today the problem is of particular significance because of the part it can play in our war effort and the post-war period of adjustment.

Many agencies, local, State and Federal have contributed much in time, effort and money to the solution of various phases of the State's complex water problems, but much remains to be accomplished. Most of the problems remaining are so interrelated and interlocking that no single agency can hope to solve them single-handed. It is a work which will require the combined efforts of all.

This report is the contribution to that end of the Joint Interim Committee's study of the water problems of the State. It is hoped the material contained herein will serve the Legislature of the State of California in bringing about a clearer understanding of the problems which lie ahead and the possible steps which may be taken for their solution.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The committee wishes to extend its thanks to the following agencies for their helpful cooperation:

INTRODUCTION

Water is the most valuable of all of California's abundant natural resources. To its control and beneficial use can be traced the transition of the State from a vast, semiarid wilderness into the great agricultural and industrial empire it is today.

California's 156,803 square miles of land comprises nearly every extreme of topography, climate and soil to be found anywhere in the temperate and subtropical zones of the world. Three fourths of it is hilly or ruggedly mountainous; part of it sear desert, the remainder fertile valley lands. Its climatic extremes range from virtually no rainfall at all in some areas to the heaviest in the United States in others and from subzero temperatures to the highest recorded in the United States. Geographically the rainfall is not distributed in relation to the need. Seasonally the climate is divided into two distinct periods—a short, wet winter with the recurrent danger of floods and a long dry summer during which irrigation is necessary for the majority of crops.

But in spite of these apparent handicaps California ranks with Iowa as the leading State in the Nation in agricultural products. Her population has grown in less than a century from a few scattered settlements to more than 7,000,000 people. This has been made possible by the careful and consistent development of her natural resources, of which water is by far the most important.

The conservation and beneficial use of water has been a basic and fixed policy of the State for more than half a century. Prior to that time, although there was a general recognition of the need for such a policy little was done to establish it. Money was appropriated by the Legislature in 1866 and a survey made for a canal along the west side of the Sacramento Valley which was to be used for irrigation, navigation and incidental flood control. The Legislature also enacted some laws during these early years to assist in swamp land reclamation.

The first effort of the State to launch an extensive investigation of its water resources and offer a solution of the problem of water utilization was made in 1878 when the Legislature passed an act "to provide a system of irrigation, promote rapid drainage and improve navigation on the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers." Then, in 1887, the Legislature passed the Wright Irrigation District Act, a model for all subsequent irrigation district legislation in this and other western States.

Up until this time the development of irrigation had been under private leadership and financing, using the natural stream flow on local areas. But with the passage of the Wright Act larger enterprises were made possible through community effort. There followed a rapid expansion of irrigation districts until by 1920 there were approximately 4,500,000 acres of land under irrigation in the State. At the same time the upper mountain reaches of many streams were being harnessed for hydroelectric power production. These hydroelectric power developments were carried out almost entirely by privately owned utilities.

Flood control and reclamation of swamp and overflow lands, started at first by private enterprise, gradually became so complex it required the formation of districts so it might be handled as a community problem. The largest of these was the Sacramento-San Joaquin River Flood Control District, organized in 1913, in which local, Federal and State interests developed a system of overflow weirs and flood by-passes designed to protect more than a million acres of land in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and the Delta region.

By 1920, however, the rapid but uncoordinated growth in the utilization of water supplies resulted in serious problems. A heavy overdraft on underground supplies became evident through the rapid lowering of water tables in many areas. At the same time a series of dry years accelerated the decline in available supplies. In the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta salt water from San Francisco Bay advanced farther up the network of sloughs and channels than ever before inflicting heavy crop losses. Hundreds of water users in the Delta region filed suit against the upstream users to try and force by court action the release of sufficient water to meet their needs on the lower stream.

The Legislature, realizing that the problems involved were of such magnitude that they seriously affected the welfare of the entire State, appropriated funds for a general investigation of the State's water problems. The first of these appropriations was made in 1921 and during the following 10 years additional funds were provided to continue the investigations and studies which culminated in the formation of the State Water Plan. As the result of this Legislative interest California became a recognized leader throughout the Nation in dealing with her water problems. The State Water Plan was generally recognized as the most comprehensive example of regional planning for water development in the Nation.

The plan provides for a series of storage reservoirs and conveyance units to be developed under a coordinated system which would conserve waste waters and put them to the greatest beneficial use. Many units of the plan are multiple in purpose, designed for flood control and hydroelectric power production in addition to supplying water for irrigation, domestic and industrial needs. Some units are now in use, particularly the Colorado River development. Other units—those of the Central Valley Project—are under construction, and still others are under intensive investigation by various Federal agencies for war or post-war construction.

Culmination of the State's planning for the development of its water resources coincided with the beginning of the depression years. At that time, the prospect of spending a billion dollars on water development staggered the imagination, even though the development was to go on for a hundred years. But, with the years of depression, a new concept was born. The Federal Government accepted the responsibility of putting as many of the unemployed as possible to work on public works projects throughout the Nation. Billions of dollars of Federal funds were made available and Federal agencies interested themselves in local and regional problems that had heretofore been considered the sole responsibility of the area involved.

In the period, 1932 to 1942, because of its previous planning, California became the special interest of many Federal agencies. The United States Bureau of Reclamation took over construction of the Central Valley Project and investigation of other units of the State Water Plan. The United States Army Engineers, in addition to much construction for flood control launched a series of investigations covering nearly every important stream in the State. The National Resources Planning Board indorsed the State Water Plan for needed future construction. The United States Department of Agriculture and Federal Power Commission likewise interested themselves in California's problems.

The functions of many of these Federal agencies are overlapping and frequently interrelated. Some deal with regional problems, others solely with local problems. But their combined efforts have brought California face to face with a new era—an era of Federal concern in State matters. These agencies are prepared to spend, or recommend the expenditure of many millions of dollars of Federal funds in California. The State, however, still retains a paramount interest in these problems and their ultimate solution. Whereas previously she has dealt with these problems on her own, California now must provide the means by which the efforts of Federal agencies to assist in the solution of these problems are coordinated with the best interests of the State as a whole.

SCOPE OF INVESTIGATIONS PURSUANT TO S. C. R. NO. 11, CHAPTER 130, STATUTES 1941

Although S. C. R. No. 11, Chapter 130, Statutes 1941, was drawn primarily for the purpose of providing a legislative study of problems growing out of construction of the Central Valley Project, it immediately became apparent that a much broader field of investigation and study must be undertaken.

The last previous report on water problems made by a legislative committee was submitted to the Legislature in 1932. At that time, and during the previous 10 years, legislative committees were concerned chiefly with the working out of a coordinated plan for the development of the water resources of the State and particularly those of the great Central Valley. The work of these committees played an important part in the development of the State Water Plan and the launching of the Central Valley Project.

During the intervening 10 years most of the major water problems which then faced the State have remained solved only on paper. Construction work on the initial part of the State Water Plan, the Central Valley Project, has been under way for seven years, and it is apparent now that its completion will bring to the forefront a whole new series of problems relating to the conservation and use of water and power. In the meantime many new and varied problems have arisen. Federal participation in our reclamation, flood control, soil conservation and other kindred endeavors has increased to an unforeseen degree during this period. New agencies have sprung into being and in many cases the work of the agencies is overlapping or interrelated. The whole problem of water conservation and use has become increasingly more complicated.

It was immediately determined that the investigations of this committee should be of a State-wide nature and cover all problems related to water in as thorough a manner as time and other conditions would permit. Every county of the State had water problems of one type or another which this committee was requested to consider and make recommendations upon to the Legislature. As far as humanly possible the committee attempted to meet these requests. As many of these projects as could be included were inspected by the committee members. Meetings were held in as many localities throughout the State as possible in order to give the local interests an opportunity to present the needs of the various areas. Most of the problems presented were of a highly technical nature, the merit of which can be determined only by engineering studies.

The field trips of the committee carried it from the Oregon border to the Mexican border and into virtually every section of California. In addition to the ordinary problems of flood control, salinity control, water conservation, hydroelectric power development and soil erosion, the committee also carefully studied the problem of beach erosion which is of growing importance along the California coast. In all eight field trips were made either by the committee as a whole or by a subcommittee and 42 public meetings were held in as many communities.

RESUME OF WATER PROBLEMS OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

AS PRESENTED BY THE PEOPLE TO THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON WATER PROBLEMS

The following recital of data presented to your committee at the various hearings should not be considered as technical engineering statements; rather they are informal expressions from the local people of what they consider their local problems to be.

Furthermore, it should not be considered as a complete reference by any means to all of the problems of the State, or problems from all of the counties of the State.

It was impossible for the committee to visit all of the counties and to make an engineering check on the feasibility of the projects mentioned.

We think the recital of statements made to the committee by the local people, however, is extremely valuable in showing an almost universal demand for additional water conservation and flood control throughout the State.

CENTRAL VALLEY AREA

The great Central Valley of California extends roughly from Mt. Shasta on the north to the crest of the Tehachapis on the south and from the backbone of the Sierra Nevada to Coast Range. It contains approximately half of the land area of the State.

The valley is drained by the two principal rivers of California, the Sacramento and San Joaquin, which together with their tributaries contribute 51.6 per cent of the State's water resources. On the floor of the valley there are some 8,350,000 acres of first class lands which could be irrigated. At present only about 3,100,000 acres are under irrigation. The valley affords one of the greatest fields for future water development in the State.

CENTRAL VALLEY PROJECT

The Central Valley Project is still the outstanding uncompleted project of the State. It is still agreed by all that the completion of this entire project will aid Sacramento River navigation, protect the 400,000 acres of Delta lands from the damaging effect of salt water, furnish fresh water for industrial use, provide a surplus for the depleted water supply to 1,250,000 acres in the San Joaquin Valley, and generate a large amount of hydroelectric power.

It was originally intended that this project should be constructed by the State of California, for which the people approved revenue bonds in the sum of $170,000,000. During the depression, however, the United States Government, in order to aid the State of California and provide labor for thousands of unemployed, took over the entire project through the United States Bureau of Reclamation. The project is now being completed by this bureau. About $150,000,000 has been spent up to the present time.

Friant Dam is more than 99 per cent completed. Shasta Dam will probably be completed in 1944. The Contra Costa Canal has been nearly completed. The Cross Channel through the Delta, and the Delta-Mendota Canal have not as yet been started.

No new land has as yet been irrigated by this entire project. The only part of the project which is now partly in operation is the Contra Costa Canal. The completion of the project would mean many thousands of acres of new land placed under cultivation and would supply a part of the deficiency now existing in irrigation districts throughout the Central Valley. This project will not work as planned unless it is all completed.

Conditions are the same today in regard to this project as were expressed in the original Bailey Report of December 30, 1926, which contained the following statement:

"It is the opinion of the committee that the results of the studies as set forth will be of exceedingly great value to the future progress of the State. However, the committee feels that it would be lacking in candor if it did not point out at this time that the value of such a plan depends entirely upon its ultimate completion and operation as outlined, no matter whether constructed by private interests, by the State or Federal Governments, or by any combination of them.

"In order to obtain the benefits of coordination which is the essential feature, it is necessary that the plan be adopted as a whole and a policy be devised that will insure its progressive execution in harmony with existing, pending, and future local projects, and that when completed, the whole be operated in accordance with the method outlined."

This report was signed by well-known engineers, whose names are as follows: Luis C. Hill, J. B. Lippincott, Wm. Mulholland, A. Kempkey, A. J. Cleary, G. A. Elliott, B. A. Etcheverry, F. C. Herrmann, W. L. Huber, with F. E. Benner, L. S. Ready and C. S. Ridley cooperating with the committee.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

The committee recommends as a war measure, the immediate completion of the Central Valley Project as a whole and completed project.

CLIKAPUDI WATER PROJECT

The Clikapudi Project lies on the east side of the Sacramento River opposite the City of Redding, just south of the Pit River arm of the Shasta Reservoir, and could be irrigated by the construction of a tunnel through the ridge near Sheep Rock. It is a 55,000 acre project and has been prominent in the minds of the people for many years.

IRON CANYON PROJECT

The study of the supply of some 87,500 acres of valuable land in Tehama County has been before the Federal Government and the State of California for many years. It is an important project. It contemplates a dam or dams to be erected somewhere near Red Bluff for the purpose of impounding flood waters.

Many resolutions in regard to the numerous projects have been filed with the committee, and space does not permit their inclusion here. However, we are including the following resolution as typical and the importance of this project, like other projects, shows the earnestness of the people in regard to it.

"WHEREAS, For many years the Sacramento River has been a source of much damage due to uncontrolled flood waters sweeping through the valley; and

"WHEREAS, The Central Valley Water Project now contains a clause providing for a dam or dams to be erected somewhere near Red Bluff for the purpose of impounding these flood waters for irrigating our lands in our two great valleys, and

"WHEREAS, Such a dam or dams would prevent floods in the Sacramento Valley, aid the Central Valley Project by providing the additional water to fight the encroachment of salinity in the delta regions as well as additional water for the San Joaquin Valley; would provide necessary water for the economic irrigation and development of 87,500 acres of valuable land in Tehama County and many more thousands of acres in other counties of the Sacramento Valley, and

"WHEREAS, The citizens of this county have long sought the erection of such a dam; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the members of the Tehama County Water Resources Committee, by virtue of the authority vested in us by the citizens of Tehama County, do recommend that the Joint Committee on Water Problems be petitioned to lend its influence to this worthy project helping in every way possible to influence Congress for necessary funds for carrying out the Amendment to the Central Valley Project Act of 1933 which provides for these dams or dam."

WILLOWS MEETING

Before terminating our comments on the problems of the Sacramento Valley we should mention that at the meeting at Willows the people expressed the view that their desire was for immediate development of cheap power so that they could develop industry in that section of the valley. Water for additional irrigation was not needed at the present time but they desired a reservation by the State of water to irrigate the section surrounding Willows when the economic conditions required more water. This thought was brought out also at the Angels Camp meeting and also by other representatives of the mountain counties.

They expressed alarm that the conservation of the waters of the mountain streams for valley use might deprive the mountain counties of water for irrigation, domestic and industrial use in the future.

In other words, they are against the principle of developing one part of the State at the expense of another and they wish some assurance that in the future they will be able to obtain additional water supply.

FLOOD CONTROL

The Red Bluff, Chico, Colusa, Marysville and Stockton meetings brought out the very serious problems of flood control in the Sacramento Valley. Above Chico the Sacramento River is filled with snags and debris. Two thousand acres of land, originally assessed at $160,000 have been taken off the assessment rolls completely.

It would seem that the burden of clearing the river of snags and sand bars and protecting the land from overflow is more than the individual land owners can pay. Six thousand acres in the Butte Basin seems to have been greatly damaged because of the flowage of waters across this tract in larger quantities than before the reclamation system was constructed. Seepage and storm waters flow down across the land. If wet years continue the farmers believe they will be forced to move out of this section which has been a very productive area. The completion of Shasta Dam may help this problem to some extent.

At the Colusa meeting, it was shown that seepage is the principal problem. This area thus affected extends from a few miles north of Colusa to Knights Landing, a total of approximately 50 miles. The people there feel that the changing of the course of the river by the State had greatly augmented this damaging condition.

The committee's files contain a very carefully prepared statement by Assemblyman Seth Millington on the problems of this section. The following is a brief quotation from his introduction:

"Colusa lies at the head of navigation in the Sacramento River, that navigation, however, being limited to winter and spring months when the river is carrying extra water as many years ago, due to the filling of the stream and more important water diversion by irrigationists, the head of navigation had dropped in the summertime to the point of confluence of the Sacramento and Feather Rivers and boats have had difficulty for the last twenty years of even reaching Knights Landing in the summer months.

"It is interesting to note in the early days the larger river boats made Red Bluff at all stages of the river and at times were even able to reach Redding. For the past twenty-five years the head of navigation has been dropped from Red Bluff to Chico Landing, then to Butte City, then to Colusa, and today they can hardly reach Knights Landing in the summer time.

"The Jackson report, which followed the great flood of March, 1907, provided for the control of flood water of the reaches of the Sacramento River and for distribution by a system of weirs, supplementing the earlier Dabney report which had contemplated straightening out the river bends and moving the levees back, giving a greater flowage of water within the control of the area of the levees.

"The flood of 1907 demonstrated the impossibility of restraining flood water within any channel limited by levees and as a consequence the Jackson report recommended a system of weirs and by-passes."

In other words, it was shown at the Marysville meeting that the reclamation of some 314,000 acres of swamp lands and the construction of artificial by-passes have caused higher flood planes, which in turn resulted in the necessity of increasing the height of levee systems over that which had originally been assumed to be adequate; that this has resulted in unanticipated detriment to farm lands in certain sections of Yuba, Sutter and Colusa counties. And so problems of flood control were presented covering the area from Marysville to Sacramento and from Sacramento to Stockton.

The Cosumnes River is deserving of mention here. It is very destructive in storm time and causes considerable damage to the Delta area through which it flows.

HYDRAULIC MINING AND FLOOD CONTROL

Happily it would seem that the conflict between the hydraulic miners and the farmers along the Sacramento River has been settled and there is a spirit of cooperation between them.

PROBLEMS SURROUNDING STOCKTON

Stockton, because of its location at the junction of the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers and being the nearest city to the Delta lands, islands and cross-channels, and being the port located at the terminal of deep water used for maritime transportation, presents a group of diversified problems.

First, this section is greatly interested in the problem of flood control. All of the islands within the Delta are protected by levees. These levees are threatened to the breaking point whenever there is an outstanding flood on the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers.

The people are worried about the proposed cross-channel to be constructed as one of the units of the Central Valley Project. Stockton itself is sometimes threatened from overflow from the Calaveras River. The city has spent more than $3,000,000 for the construction of a diverting canal. Then, there are several small streams that do much damage in flood time to the farm lands of the county. The overflow of the San Joaquin River in the southern part of the county also presents a serious problem.

No greater number of problems growing out of flood control, water conservation, reclamation and water transportation could be found in any one locality than were found in the environs of Stockton. Most of these problems are of such magnitude that the local interests will be unable to solve them without State and Federal aid. One great help to this community, as well as in other parts of the State would be for the State to assist in advancing money enough so that rights-of-way could be paid for in order to get help from the War Department under the rule adopted by the War Department guiding them in the projects of flood control.

In Stanislaus and Merced counties there is much anxiety about the construction of Friant Dam for the diversion of waters from the San Joaquin River before the cross-channel and Delta-Mendota canal of the Central Valley Project are constructed. The irrigation districts in San Joaquin, Stanislaus and Merced counties, that is many of them, derive their water by pumping from return waters of the San Joaquin River. This water is not allowed to continue in summertime to flow down the San Joaquin River. The people fear that it will be ruinous to several hundreds of thousands of acres on the West Side of the San Joaquin River in Stanislaus, Merced and San Joaquin counties. This is one reason why heretofore we have recommended the completion of the Central Valley Project as one complete project.

Again, the people in this section are anxious concerning the effect of the cross-channel through the Delta for fear it will cause a raising of the water levels in the Delta and cause seepage or will interfere with the deep water channel to Stockton.

The original plan proposed by the State was a simpler method than that proposed by the Federal Government and caused less alarm in this section of the State. The success of the Central Valley Project, reaching from Bakersfield to Redding, depends upon a prompt solution to the construction of these units of the Central Valley to be located in San Joaquin County.

MODESTO MEETING

The Modesto Irrigation District presents almost a perfect example of water conservation, power development and drainage control. At its own expense, by the construction of Don Pedro Dam some twenty years ago, it has developed sufficient water for all of the lands within the district. Such lands are quite fertile and productive and by the development of power the cost of both water and power in this area has been greatly lessened. The District has sufficient water for the furnishing of power through the winter months and still has water remaining in the dam for irrigation in the summer months. However, there is reliance on the P. G. & E. for standby service in the event of a shortage of water in the summertime.

It was with much satisfaction that the committee viewed the successful development of irrigated lands by irrigation districts throughout the San Joaquin Valley. The law controlling these districts has been perfected until it is quite satisfactory.

At the meetings held between Stockton and Fresno nearly all of the representatives of the various irrigation districts such as the Modesto, Merced, Gustine, Banta-Carbona, West Side and West Stanislaus expressed anxiety over the effect of the construction of Friant Dam and its operation before building the cross-channel and the Delta-Mendota Canal units of the Central Valley Project.

POWER

It is quite clear from the experience of the irrigation districts in the San Joaquin Valley that where the storage capacity of water is sufficient to furnish adequate water for irrigation in summertime and also a surplus of water that may be used in wintertime for power, that power can be relied upon, either through public ownership or by the sale to private companies, to a great extent to lower the costs of power and the cost of water. Where, however, the capacity for the storage of water is not sufficient to furnish a constant flow of water for the generation of firm power the year around and also have sufficient water for irrigation in summertime then it can only be relied upon partially for the payment of water costs and or the lowering of power costs.

This subject was gone into quite carefully at the Modesto, Merced, Fresno, Visalia and Bakersfield meetings and the transcript on this subject expresses the diversified views of the people.

TULARE LAKE

Tulare Lake presents a problem of considerable magnitude. It is the sump into which drain part of the waters of Kings River and all of the surplus waters of Kaweah, Tule and Kern Rivers. Prior to the extensive use of the waters of these streams for irrigation their inflow maintained a continuous lake. In recent years, however, the diversion of water from these streams for irrigation purposes has permitted farming of practically all the area, and at times the entire lakebed, but in years of heavy run-off it is impossible to use all of these waters for irrigation purposes, and considerable amounts flow into the lakebed.

Reclamation by means of huge levees has been undertaken on a large scale, and this wonderfully productive area has been a source of large crop production. Much has already been done by private interests in the reclamation of these lands which are quite similar to the Delta lands in the San Joaquin Valley. From 50,000 to 100,000 acres considered suitable for agriculture are frequently flooded during a series of wet seasons. It is considered that this problem can be solved to a great extent and that it is feasible to solve it and its solution will bring much wealth to the State.

There is no more productive area in California, and the permanent reclamation of some 300,000 acres or more can best be accomplished by building of the Pine Flat Dam on the upper reaches of Kings River, which project has been favorably reported upon by the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation, and would probably have been under way except for the advent of the war.

At the time of the committee's visit there was considerable water in the lake and there had been a break in one of the levees which was then being repaired by means of large carry-alls and dredgers. Since that time additional levees have broken, causing the inundation of between 25,000 and 30,000 acres of wonderful crops of flax, wheat and barley, at a great loss to the war production effort.

Moving pictures of the devastation caused by flood waters were shown at the evening meeting of the committee held at the Wreden Ranch near Hanford, at which meeting there was a large gathering of local citizens, in addition to the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation engineers, R. S. Calland and R. B. Williams.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

The committee recommends that everything possible be done to expedite the building of the Pine Flat Dam at the earliest possible time.

COMMENTS

Before finishing the comment on the San Joaquin Valley, its problems and its districts, it should be again called to the attention of the people of the State and to the Federal Government that conditions in Tulare, Kern and Kings counties, and parts of other counties where they have suffered from a lowering water table thereby losing hundreds of acres of citrus trees and other valuable orchards, are just as bad now as when the movement was started 20 years ago for the construction of the Central Valley Project.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA AREA

The Southern California area is the most populous of the State and the section in which available water resources have been the most highly developed. The great metropolitan centers of Los Angeles and San Diego, with their attendant and vitally important war industries and military establishments have spent hundreds of millions in acquiring their present water supplies. Many additional millions will have to be spent before the water needs of this area are solved. Imperial, Riverside, San Bernardino and Orange Counties all have problems as pressing as those of Los Angeles and San Diego. In addition to the need for more water there are serious problems of flood and control and beach protection.

COLORADO RIVER PROJECT

The Colorado River Project, and all of its many diversified developments, has not been brought to the attention of the Legislature to any great extent since bills were passed authorizing the State to enter into contracts with other States and to recommend treaties and to provide for contracts necessary to the construction of the All-American Canal.

In general, this project is well under way. Drains, power lines, conduits and necessary auxiliary mills have been completed, and water and power distribution provided. However, this does not mean that all controversies in regard to water rights are ended, that all water developments have been made and that there is nothing more to be done.

At the meeting of the committee in California a history of the past activities, particularly as they concern the All-American Canal, was presented. This is too extensive to reproduce here. A few salient points might be reviewed to refresh the memories of the legislators on this subject.

It will be remembered that the Imperial Valley received its first water about 1901 and this was developed by the local people. It was prior to that time a barren desert. In a similar way Coachella Valley developed along with Imperial Valley on a smaller scale. Coachella Valley developed its water from pumping from deep wells. The original water was brought into this part of the State by the easiest course; that is, the canal system through Mexico. The people had little knowledge of the damage from floods, shortage of water, and of the international complications of obtaining water from a foreign country. They had no authority to build a dam in the Colorado River because of the interest of other States in this water. Eventually the water matter came up in a bill before Congress and as the result of the passage of that bill Boulder Dam and the All American Canal were provided for and constructed.

The Colorado River drains one thirteenth of all of the area of the United States. The other States in the Colorado River Basin fear that California will take a major portion of the water. All of this developed many major controversies in Congress. Legislation was finally passed in 1928 and again in 1929. A compact was signed by the representatives of the Colorado River Basin in 1922. Arizona has not yet ratified the compact. In California the water is being divided between Palo Verde Valley, Yuma, Coachella, Metropolitan Water District and San Diego. Arizona is going ahead with projects using the Colorado River water.

The recital of the above facts briefly will call to our minds the great number of issues to be settled in the perfecting of California's water rights and the development of this great project. These duties fall primarily upon the Colorado River Board. They now want us to be informed here in the Legislature of their several problems and to be ready to help them in the Legislature or in Congress and also they desire help in financing the activities of the board so that they may continue to protect the interests of California in Congress and elsewhere in issues arising between our State and the several States, as well as between our State and the sister republic of Mexico.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

The committee recommends that the State Legislature and all offices of the State assist in any way when called upon by the Colorado River Board to do whatever fairly and reasonably can be done to assist in the protection of California's water rights and the early completion of all of the Colorado River projects. We further recommend that a reasonable appropriation be made to assist the Colorado River Board in the performance of its duties.

CITY OF SAN DIEGO

San Diego has had the greatest growth of any city of its size in the United States in the last four years. In 1940 its population was 203,000. Today, reliable estimates show a population of approximately 370,000. This population increase is due primarily to the development of vital war industries and does not include 150,000 to 200,000 of the armed forces of the United States, all of whom are drawing on San Diego for their water supply. In other words San Diego has a population of more than half a million people, the majority of whom are engaged in war activities and all dependent upon the city for their water supply.

At present the city has a water supply—a net safe yield—sufficient to care for a population of 266,000 people. It was all developed by San Diego through its own resources without State or Federal aid. This water supply was deemed sufficient to meet the needs of normal growth until 1950. With the projected works at San Vicente, now under construction, it was estimated the additional supply brought in would meet normal growth needs until about 1960 when the population would reach approximately 320,000 people.

Instead of this normal, orderly growth more than 20 years of development has been telescoped into a period of less than two years. It has, in fact, brought about an extremely critical condition and one of great hazard to the city's war contribution.

Mr. Fred Pyle, San Diego hydraulic engineer, has estimated that the city's present supply of stored water would last less than three years if a series of dry years similar to the period 1897 to 1904 were to occur. During that period, which was the driest on record, there was not sufficient rainfall in the entire watershed to take care of evaporation losses from reservoirs.

San Diego's bonding margin is exceedingly limited. The city already has been put to great expense in its attempt to provide needed facilities for its mushrooming population. However, some immediate solution must be found for its critical water problem. Approximately 50 per cent of the potential city water supply in San Diego County remains undeveloped. From 30 to 50 million dollars is needed at an early date to develop the water supply of the San Diego River, Santa Isabel, San Pasqual and San Luis Rey River. The latter is the only source of supply for the Fallbrook Utility District, City of Oceanside, Carlsbad Mutual Water Company, Escondido Mutual Water Company, City of Escondido, and the Vista Irrigation District. San Diego also has undeveloped water resources on Cottonwood Creek, a tributary of the Tia Juana River at Barrett and Marron damsites. The possibility of getting water from the Tia Juana River watershed at the Marron site will depend upon negotiations with the Mexican Government.

San Diego's vast war industries are directly dependent upon the city's water supply and additional supplies are needed to assure the continuation of these war industries and military establishments.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

The committee recommends an investigation by the State Engineer's office in cooperation with the City and County of San Diego, of San Diego's entire water problem, including the development of water from the eastern slope and the bringing of Colorado River water to San Diego.

MOJAVE RIVER

Another section of the State is coming to the front with its water and flood control problems. Little thought has heretofore been given to this area by the Legislature. It is the section surrounding Barstow and Mojave. The United States War Department is developing very extensive military activities of a diversified nature which calls for the locating therein of thousands of families. Additional water is needed for irrigation and for domestic use to supply these ever-growing demands.

The local taxpayer seems to be unable to bear this burden alone. The Mojave River is of special interest because it will produce water for irrigation, industry and domestic use. After it has run its course for 120 miles it sinks into the desert sands. The project, like many others, is coming into the purview of importance because of the great development in this State. It seems to be feasible and the record of this project is quite interesting.

COACHELLA PROBLEMS

Three problems were presented to the committee. The first was in regard to the damage due to soil erosion, resulting from fires and extreme pasturing of livestock in the mountains. The second was in regard to destruction caused by flash floods. The third problem, and most important perhaps, was in regard to the finishing of the construction of the All-American Canal to Coachella Valley. The board of directors of Coachella Valley Water District presented the following resolution:

"WHEREAS, The Commissioner of the United States Bureau of Reclamation has recently determined to reject all bids which he has received for the construction of the third section of the All-American Canal to Coachella Valley; and

WHEREAS, The budget recently presented to the Congress by the President of the United States contains no provision for further construction of the All-American Canal to Coachella Valley, but does contain provision for further construction upon the Gila reclamation project in Arizona; and

WHEREAS, By reason of rapid depletion of the underground water supply of the Coachella Valley it is imperative that a supplemental supply of water for irrigation in said valley be obtained at the earliest possible date; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Board of Directors of Coachella Valley County Water District, That said district does hereby request the Joint Interim Committee on Water Problems of the Legislature of California now in session, to urge upon all in authority in the Federal Government, to make prompt provision for the completion of the All-American Canal to Coachella Valley at the earliest possible date."

THE PROBLEM AT NEEDLES

It has been mentioned heretofore in the report that in the solution of some of our problems we are creating additional problems. This seems to be the situation at Needles. Since the construction of Parker and Boulder Dams, serious trouble has arisen at the little railroad town of Needles. Inasmuch as the committee only spent one day at Needles it is impossible to give an exact estimate of damage or a legal determination of the cause of the damage, but it was easy to see that approximately a hundred town lots, upon which were modest homes, were completely damaged by water which appeared to be backing up from the Colorado River. Also, the sewage system of the city and extensive railroad developments were in danger.

Here a lot of people of modest means have been made homeless, their property destroyed and health endangered, and neither the City of Los Angeles, nor the State of California, nor the Federal Government have spent money to meet this situation.

This committee can not make a legal determination of the damages as between the City of Los Angeles, the Federal Government, and/or the State of California. It isn't within its jurisdiction. Any person can see the injustice of this situation. The Colorado River Project was developed for the benefit of the people of the State of California, to the interest of the United States, and for the special benefit of Los Angeles.

The damages to the people of Needles should be paid without their being required to bring suit.

RIVERSIDE COUNTY PROBLEMS

The problems of flood control and water conservation for Riverside County brought forth some 16 different projects within the county. The estimated cost of these projects is approximately $9,276,500, and each individual unit would cost from $42,500 to $4,081,000, the latter amount being the estimate for the Temescal Flood Control Dam. The county is not only interested in flood control problems, but in the conservation of water. Water from without the boundaries of the county is needed.

In 1928 the Legislature passed an act authorizing a study and report on the Santa Ana River, dated July 1, 1928, which was made by the State Engineer. The recommendations of this report have not as yet all been carried out. However, the large flood control dam has been built on the Santa Ana River to impound many hundred acre-feet of water, by the United States Flood Control District, under the direction of the United States Army Engineers and paid for by the United States Government. Notwithstanding appropriations by the State Legislature and the Federal Government, there are many projects in this county unfinished which are necessary for the development of the county. The retarding of the flow of streams leading down from the watershed of the mountains into this county and spreading the water over debris cones is one of the main methods of storing water so that it can be pumped when needed upon the land. The composition of the soil in this county perhaps is better adapted to this method of irrigation than in any other part of the State. The people of the county are intensely interested in water conservation and have, themselves, spent much money on their projects.

SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY PROBLEMS

The last report to this committee on water problems of the State recommended State aid for the solution of the many water conservation and flood control problems of this county, and called attention to the great damage resulting from floods. Since that time much has been accomplished by local interests. The problem still remains serious and of the same nature as when the committee visited this county some years ago.

The highly productive nature of much of the soil in this county and the great increase in population continues to give importance to water conservation and flood control.

CITY OF COLTON

A serious problem confronts the city because of flood waters coming down from the San Bernardino Mountains, through the various creeks and channels, especially Lytle Creek, breaking over and through its banks and flooding a large area of the city. A recent flood suffered by this city seriously affected transportation, interrupting military and civilian traffic on the trancontinental railroads and highways, and causing an estimated damage to streets and utilities of the city of $200,000, not including the amount of damage sustained by residential homes and real property. This was the second serious flood within five years. A fair estimate of damage by these two floods would be approximately $1,500,000.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

So far as is reasonable and practicable, the State should make available engineering help and advance appropriations, giving such assistance as it can to the county in obtaining Federal aid. It is hoped that the Army Engineers will make available funds sufficient to solve the problems where they are of too serious a nature to be handled by local control.

ORANGE COUNTY PROBLEMS

In this county some 22 projects are concerned with storing and two or more have to do with spreading basins and the construction of dams in the streams from the local mountains. Notwithstanding the fact that this is one of the most wealthy agricultural counties for its size in the West, nevertheless it is suffering from destruction by floods and it is important to the State and the State should take cognizance of it. The studies of the problems of flood control are well under way in this county and it is hoped that Federal aid can be obtained. Like all of the counties with similar problems the State should stand ready to aid wherever practicable.

CENTRAL COASTAL AREA

The Central Coast Basin includes a group of counties which have diversified problems of water conservation with which they have been struggling for many years. The growth in population throughout this section of the State makes these problems more acute and also more important. Their projects have not been brought before the State Legislature at any time with the force of some of the projects of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys and southern California.

The committee feels that the varied problems of water conservation as they appear throughout the State should be mentioned, and California should have them all in mind. Therefore, considerable space in this report is given to describing individual county projects.

SANTA CLARA WATER PROBLEMS

Santa Clara Valley represents one of the most highly developed agricultural areas of the State and because of its moderate climate and rainfall which is in excess of that of the Central Valley, it is a very popular location for country homes.

The ever-increasing pumping of water from underground stratas upon the orchard and vegetable lands, however, has caused a dangerous lowering of the water table. Some years ago the Legislature passed an act providing for the organization of an irrigation district suitable to the peculiar requirements of Santa Clara County. The complete development of this project seems to depend upon the control of the waters of Los Gatos Creek. Unfortunately there has been a difference of opinion between the City of San Jose, the orchardists and the City of Los Gatos, about the location of dam sites on this creek. Adding to this trouble the State has disregarded the petitions of the people of San Jose and the valley in the location of the highway from Los Gatos to Santa Cruz and has constructed it within possible reservoir sites, particularly one, which is the choice of the San Jose representatives and those of other localities within the valley.

It is only fair, however, to mention that the people of Los Gatos, represented by their mayor, Mr. Stanley Mills, opposed the building of the contemplated dam on Los Gatos Creek because they believe it would mar the scenic beauty of the country, that its location was on the San Andreas Fault, which made it unsafe, that there are other dam sites available, that because of its unsafe location it would endanger the lives of people located beneath it. It is a pity that this district can not be permitted and/or assisted in conserving these waters for the development of this beautiful valley. The State should give it attention and try to work out a plan.

The future development of this very fertile area of the State depends so much on the solution of controlling the water of Los Gatos Creek that we believe the State should assist in the bringing about the best solution of this problem. It is certainly unfortunate that the Highway Department disregarded the petitions of the people of this valley in the location of the State highway before the water problems were settled.

Copious engineering reports have been filed and every problem has been met and solved with the exception of the dam in the Los Gatos Canyon; that is dependent upon the relative economic value of moving the State highway as against the value of the water to be impounded in the proposed dam. The value of the water impounded should be equal to the cost of moving that highway.

Now, even though it results in great economic loss, the problems, we believe should be solved in a safe and feasible manner. The State and Nation will need all of the agricultural products and fruits that can be produced in this most productive valley.

BEN LOMOND PROBLEMS

No place illustrates the ever growing need for the control of our waters more than the problems presented at our meeting at Ben Lomond. This beautiful little settlement nestled as it is on the banks of the San Lorenzo River is surrounded by hills covered with beautiful redwood trees and decorated everywhere with ferns and shrubbery which remain green the year around. Summer homes, with a population of over 17,000 people, are located in this scenic canyon.

The water problems involve flood control, water conservation, and fire protection. They have organized a county water district and their plan is to construct dams for flood control. This would prevent a damage of some $165,000 each wet year. They estimate its cost at $500,000. Eventually, they plan for seven reservoirs with a system of pressure mains. This would furnish water for the prevention of fire in this territory, and provide domestic water as well for Ben Lomond and the surrounding country.

This is one of California's choice recreational spots and is becoming more and more popular with the people from out of the State as well as Californians. Notwithstanding it may not have been adopted as a State or Federal project, it should receive more attention from the State and Federal Governments.

Our records will show pictures of flood damage as well as quite carefully prepared data in regard to the entire project of the San Lorenzo River, not only at the location of Ben Lomond, but also throughout the entire basin of the San Lorenzo River and the problems which develop as it approaches Santa Cruz.

SANTA CRUZ COUNTY

The master plan of the shoreline development for Santa Cruz County, which is the entire shoreline from Waddell Bluffs to Sunset Beach was presented to the committee. This plan has been presented to the Board of Army Engineers for investigation and will then be referred to the Federal Erosion Board, created in 1936. Santa Cruz intends to do all of the preliminary work and be ready to go on with construction work when the war is over.

The protection of the beaches in this county means much to the recreational value of the county. Sea Cliff alone entertains 75,000 people a year, and residents expect this number to be doubled in 10 years. This is one of the great recreational areas for San Francisco Bay region as well as the entire State. The project here, like many of the coastal projects, should be ready for construction upon the termination of the war.

The importance of flood control and water conservation for the benefit of agriculture should not be overlooked here. The United States Bureau of Reclamation has made a study of the San Lorenzo River projects. It has expressly found a need for water supply and sanitation control. The Forestry Department also is interested in the up-stream water problems as well as the Department of Agriculture.

The projects on the Pajaro River are under consideration by the United States Bureau of Reclamation.

SAN BENITO COUNTY PROBLEMS

The water problems in the Hollister area have been studied by a recent flood survey of the Pajaro River by the United States Department of Agriculture. Hollister, south Santa Clara Valley and Pacheco Pass, which are irrigated areas, are believed to be facing a serious shortage of irrigation waters. Up to the present time the depletion of ground water supply has been most serious in the Hollister area, although the above-normal rainfall in the last few years, together with the spreading of water, has greatly improved the ground water elevation. The water table in the Hollister district lowered 45 feet between 1915 and 1934. Between 1922-1934 the decline was attributed to less than normal precipitation. Between 1934 and the present there has been a recovery of 27 feet due to increased rainfall, but it can not be anticipated that a heavy annual rainfall will continue.

Quite a complete technical report has been made in Bulletin No. 746, March, 1941, by the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., pertaining to this area. There are now some 20,277 acres of land under irrigation in San Benito County. The area includes valley lands along the San Benito River and its tributaries, Trespina Creek, as well as along Pacheco Creek.

QUALITY OF WATER

This area has a problem growing out of the quality of the water supply. It is thought that excessive concentration of boron in the water is responsible for some of the poor conditions of orchards and other plantings in portions of the Hollister area. The water used for irrigation comes from the pumping of underground water. The problem of clearing this water or the land from an excess of boron salt, which the layman would ordinarily call a form of alkali, seems to be rather serious in some parts surrounding Hollister.

There is a large acreage, however, reaching up into Pacheco Pass, which has been used profitably for orchard, vegetables and sugar beets.

The people should be given aid and careful guidance by both the State and Federal authorities in solving the aforementioned problems in this area.

MONTEREY AND SAN LUIS OBISPO PROBLEMS

The counties of Monterey and San Luis Obispo have been working on a solution of flood control and water conservation in the Salinas River Basin for the past 10 years. Recommendations by the flood control and water conservation committees of the two counties have concluded the need for impounding dams and reservoirs in the Salinas River and its main tributaries to take care of the situation.

A preliminary report on the Salinas River Basin was compiled by the State Division of Water Resources in 1933, financed jointly by the State of California and the counties of San Luis Obispo and Monterey. In December, 1937, the counties requested the United States Army Engineers and the United States Department of Agriculture to make a survey of Salinas Valley for a report of flood control and runoff and waterflow retardation. The Army Engineers completed the report, which was filed with the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors. However, the report was unfavorable because of the ratio of costs to benefits derived, notwithstanding the benefits to be obtained from water conservation. Flood control and water conservation committees of the two counties appealed on the findings of the Engineers' report on November 17, 1941, and the United States District Engineer at San Francisco is now reviewing this report.

The Salinas Valley Basin has an annual valuation of crops amounting to $17,200,000. The average annual loss of farming land caused by erosion by floods in the Salinas River is from 150 to 200 acres.

Fort Ord, which is located in the Salinas River Basin, would also be endangered by the high waters of the Salinas River and a difficult situation would be created if, due to floods, that area became an island, the committee was told by Major Herbert R. Trumin, United States Army Engineer.

GUAYULE

The need for an adequate water supply for the development of guayule in the Salinas Valley, has become vitally important to National defense since the war has virtually shut off the country's imports of rubber from the Far East. During the summer of 1942, 350 million seedlings were produced in the Salinas nurseries, which is sufficient to plant 32,000 acres of guayule during the fall and winter of 1942-1943.

PAJARO RIVER

The Pajaro River, which at times during the winter months covers the entire valley with its waters, creates a serious flood problem. As a result of the 1937-1938 floods, the United States Army Engineers made a report of the situation. The City of Watsonville and the Pajaro Valley formed districts and put in a temporary levee which has been very successful, alleviating that area, but still leaving the remainder of the Valley at the mercy of the flood waters.

MOSS LANDING

The Salinas River mouth at Moss Landing serves as the outlet for a very large drainage area consisting of 137,400 acres. Due to its shallowness and narrowness, this outlet is entirely inadequate since it does not allow the water to flow out fast enough on the low tides into the ocean. This results in the water level immediately in back of the outlet being at times as much as six feet higher than the ocean low tide level. By providing an adequate outlet to the sea, a harbor at Moss Landing would increase the total acreage under cultivation and reclaim valueless marsh lands.

The United States Army Engineers are now in the process of making a resurvey of the project.

SAN LUIS OBISPO AREA

The problems in this vicinity involve a need for soil and water conservation and the reforestation of the watershed.

In 1936 the WPA proposed a project to transmit water from the Rinconada Dam to the northern part of the valley, constructing reservoirs along the line. The water could be distributed by gravity as there is a drop in elevation of over 700 feet between Rinconada and Paso Robles. With water at the north end of the county, 250,000 acres could be supplied. The desert area lying east of San Luis Obispo has been creeping toward the coast at the rate of five miles a year.

Like other conditions in the State, the water conservation problems of these counties should receive more State attention.

SANTA MARIA VALLEY

This valley comprising 244 square miles, is the flood plain of the Sisquoc and Cuyama rivers, with the Santa Maria River flowing through the northerly portion. The valley is one of the richest and most fertile agricultural areas in the State due to material eroded from the surrounding hills and deposited by the Santa Maria River and its tributaries. This entire area is subjected to periodic floods which shift the channel back and forth, enlarging the river bed and destroying large areas of rich farming lands, as well as washing away highways and bridges.

The county authorities have attempted to hold the river at fixed points by bridgeheads and jetties. The jetties serve for flood control and the use of adjacent lands as spreading grounds for replenishment of the underground water supply. Engineering studies reveal that there is an alarming depletion of ground waters due to intensive cultivation.

In 1931, J. B. Lippincott, consulting engineer of Los Angeles, made a survey and report on water conservation and flood control of the Santa Maria River. The report recommended a series of large flood control or retardation dams on the lower end of the Sisquoc and Cuyama rivers which would retard peak flood run-off and store flood waters which could be released slowly to the lower reaches of the Santa Maria River, where the natural streambed would act as spreading grounds to replenish the underground reservoirs.

The county authorized a similar conservation and flood control investigation by an engineering firm in 1938. Their report recommended the building of a new dam on the Santa Ynez River and the enlargement of Gibraltar Dam. These dams would store flood waters only, but the reservoirs were to be made available to the coastal area through tunnels and distribution pipelines, while the natural flow of the stream would supply the lower valley.

These preliminary reports form a basis for a complete water plan for Santa Barbara County. The Army Engineers and the Department of Agriculture have made preliminary and final investigations on the Santa Maria and Santa Ynez rivers.

The Army Engineers' report on the Santa Maria River recommends a levee system along the river from the confluence of the Sisquoc and Cuyama rivers to the sea at an estimated cost of $12,000,000, with a contribution from local interests of $643,000.

The Department of Agriculture flood control reports on both rivers concern upstream flood control projects such as water retardation by check dams and natural cover, soil erosion and reforestation.

The board of supervisors of San Barbara County have entered into a contract with the Division of Soils of the University of California for completion of a county-wide soil analysis report.

SANTA BARBARA PROBLEMS

In 1919 the City of Santa Barbara constructed the Gibraltar Dam on the Santa Ynez River and since that time has obtained most of its water from this source. The Montecito County Water District, which comprises an area just east of Santa Barbara, constructed Juneau Dam further upstream which furnishes a large part of the district's supply.

Gibraltar Reservoir had an original capacity of about 15,000 acre-feet, but has been reduced to less than 10,000 acre-feet due to the accumulation of silt. This dam does not supply any water for irrigation, but only for the domestic use of the City of Santa Barbara. Reforestation of the Santa Ynez watershed would be of tremendous advantage in preventing a rapid run-off of rainfall, thereby retarding the silt deposits in the Gibraltar Reservoir. The city has contemplated raising the dam primarily to provide for a greater conservation of water, and the additional construction of other dams and reservoirs for flood control and conservation.

Santa Barbara County is divided into three major drainage areas, situated so that nearly all the water which falls in the county is either used or wastes into the sea. About 45 per cent of the county is in National Forest Reserve. Large sums are needed to protect the highly inflammable watershed, which presents a perplexing problem during the summer season. Fires denude the watershed, heavy rainfall on the denuded watershed causes erosion and subsequent damages to reservoirs, land, roads, bridges, etc.

Wells supply most of the water in the county, but the water tables have been rapidly receding in the past 10 years. The problem is to find some method of holding the rainfall during the wet cycles for use during the dry cycles. There is also the danger of encroachment of sea water because of the deep well pumping.

Investigations of Santa Barbara's water problems are being made by the Army Engineers, Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Reclamation. County officials are working with the Federal agencies toward a coordinated plan. If the Federal agencies recommend a series of projects, which might be reasonably estimated at $50,000,000, the county is unlikely to be able to finance such a program from local tax sources. The county has demonstrated its willingness and ability to finance a major share of the investigation expenses and has stated that if the program and cost projected over a period of years, the county will provide as much as $17,000,000, if these funds can be doubled from Federal or State sources.

VENTURA COUNTY PROBLEMS

Ventura County is bounded on the east by Los Angeles County, on the south by the Pacific Ocean, on the west by Santa Barbara County and on the north by Kern County. The county comprises some 1,189,000 acres of which 37 per cent is in farms. The northern half of Ventura County is more or less mountainous; most of this area being in the Los Padres National Forest. The Ventura River runs in a southerly direction near the western border, with the Ojai Valley, in the head of the farming area, formed by this river. The major streams are the Santa Clara, Piru, Fillmore and Santa Paula creeks.

The county has two water conservation districts, the Santa Clara district, which is the larger takes in practically all the farming land and the Oxnard Plain. Most of the Oxnard Plain requires drainage to lower the perched water table and to reduce the salts which have accumulated in the soil. The climatic and soil conditions of the county are ideal for specialty crops such as pimientos, large lima beans, walnuts, lemons and oranges.

Flood control is needed for the Ojai Valley and the City of Ojai, because of bank erosion, gulying and the depositing of sand and silt in the Ojai River. The flood control problem in this area is dependent upon adequate protection of its watersheds and maintaining its vegetative covering.

VENTURA AND SANTA CLARA RIVERS

The Santa Clara has from 1400 to 1600 square miles of watershed, with a large flow, and feeds the major citrus development of the county. There is a very definite flood hazard from the Santa Clara and Ventura rivers, which is too large for the local people to handle. It is estimated that the flood damage done by the Santa Clara River alone caused approximately $3,500,000 in the flood of March 2, 1938. The Ventura water supply intake near Casitas was washed out and bridges and highways were damaged. Live Oak Acres, a small subdivision located on the Ventura River bottom east of Santa Ana Valley, was almost completely wiped out.

During March, 1938 at a preliminary investigation, the local interests requested the United States Engineers to make a survey of the Santa Clara River for comprehensive channel improvement from the ocean to a point near Saugus, and a program of vegetable cover with small debris control works to retard soil erosion and conserve water.

A preliminary survey was made on the Ventura River by the United States Department of Agriculture. Their preliminary report recommended retiring from cultivation certain critical areas of highly eroded lands in Upper Ojai, Ojai and Santa Ana valleys, to permanent vegetable cover. They also recommended soil and water conservation measures such as terracing, strip cropping, crop rotation, contour cultivation, and basin listing.

The United States Engineer's Office also made an investigation of flood control on the Ventura River, but the results have not been released at this writing.

Spreading grounds have been constructed in the Santa Clara Valley Water Conservation District at Piru, Santa Paula and Ojai.

spreading 59,500 acre-feet at Piru and both spreading and percolation at Santa Paula, with a total of 21,272 acre-feet in underground storage. The most important spreading ground is below sea level. However, the committee was told, there is no evidence as yet of a landward invasion of sea water.

The City of Ventura obtains its water supply from the Ventura River. The river has a gravel bed, shallow and easily depleted. This supply is adequate except for a succession of dry years. Then they must turn to the coastal wells. This water is very hard and does not qualify for domestic purposes.

The main problems of this area consist of erosion control, water conservation, flood control and channel control.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

Plans should be worked out by the State for the control of floods and the conservation of water in this area.

NORTH COAST AREA

This area contains 11 per cent of the total area in California, extending from San Francisco Bay north to the Oregon line and eastward to the crest of the Coast Range. It is largely mountainous and contains only 1.9 per cent of the agricultural lands in the State. It is the section of California in which the heaviest rainfall occurs and its watersheds produce 37.6 per cent of the total water resources of the State.

By reason of the over supply of water resources and the lack of irrigable agricultural land, the problems in the North Pacific Coast Basin are largely those of flood control and river regulation.

NOVATO CREEK

The Novato Creek Drainage Area comprises 41 square miles in southern Marin County. The basin is 12 miles long by three and one-half miles wide. The watershed is hilly and mountainous, with a small valley of about eight square miles near Novato, and a low-level section of reclaimed marsh land of approximately five square miles. The most damaging flood on record probably occurred in 1940. From 1938 to 1942 there have been four serious floods. These lands have been very fertile in the past and have developed good crops. However, in the last few years large areas have been wiped out and no crops can grow due to the continued high water in the wintertime, because the free flow of the Novato Creek itself has stopped. It is filled with mud and tules and no longer drains the area properly.

There are between 5,000 and 6,000 acres of good farming lands involved. These lands could be reclaimed through adequate drainage in the lower Novato Creek Basin.

A preliminary examination and survey for flood control of the Novato Creek and its tributaries by the War Department was authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1941. The act also authorized the Department of Agriculture to make a preliminary examination and survey for run-off, water flow retardation and soil erosion prevention in this area.

PETALUMA RIVER WATERSHED

The Petaluma River drains a basin 146 miles square of which the major portion lies in Sonoma County, the remainder in Marin County. The basin is 19 miles long by eight miles wide. It drains into San Pablo Bay.

The towns of Petaluma, Pennugrove, and portions of Cotati, Novato and Grandview are in the watershed. The population of the basin is about 13,500. The region is largely devoted to poultry raising.

The problem in this area is primarily erosion and the difficulty in controlling the silt coming down the river. The floods inundate the railroad and highway, caused chiefly by the tide backing up and the river itself filling with silt. Unless something is done to clean out the river channel, navigation will cease.

The United States Engineers are studying the problem and trying to check the erosion.

In 1938 five washouts interrupted traffic between Ignacio and Black Point on the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. Creation of a suction at the mouth of the river to draw out the debris as it comes down was suggested as a solution to the problem.

Various measures suggested by the Petaluma River Flood Control Committee included a coordinated system of drainage canals, levees and channel clearing works; works to alleviate bank erosion along Petaluma Creek and its major tributaries and works to draw water rapidly off the upper flood plain above Highway 101; improvements for retardation of run-off from the upper watershed to minimize peak run-off.

A preliminary examination and survey for flood control by the War Department, and soil erosion surveys by the Department of Agriculture, to determine whether detailed surveys should be made, were authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1941.

SONOMA CREEK

The Sonoma Creek Drainage Basin is about 18 miles long and eight miles wide, draining a small basin in Sonoma County and emptying into San Francisco Bay. The basin contains 133 square miles.

Sonoma Creek is a valuable asset to recreation, as well as to the agricultural and farming land in the area. The channel has been permitted to grow up into brush, undergrowth, etc., and during the rainy season or a high tide, there is a serious flood problem created which washes out summer homes and highways.

NAPA VALLEY WATERSHED

This watershed extends from Mt. St. Helena, in the Coast Range north of Calistoga, southward to San Francisco Bay. The total area of the drainage basin is 394 square miles, consisting of 58,230 acres of agricultural lands. The valley floor is largely devoted to orchards and vineyards.

It has been determined by the State Division of Water Resources that a dam at either the Conn Creek or Rector Creek sites would be sufficient to supply the State institutions in Napa County.

The Legislature has authorized construction of an earthfill dam on Rector Creek for conservation purposes and provided $1,375,000 for its construction.

Three small reservoirs have been constructed near the headwaters of the Napa River for domestic water supply. The local property owners have done a large amount of levee construction along the river mostly below Napa.

The United States War Department made a report and recommended that partial flood control combined with water conservation for domestic and irrigation purposes by State institutions in Napa Valley be provided by construction by the United States of an 18,000 acre-foot capacity reservoir on Conn Creek of which 11,000 acre feet would be for flood regulation, subject to the conditions that the State of California contribute its share estimated at $700,000 of the first cost of the reservoir and give satisfactory assurance that it assume its share of the cost of maintenance and operation. The report further recommended that, as an alternative, construction by the United States of a reservoir at the Conn Creek site up to a capacity of 37,000 acre feet be undertaken provided that the State of California contributed all funds for the first cost thereof additional to those allocated for flood control.

RUSSIAN RIVER WATERSHED

A preliminary report by the United States Army Engineers on the Russian River flood control problem shows damage in Sonoma County estimated at a total of $1,251,623 caused by the floods of 1937 and 1940.

This area is 80 miles long and 12 to 22 miles wide and includes 1,508 square miles. The river rises in Mendocino County and discharges into the Pacific Ocean at Jenner.

A flood control district has been formed, with the work over a period of three years consisting primarily of channel clearing and bank screening. The work done in this area has mostly been of a temporary nature. Temporary low dams are built in summer for recreational purposes. The total cost of flood protection works, including Jenner Jetty, constructed cooperatively by the State of California and local agencies, is estimated at $308,000.

In 1938-1940 serious washouts interrupted railroad and highway traffic at Asti, Pieta and Hopland. Federal or State aid is requested for flood control, sheet erosion control and channel clearing.

The United States Bureau of Reclamation is studying and working on surveys for dam sites and a probable combination of reservoirs for flood control and irrigation channel clearance. The Bureau asserts the diversion of the Eel River to Potter Valley has been beneficial to the valley, because the Eel diversion average is 170 cubic feet per second, irrigating 10,000 acres, thus making fresh water available for agriculture. The Bureau investigations are being carried out under an agreement with the Department of Agriculture, War Department and Department of Interior.

MENDOCINO COUNTY

Flood control in Mendocino County has been a major problem for many years. Ranches situated along the river bottom have been washed out, the Russian River carrying away the rich alluvial soil. The entire valley south of Feliz Creek is in danger of becoming a river channel unless something is done to clear the riverbed of willow trees and other growth so that the natural flow can keep the channel scoured. Each season valuable agricultural crops such as grapes, hops, pears and prunes are being lost by floods.

The landowners in this area believe that the flood situation has been aggravated by the diversion of the Eel River water into the Russian River. They feel that immediate steps for remedial work should be undertaken at once.

EEL RIVER WATERSHED

The Eel River watershed is approximately 130 miles long with a maximum width of five miles and comprises 3,675 square miles. Twelve reservoir sites have been studied for combined flood control and hydroelectric power development. The preliminary studies have not indicated that these dual purposes are economically feasible at this time.

The United States Engineers have made studies and provided plans for reservoirs for flood control at the time of high water to take the peaks off the high floods on the river and its tributaries.

Section 2 of the Flood Control Act of 1936 as amended, has made provisions for money to be used primarily for channel clearing.

A favorable report on general back protection and channel improvements in the Delta region of the Eel River with the proviso that local interests furnish right-of-ways and give satisfactory assurances that they will operate and maintain the improvements has been presented by the United States Army Engineers. The report was unfavorable to participation by the United States and any other improvements for flood control for which the War Department is responsible on the Eel River and its tributaries.

HUMBOLDT COUNTY

Humboldt County is considered a little empire in itself. Its major problem is flood control, with too much water in the wintertime and not enough in the summer.

The Klamath River, which drains the largest basin in the North Pacific Coastal Area of California, wastes away more than 100 acres a year. In 1930 it was estimated that more than $50,000 in property was being carried away by floods.

Along the Lower Eel River, the Federal Farm Loan Association has condemned approximately 10,000 acres of land on either side of the river and between 6,000 and 7,000 acres of land has been barred. Two hundred forty-three acres have been taken off the county assessment rolls. About $85,000 was spent in 1931 on the Eel River, $3,000 on the Van Duzen River, and $12,000 spent at Pepperwood to control floods.

In the past three years the Eel River has cut into Dyerville and Pepperwood, causing the residents to give up their homes. At Fernbridge, below Laeta, the Federal engineers are wrapping the river out and putting it back in its original channel by making a series of sweeping curves, four and one half miles in length. As it meanders today, it is eight miles, traveling twice the distance it would if it were straight.

At East Lake Slough, the river is cutting in and raising hundreds of acres of land.

The committee was asked that the State budget its appropriations for flood control so that the money can be obtained more readily, and to simplify the methods of handling the emergency funds.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

The committee feels that this area is deserving of more attention by the State and Federal Government in assisting in investigating the projects in the county and in the assisting of the county with State and Federal aid.

BEACH EROSION

The committee has quite carefully inspected the most important beaches from San Diego to Eureka and has listened to the people at various meetings on this subject. These meetings were held in San Diego, Orange, Los Angeles, Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino and Humboldt counties.

Frankly, it was not contemplated at the time of the introduction of the resolution under which the committee worked to undertake a study of beach erosion. However, there was a great demand from many people and many public agencies for such a study. The members simply decided as a committee that a liberal construction of the resolution permitted such action.

Another general observation might be made. During the earlier history of the development of cities and properties along the shoreline and beaches, such developments were more or less of a modest nature. Some of these buildings and modest structures were used to camp in during the vacation period of the summer months and were abandoned during the rest of the year, the loss of which would be slight. The mouths of rivers and streams emptying into the ocean were frequently occupied in the summertime by camps which would move out in the winter.

This picture has materially changed. First; structures of great value located within the boundaries of our great cities have risen up either upon or adjacent to the upper realm of our beaches. Permanent developments have been made almost within the mouth of streams leading into the ocean. The beaches themselves are now used by hundreds of thousands of people throughout the year in some parts of the State for rest, recreation and amusement. Now, the social, recreational and economic value of many of our main beaches extending from the north to the south can scarcely be estimated because of their great and varied uses.

Again, the people seem to have, in times past, looked upon the sand on our beaches as a permanent condition, not mindful of the often expressed thought of shifting sands, and with the result that the banks lying adjacent to the beaches may themselves be frequently torn away by the waves of the ocean. When the sand on the beaches moves away and the shoreline of the ocean is eroded, it results in a destruction of the beaches, a direct result of which causes a loss of millions of dollars of property.

The study of beach erosion brings us to the conclusion that sand on the beaches is not permanently located. The control of the sand on the beaches is a problem which is comparatively new, but which it would seem, is possible of solution by man within certain limitations.

Therefore, it is apparent that the solution of our beach erosion problems is very important and is growing more important as time goes on.

The Shoreline Planning Association was of great help to the committee in its study of these problems in the several cities and counties, and we can not help but mention the good work being done by our former colleague, Mr. Geoffrey F. Morgan, president, as well as, Mr. George P. Larsen, executive secretary of the association. The association is in touch with similar associations existing on the Atlantic shore and has brought to the committee some of the latest thoughts in regard to the solutions of this important problem of beach erosion. This association has presented many pictures as exhibits and considerable data in regard to the matter for the prevention of beach erosion and methods of accomplishing this.

It has been suggested by Mr. A. G. Johnson, civil engineer, City of Los Angeles, who has made a comprehensive study of beach erosion, that the problem resolves itself into five separate divisions. First, the adoption of a State master plan of shoreline development; second, a public acquisition of beaches and coastal parks; third, development of public beaches and coastal parks; fourth, erosion control; and fifth, administration.

It is apparent that a master plan should be worked out so that one development would not interfere with another, or that the benefit of one stretch of beach would not be to the detriment of another stretch of beach line. A master plan would result probably in a better economic distribution of whatever aid may be given to the cities and counties for beach erosion problems.

Public acquisition of beaches and coastal parks is now an adopted policy of the State, limited by the amount of money available. The development of public beaches of course, should be where there is the greatest need for them, such as in or near our great cities or where the greatest number of people can and would use them.

The methods of erosion control, the committee feels, are still not completely standardized, and that there is not a complete unity among engineers as to methods and ways. However, much dependable information was received, sufficient to justify the expenditure of money in many places in the interest of the control of erosion.

The committee believes that beach erosion control should be vested with some state-wide commission or board appointed to control all of the beaches of the California coast, and that no new local work be done until first receiving the approval of this commission or board. Its importance is ever growing, and we should at this time, look to the future. This should be paid for on a fair basis by local interests, the State and the Federal Government.

THE STATE WATER PLAN

The State Water Plan, developed after 10 years of intensive studies of the water resources of California by the State Engineer's office, was submitted to the Legislature of the State of California in Bulletin No. 25, "Report to Legislature of 1931 on State Water Plan."

This report divided the State into seven major hydrographic regions, namely, the North Pacific Coast Basin, Sacramento River Basin, San Joaquin River Basin, Central Pacific Coast Basin, South Pacific Coast Basin and the Great Basin. A comparison of water supply and requirements in the various basins showed a large excess of water over needs in the North Pacific Coast Basin, some excess in the Sacramento River Basin and a deficiency in supply in the other basins.

A complete plan of water control for the entire State was not worked out in detail. As presented to the Legislature in Bulletin No. 25, and subsequently in 11 detailed reports on special sections and features, the State Water Plan provided a solution only for the Sacramento and San Joaquin River Basins which form the Great Central Valley, the San Francisco Bay Basin and the South Coastal Basin. No units were presented for the North Pacific Coast, the Central Pacific Coast and the Great Basin.

Under the State Water Plan basins favored with water in excess of their needs would be furnished a regulated supply in accordance with the requirements of their ultimate development. Waters in excess of these requirements would be conveyed to areas of deficiency and there used to supplement local waters and afford those areas supplies adequate to meet their future ultimate requirements.

The primary physical features of the plan are (1) storage reservoirs, both surface and underground, which would be used for regulating the available run-off, and (2) canals for conveying the supply from points of origin to areas of use. In conjunction with the surface reservoirs, hydroelectric power plans would be utilized in some cases to generate electrical energy incidental to the primary use of the reservoir. In some instances the reservoirs also would be utilized for flood control, improvement of navigation and control of salinity.

In the Central Valley Basin, embracing the stream systems of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, the plan contemplates 24 major storage reservoirs with an aggregate capacity of 17,817,000 acre-feet, and six major conveyance units to distribute the regulated supplies of surplus waters developed in the Sacramento River Basin for use in the San Joaquin River Basin and in the San Francisco Bay Basin.

This system of reservoirs would furnish adequate supplemental water supplies to care for all of the domestic, industrial and municipal uses and for the ultimate irrigation of nearly 10,000,000 acres of irrigable lands in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys as compared to the present irrigated area of some 3,000,000 acres. It would also provide a supplemental supply sufficient to meet the full ultimate water requirements in the San Francisco Bay Basin. Other primary objectives comprise the restoration and maintenance of commercial navigation on the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, the control of floods by storage regulation and the prevention of salt water intrusion from San Francisco Bay into the delta of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers.

An essential feature of the plan is the proposed utilization of underground reservoirs in accordance with the definite program of operation involving charging, storage and subsequent extraction of water by pumping. Underground storage is particularly important in the southern San Joaquin Valley where the potential usable underground capacity aggregates about 20,000,000 acre-feet or more than the capacity of all of the proposed major surface storage reservoirs. In addition to its other purposes, the State Water Plan for the Central Valley Basin provides for the development of hydroelectric power at 10 of the proposed storage dams, at five afterbay dams, and also in connection with the diversion of Trinity River water into the Sacramento River Basin. In all, the plan contemplates an aggregate installation of 1,640,000 kilovolt-amperes in hydroelectric plants with an estimated annual power output of 6,800,000,000 kilowatt-hours.

The plan was formulated with a long-time viewpoint contemplating a progressive development with units constructed as necessity demands. Furthermore, it is designed to coordinate all existing developments of water conservation, regulation and distribution with the least possible interference of existing rights and interests and with existing agencies and their operations.

The proposed reservoirs and the purposes for which they will be operated are as follows:

Shasta Reservoir—Water conservation, flood control, salinity control, navigation, power generation.

Keswick Afterbay Reservoir—River regulation, power generation.

Trinity River Diversion—Water conservation, power generation.

SOUTH PACIFIC COAST BASIN

The plan of obtaining additional water supplies for this basin comprised the conservation of as large a part as possible of the supplies originating within the basin and the importation of water from the Colorado River, Mono Basin and the Owens River. The report also recommended use of the return sewage water from urban areas wasted into the ocean.

The report stated ultimate development of the 2,000,000 acres of net habitable area in the South Pacific Coast Basin would require distributory conduits to San Diego and Orange counties and to the heads of the San Gabriel and San Bernardino basins and possibly into Ventura County if deficiencies in local supplies for ultimate development were made by supplies from the Colorado River Aqueduct.

The report also recommended the regulation of floods in various streams so the waste waters might be sunk into underground basins by the employment of flood control and spreading works. The plan for the Santa Ana River Basin recommended the construction of works on the main stream and on its principal tributaries. In the upper Santa Ana Valley the works consisted of improvement of flood channels, construction of debris dams and spreading works on the main stream and tributaries and utilization of mountain gravel storage. In the lower Santa Ana River Basin the plan included a large reservoir in the lower Santa Ana Canyon, improvement and acquisition of the channel in the Santa Ana River below the reservoir and reservoirs on Santiago Creek.

THE CENTRAL VALLEY PROJECT

When the State Water Plan was presented to the Legislature in 1931 in Bulletin No. 25, the initial units of the plan recommended for immediate construction were those which have subsequently been grouped into one unit called the Central Valley Project.

The 1931 Legislature deferred action upon construction of the project but made provision for further consideration of the legislation and financing. It authorized a joint legislative committee and a new commission—"The California Water Resources Commission"—to be appointed by the Governor to study and report on the State Water Plan and to prepare and submit such proposed legislation, resolutions, and constitutional amendments as might be necessary and advisable to carry into effect a coordinated plan for the conservation, development, and distribution of the water resources of the State. This commission and the joint legislative committee made separate but similar recommendations approving the engineering plans for the Central Valley Project and submitted drafts of a proposed constitutional amendment and a legislative act to provide for the consummation of the project.

The 1933 Session of the Legislature passed the "Central Valley Project Act of 1933" authorizing the project as a State enterprise and providing for its construction and operation, methods of financing, etc. This act was held up by referendum and was voted upon at a state-wide election on December 19, 1933, when it was approved by a majority vote of the people of the entire State. The act became effective on January 13, 1934.

The act created an administrative agency designated as the "Water Project Authority of the State of California" composed of the Director of Public Works as chairman, Attorney General, Director of Finance, State Treasurer and State Controller, with the State Engineer as its executive officer. It directed the Authority to construct the project when funds became available and when in its judgment income and revenue from all sources would be sufficient to meet all carrying charges of the project and authorized and empowered the Authority to issue revenue bonds to provide funds for construction. Estimated cost of the project was $170,000,000.

UNITS AUTHORIZED FOR CONSTRUCTION

The Central Valley Project Act specifically authorized the construction of certain units to be known as the Central Valley Project. These consist of:

(1) "A dam, reservoir and hydroelectric power plant, or plants, with necessary afterbay and regulatory appurtenant works located on the Sacramento River, at or near Kennett, Shasta County, California." (These works are now known as Shasta Dam and power plant and Keswick Dam and power plant.)

(2) "A transmission line having capacity sufficient to transmit all the electric energy which can be generated at said dam, including substations, transformer stations, and other facilities for the distribution of power from Kennett Dam (Shasta Dam) to a central substation near the City of Antioch."

(3) "A conduit or canal, equipped with all necessary pumping plants and other works to convey water, and extending westerly from a diversion point near Knightsen, California, southerly of Suisun Bay to the vicinity of Martinez, California." (Now known as the Contra Costa Canal.)

(4) "A channel or canal, together with all necessary dams, pumping plants, conduits, and other works as shall be determined by the Authority to be necessary to convey a supply of water for irrigation and other beneficial uses, from the lower Sacramento River into the San Joaquin Delta, and also adequate to convey and transport not less than 3,000 cubic feet of water per second from a point on the lower San Joaquin River southerly to the mouth of Fresno Slough." This authorized two units now known as the Delta Cross Channel and the Delta Mendota Canal.

(5) "A dam, reservoir and hydroelectric power plant, or plants, to be located on the San Joaquin River, at or near Friant, Fresno County, California." (This unit is now Friant Dam.)

(6) "A canal or conduit leading from Friant Reservoir northerly to a point on the Chowchilla River." (Madera Canal.)

(7) "A canal or conduit extending from said Friant Reservoir southerly to a point on Kern River near the City of Bakersfield in Kern County." (The Friant Kern Canal.)

(8) "Such other units as may be from time to time added by the Authority to the units herein above specifically enumerated and the Authority shall be and is hereby empowered to add additional units consistent with and which may be constructed, maintained and operated as a part of said Central Valley Project and in furtherance of the single object contemplated by Section 3 of this act."

WHAT THE PROJECT IS DESIGNED TO DO

The Central Valley Project is planned primarily for the purpose of meeting the immediate urgent problems of water shortage and inadequate conservation, control and distribution of the available water supplies of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. It is an initial development of a State Water Plan which was formulated under the direction of the State Engineer as a result of over 10 years of intensive investigations, starting in 1921.

It provides for the coordinated development of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers—the two largest streams in the State—through a system of physical works to conserve, regulate, and distribute the waters of these streams in order to provide urgently needed water supplies for existing agricultural, industrial, and municipal developments in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and upper San Francisco Bay region.

It owes its inception to vital necessity. Its chief function is remedial. Its major objective is the preservation of present developments and production.

Multiple-purpose in its operation, the project will:

1. Improve navigation on the Sacramento River.
2. Increase flood protection along the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers.
3. Provide a supplemental irrigation supply for producing land.
4. Control salinity in the Delta region.
5. Provide water for industrial and domestic use.
6. Produce hydroelectric power.

THE WATER PROJECT AUTHORITY

Through the efforts of the Water Project Authority the initial Central Valley Project was authorized and adopted first by executive order in 1935 and subsequently by congressional authorization in 1937 as a Federal undertaking of the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior. When the project was first authorized as a Federal undertaking the Bureau of Reclamation was entirely dependent upon the engineering studies made by the State Engineer. A cooperative contract was entered into with the State in March, 1936, providing for State approval of the type, location and capacity of the various units of the project. The Authority was also empowered to negotiate contracts for acquisition of water rights in the San Joaquin River, rights of way, studies and negotiations for disposal of water and power, and to conduct general investigations to expedite work of the bureau. A great deal of work was done by the Authority under this and four supplemental contracts. Since termination of the last contract on August 31, 1939, the Authority has carried on its activities in connection with the project independently. These have comprised chiefly independent investigations of the problems of operation, water and power requirements, and methods of disposal to the market area to be served, studies on which the allocation of costs may be based and assistance to the bureau in obtaining adequate appropriations.

STATUS OF CONSTRUCTION WORK AS OF DECEMBER 10, 1942

The United States Bureau of Reclamation broke ground on the project on February 19, 1937. First work on the project proper was initiated with the start of construction of the Contra Costa Canal in October, 1937. Construction of Shasta Dam and power plant started in September, 1938; on Friant Dam in November, 1939, and on Keswick Dam in August, 1941.

A series of War Production Board rulings and lack of priorities have closed down work on all units of the project except Shasta Dam and power plant and Keswick Dam. Construction work on these two is still in progress at this time.

On December 10, 1942 4,631,992 cubic yards of concrete had been poured at Shasta Dam. In dollar value the construction at Shasta Dam and power plant was 77 per cent complete. As of the same date 133,812 cubic yards of concrete had been poured at Keswick Dam, which was 76 per cent complete.

The War Production Board has stopped installation of three of the power units at Shasta Power Plant, but work was proceeding on installation of the remaining two units. A similar order from the War Production Board stopped installation of the three power units planned at Keswick.

Friant Dam is completed with the exception of installation of the spillway and outlet gates not available under War Production Board orders. Only seven miles of the Madera Canal have been constructed. No construction work has been done on the Friant-Kern Canal.

The Contra Costa Canal is in partial operation. A section of approximately six miles, which would bring water to Martinez and adjacent areas, is yet to be built. No construction work has been done on the Delta Cross Channel or the Delta-Mendota Canal.

In line with the report of the Senate Appropriations Committee, of the Seventy-seventh Congress, and subsequent decisions and orders of the War Production Board, construction of the main transmission lines of the project from Shasta to Antioch has been held in abeyance. In the meantime the Bureau of Reclamation has been making surveys for a transmission line of 150,000 kilowatts capacity connecting Shasta to an existing line of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company near Oroville.

COST OF THE PROJECT AND FUNDS MADE AVAILABLE

The cost of the project as estimated by the United States Bureau of Reclamation is $264,000,000. To date appropriations from all sources total $149,969,000, leaving approximately $114,031,000 to be appropriated for completion of the project. Federal funds have been made available as follows:

WATER SUPPLIES AND REQUIREMENTS OF THE CENTRAL VALLEY BASIN

The following findings with respect to the Central Valley Project and the State Water Plan are based on data and information furnished by Edward Hyatt, State Engineer and Chief of the Division of Water Resources; and pertain to subdivisions (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of S. C. R. No. 11, Chapter 130, Statutes 1941.

WATER REQUIREMENTS

The Central Valley Project, as authorized by the Central Valley Project Act of 1933 (Chapter 1042, Statutes of 1933) and as now being constructed by the United States Bureau of Reclamation as a Federal undertaking, has as its chief objective the meeting of the immediate urgent problems of deficient water supply and regulation in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and the adjacent upper San Francisco Bay area. However, the Central Valley Project Act contemplates the construction of other storage and conveyance units, in addition to those specifically designated in that act, in a progressive development to take care of the increasing needs as they arise, in accordance with the plans formulated for the Great Central Valley Basin under the State Water Plan. The ultimate water requirements which will be met by the complete State Water Plan for the Central Valley Basin, therefore, greatly exceed the water requirements that can and will be served by the project which is now being constructed.

ULTIMATE WATER REQUIREMENTS

The ultimate water requirements to be served under the complete State Water Plan for the Central Valley are based upon the irrigation of all of the first class agricultural lands in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and the furnishing of necessary water supplies for the adjacent San Francisco Bay Basin; and, in addition, the control of salinity in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Delta. The gross area of first class agricultural lands on the valley floor of the Sacramento and

San Joaquin valleys and the corresponding net irrigable areas are estimated as follows:

	Gross area in acres	Net irrigable area in acres
Sacramento Valley -----	3,641,000	2,775,000
San Joaquin Valley .....	7,521,000	5,581,000
	11,162,000	8,356,000

The gross annual water requirements for the irrigation of these lands are estimated as follows:

Sacramento Valley .....	9,409,000 acre-feet
San Joaquin Valley .....	12,062,000 acre-feet
Total .....	21,470,000 acre-feet

In addition, the gross requirement (less net of salinity) in the Delta is estimated at 2,390,000 acre-feet annually.

In the adjacent San Francisco Bay Basin it is estimated that the ultimate gross water service area will aggregate 1,000,000 acres with a corresponding net service area of 870,000 acres. Of the gross annual water requirements estimated at 1,745,000 acre-feet it is estimated that about 600,000 acre-feet annually will ultimately be required from sources in the Central Valley Basin.

Summarizing, the total ultimate water requirements to be served by the complete State Water Plan in the Central Valley Basin are estimated at 24,486,000 acre-feet annually.

IMMEDIATE REQUIREMENTS

The immediate water requirements that the Central Valley Project as now being constructed, is designed to serve according to plans formulated by the State, are as follows:

Requirements to be served from Shasta Reservoir in conjunction with Unregulated Water Supplies from Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers	Annual amount in acre-feet	Maximum demand in second test
--	-----------------------------------	--------------------------------------

1. Assumed requirements for lands having rights to Sacramento River water between Redding and Sacramento .....	1,677,000	6,000
2. Flow at Knights Landing to maintain navigation on Sacramento River .....	3,615,000	5,000
3. Consumptive use in Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta .....	1,083,000	3,700
4. Salinity Control in Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta .....	2,380,000	3,300
5. Assumed Requirements for Contra Costa County Area .....	86,000	240
6. Required Average Substitutional Supply for Crop Lands in northern San Joaquin Valley under Exchange Contract .....	822,000	2,450

Requirements to be Served from Friant Reservoir

7. Supplemental Water Supply to Lands in southern San Joaquin Valley in Madera, Fresno, Kings, Tulare and Kern Counties .....	600,000 to 1,500,000	4,500
---	----------------------	-------

The amount of water estimated to be required under Item 1 contemplates taking care of not only the present use of Sacramento River water but also the requirements to take care of all rights, both appropriative and riparian, to Sacramento River water between Redding and Sacramento. Actually the amount of water estimated to be required for this purpose is about 50 per cent in excess of the amount of water that has been diverted and used from the Sacramento River during the past 20 years.

The requirement for maintenance of navigation under Item 2 is a duplication in part of requirements downstream from Knights Landing, for the reason that water available or furnished to meet this requirement at Knights Landing would be available also for use in meeting a part of the requirements downstream, as estimated under Items 3 to 6 inclusive. However, at certain times of the year the navigation requirement may exceed the combined requirements downstream and therefore govern the total requirements to be met. At other times of the year the combined requirements downstream from Knights Landing may exceed the requirement for navigation.

The plans for the Central Valley Project as formulated by the State contemplate that the requirements to be served by the regulated water supplies released from Shasta Reservoir, supplementing the unregulated water supplies available therefor from other sources, would be fully met in all years except abnormally dry years such as 1924 and dry cycles such as occurred in the period 1931 to 1934 inclusive. Under such dry year or dry cycle conditions, it is contemplated that certain of the requirements can not be fully met and that a deficiency of not to exceed 10 per cent in certain months will be allowable for certain of the requirements such as irrigation and navigation. However, the full requirements would be provided even in dry years for industrial and domestic water requirements and for the substitutional supply required under the exchange contract.

A large part of the gross requirements to be served under Items 1 to 6 inclusive, will be furnished by the unregulated flows of the tributaries entering the Sacramento River below Shasta and from the San Joaquin River and its tributaries entering the Delta. Shasta Reservoir will be operated so as to furnish the amount of water required to supplement the unregulated water supplies from these other sources so as to meet all of the assumed immediate requirements.

The necessary releases of water from Shasta Reservoir to provide the supplemental water supply to meet these requirements, based on detailed studies of past records of stream flow covering the period 1919 to 1941, have been estimated to average 2,792,000 acre-feet annually varying from a minimum of 2,120,000 acre-feet in a wet year such as 1938 to a maximum of 3,876,000 acre-feet in the dry year of 1939. These required or mandatory releases constitute the primary requirements to be met by the operation of Shasta Reservoir in accordance with the provisions of both the Central Valley Project Act and the Congressional Act authorizing the construction of the project, in which the primary objectives of the project are set forth as the furnishing of water supplies for improvement of navigation and for irrigation and domestic use.

The immediate water requirements to be served from Friant Reservoir (Item No. 7) represent the estimated amount of water required to supplement the supply available from other local sources to provide a full supply to meet the irrigation requirements of about a million and a quarter acres of irrigated lands in the five counties of Madera, Fresno, Kings, Tulare and Kern in the southern San Joaquin Valley. Studies by the Division of Water Resources, set forth in the reports made to the Legislature on the State Water Plan in 1931, reveal that during the period 1921 to 1929, the average seasonal deficiency in this area amounted to 387,000 acre-feet. It was further found that a minimum seasonal supply of from 500,000 to 600,000 acre-feet should be provided in order to meet this shortage and also provide for the replenishment of the underground water reservoirs which had been seriously depleted. Although the ground water supplies have been replenished in some areas since these studies and reports were made in 1931, the depletion in other areas is still just as bad and in some cases worse. However, it appears possible that the area served from Friant Reservoir may require and utilize as much as 1,500,000 acre feet within a few years after the works have been completed.

WATER SUPPLY

The water supply that will be made available by the Central Valley Project as now being constructed will be obtained through the operation of Shasta Reservoir on the Sacramento River and Friant Reservoir on the San Joaquin River.

WATER SUPPLY FROM SHASTA RESERVOIR

The runoff of the Sacramento River at Shasta Dam, based on measurements of stream flow during the period 1919 to 1941 inclusive, averaged 4,847,000 acre-feet annually, ranging from a minimum of 2,726,000 acre-feet in 1924 to a maximum of 8,756,000 acre-feet in 1941. The stream flow has varied between wide limits from day to day and from month to month in any year and in different years. The rate of flow has varied from a minimum in the late summer and early fall months of dry years of about 2,500 second-feet to a maximum of 182,000 second-feet during the largest flood of record in 1940.

Shasta Reservoir will be operated to regulate the extremely variable stream flow to meet the purposes which the reservoir is designed to serve, including control of floods and the furnishing of regulated water supplies for improvement of navigation on the Sacramento River, for irrigation, industrial and domestic uses, for salinity control in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, and secondarily for the generation of electric energy and other beneficial uses.

Shasta Reservoir will have a gross storage capacity of 4,500,000 acre-feet. Of this total the lower 500,000 acre-feet of space will normally be held as dead storage and the remaining 4,000,000 acre-feet will be utilized for storage regulation.

According to present plans a minimum of 500,000 acre-feet in the upper part of the reservoir will be reserved from December 1st to April 1st for the purpose of controlling winter floods. The amount of space reserved for this purpose may be increased during certain abnormally wet years to as much as 1,300,000 acre-feet so as to effect a greater control of the maximum floods of record or which may be expected. Recent studies by the United States Army Engineers show that with this amount of reservoir space provided for flood control, the peak flows during the maximum flood of record on the Sacramento which occurred in February-March, 1940, would be reduced from 182,000 second-feet to 66,000 second-feet immediately below Shasta Dam, from 292,000 second-feet to 105,000 second-feet at Red Bluff and from 370,000 second-feet to 181,000 second-feet at Chico Landing. These reductions in peak flood flows would very materially reduce future flood damages on the Sacramento River. The operation of Shasta Reservoir in this manner for flood control will not interfere with the furnishing of regulated water supplies to meet the primary requirements of navigation, irrigation, etc.

Studies have been made by the Division of Water Resources of the operation of Shasta Reservoir covering the period 1919 to 1941 inclusive. These studies show that the reservoir can be operated to provide for flood control as previously described and, in addition, to furnish the supplemental water supply required for the primary purposes of improvement of navigation, irrigation, industrial and domestic use, and salinity control, as previously set forth, averaging 2,792,000 acre-feet annually.

Of the total releases for primary purposes, an average of 2,090,000 acre-feet annually or 74.9 per cent of the total would be required to maintain the flow of 5,000 second-feet at Knights Landing for navigation; an average of 673,000 acre-feet annually or 24.1 per cent of the total would be required for irrigation of lands in the Sacramento Valley having rights to Sacramento River water; and an average of 29,000 acre-feet or 1 per cent of the total would be required for the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, Contra Costa area and the substitutional water supply under the exchange contract.

The operation of the reservoir would be governed chiefly by these primary requirements. However, in addition to satisfying these primary requirements, a substantial amount of water would be available for other beneficial purposes. The total amount of water released from the reservoir or passing Shasta Dam, would average 4,723,000 acre-feet, ranging from a minimum of 3,570,000 acre-feet to a maximum of 5,764,000 acre-feet. A part of this total would be nonuseful waste water occurring in certain months of wet years, which could not be conserved or utilized for any purpose.

Except for such nonuseful water, all of the water passing Shasta Dam would be utilized for the generation of hydroelectric power in either Shasta or Keswick power plants, or both. The studies of reservoir operation show that, in addition to providing the water required for primary purposes, 1,632,000 acre-feet of water on the average annually would be available and could be utilized for generation of electric energy.

The total amount of water released from Shasta reservoir that would be utilized for the incidental generation of hydroelectric power in either the Shasta or Keswick power plants or both, including releases for primary purposes, would average 4,424,000 acre-feet annually during the period 1919 to 1941 inclusive. With this amount of water the average annual output of electric energy from the Shasta and Keswick power plants would amount to approximately 1,800,000,000 kilowatt hours during this period.

Of the 4,424,000 acre-feet of water that would be used for the generation of electric energy at the Shasta and Keswick power plants, 2,792,000 acre-feet, or 63.1 per cent, would be used for the previously described primary purposes of the project; 1,116,000 acre-feet, or 25.2 per cent, would be released for power generation at times when abundant water supplies were available; and 516,000 acre-feet, or 11.7 per cent, would be used to generate electric energy necessary to maintain the assumed system requirements in conjunction with the proposed steam-electric capacity.

WATER SUPPLY FROM FRIANT RESERVOIR

The run-off of the San Joaquin River at Friant Dam, based on measurements of stream flow during the period 1900 to 1941 inclusive, averaged 1,695,200 acre-feet annually, ranging from a minimum of 562,800 acre-feet to a maximum of 3,591,000 acre-feet annually. The stream flow varies widely from day to day and from month to month in any year and in different years.

Friant Reservoir will be operated to regulate the extremely variable stream flow for the purposes which the reservoir is designed to serve, including control of floods and the furnishing of supplemental water supplies for irrigation and other purposes in the counties of Madera, Fresno, Kings, Tulare and Kern in the southern San Joaquin Valley. The reservoir will have a gross capacity of 520,000 acre-feet. The lower 130,000 acre-feet will be nonusable dead storage below the outlets of the Madera and Friant-Kern canals. The remaining 390,000 acre-feet will be utilized for storage regulation. According to the present plans the upper 70,000 acre-feet of storage space will be reserved for control of winter floods during the period December 1st to April 1st of each season. It is contemplated that the reservoir will also be operated to control floods from melting snow and that sufficient space for this purpose will be reserved in accordance with the data obtained from snow surveys on the watershed. According to studies made by the United States Army Engineers, the use of the reservoir for flood control in this manner will control flood flows at Friant Dam to a maximum of 9,000 second-feet.

Studies have been made by the Division of Water Resources of the operation of Friant Reservoir covering the period 1909 to 1941 inclusive. These studies show that the reservoir can be operated to provide for flood control as previously described and, in addition, to furnish a regulated water supply for diversion through the Madera and Friant-Kern canals, of 1,562,800 acre-feet on the average annually, ranging from a minimum of 551,100 acre-feet in the season 1930-31 to a maximum of 2,389,400 acre-feet in the wet season 1937-38. However, this entire amount of water supply can not be made available within the irrigation demand. The studies indicate that, on the average, 776,500 acre-feet annually could be furnished as an assured primary supply within the irrigation demand, the amount varying from a minimum of 551,100 acre-feet to a maximum of 800,000 acre-feet annually.

The remaining secondary supply would average 786,300 acre-feet annually, varying from 0 in an exceptionally dry year to about twice the average annual amount in an exceptionally wet year. Large amounts of this secondary supply would be delivered within the monthly irrigation demand and could be used, when available, as a surface irrigation supply. However, a considerable portion of the secondary water, which could not be used directly for irrigation, would be used for replenishment of underground storage and subsequently recovered by pumping from wells and utilized for irrigation in seasons and months of deficient surface supply.

An essential feature of the Central Valley Project is the proposed utilization of underground reservoirs for the storage and subsequent extraction of water supplies. There is available on the easterly slope of the San Joaquin Valley a utilizable underground capacity of approximately 20,000,000 acre-feet. The utilization of this underground reservoir affords the only means of providing the large amount of cyclic storage required for the full utilization of the regulated water supply obtainable from Friant Reservoir, in conjunction with the supplies obtained from local sources. The studies made by Division of Water Resources indicate that underground storage will make available a supplemental supply sufficient to take care of the requirements of the southern San Joaquin Valley, estimated at 600,000 acre-feet annually as a minimum and ranging up to a possible maximum of 1,500,000 acre-feet annually.

SALINITY PROTECTION A FEATURE OF THE CENTRAL VALLEY PROJECT

Submitted at the request of the Board of Directors of the Contra Costa County Water District by Thomas M. Carlson, attorney for the District.

Recent discussions of the Central Valley Project seem to have been preoccupied with the production and disposal of power. Too little has been said about irrigation; but salinity control, which is quite as important and urgent as any other purpose of the project, seems to have been hardly mentioned. Yet the inhabitants of the Delta region, where tidal encroachment had commenced to sour the rich farm lands and threaten and to some extent impair the supplies of fresh water for domestic and industrial use, were pioneers in the movement, and without their help the Central Valley Act of 1933 would not have been enacted. They have lost neither rights nor interest in the project.

Bulletin No. 25, which was a report by the Division of Water Resources submitted by the Director of Public Works to the Legislature of 1931, and is the fundamental study of the Central Valley Project, laid stress on the salinity problem as one of the principal concerns of the proposed coordinated plan for water conservation in the Central Valley. In 1931 two exhaustive reports on that problem were made in Bulletins No. 27 and No. 28, one dealing with variation and control of salinity and the other with the economic aspects of a salt water barrier. Bulletin No. 28 concluded that a barrier was not necessary or economically justified as a unit of the State Water Plan and recommended against a barrier and in favor of controlling salinity by stream flow, supplemented at proper times with fresh water releases from mountain storage.

The Central Valley Project Act of 1933 declared that the Kennett (now Shasta) Dam unit "shall be constructed and used primarily for improvement of navigation on the Sacramento River to Red Bluff, for increasing flood protection in the Sacramento Valley, for salinity control in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, and for storage and stabilization of the water supply of the Sacramento River for irrigation and domestic use, and secondarily for the generation of electric energy and other beneficial uses." Thus far the Central Valley Project has been entirely a Federal reclamation project. All the money expended on it has been Federal money.

The Bureau of Reclamation, in a schedule of projects attached to the order of September 10, 1935, by which the President transferred the original $20,000,000 of Emergency Relief money to the reclamation service for the Central Valley Project, stated that the purpose of the project was to store and conserve flood waters of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers and their tributaries so that "the entire flow" can be used for flood control and other purposes there mentioned, including "the protection of the delta lands at the junction of the two rivers against injury from salt."

A letter of Secretary Ickes to the President, dated December 2, 1935, recommending construction of the Central Valley Project said among other things:

"Control of salinity in the delta of the two rivers near Sacramento is part of the agricultural maintenance phase of the project. Here 400,000 irrigated acres with an annual crop value of $30,000,000 are menaced by salt water from upper San Francisco Bay. Some abandonment has occurred and the whole area is endangered. In this same general area is a large industrial section which is also short of water by reason of increasing salinity. Here 100 industrial plants produce annually $100,000,000 value of manufactured products, and while not facing extinction, are suffering damage and expense from lack of water."

While salinity control is not expressly mentioned as one of the purposes of the project in the Act of Congress (Aug. 26, 1937; 50 Stat. 844-850) reauthorizing the project, the stated purposes of regulating the flow of the two rivers, controlling floods and providing for storage must be deemed to include salinity control in the light of the Secretary's letter to the President, and the obvious beneficial consequences of such storage of water.

The need of salinity control in the delta region of the Sacramento and the San Joaquin rivers is not less than it was in 1930. Indeed it has grown greater with the large increase of population serving war industry in that area. A few recent years of high precipitation and copious run-off in the watershed have saved the situation from becoming acute, but the problem is still unsolved and pressing. It will become critical again when dry years recur or when the run-off is impounded behind Shasta dam unless enough water shall be released into the stream flow at the right times to hold back the tidal pressure in the lower reaches of the river and supply all the demands of consumption along the river below the dams for domestic, agricultural, and industrial uses, in addition to maintaining the navigable depth.

Any plan for the production of incidental power at Shasta and Keswick for the purpose of financially aiding and assisting the project must take into consideration the fact that in determining the times and quantities of water releases precedence must be given to serving the water purposes of the project, including salinity control. The real need in the whole Central Valley is for water, the supply of which is variable and at times and in places insufficient as measured by the need, rather than electric power of which the supply has always been continuous and abundant.

Naturally the emphasis now being laid on the power feature of the project arouses suspicion that the rights and needs of the delta population respecting salinity control may be overlooked or slighted, if not deliberately at least through excess of zeal in one direction on the part of officials thinking in terms of power rather than in terms of water. Hence those concerned about the saline protection feature of the project should be vigilant to make sure that all calculations or contracts for production or disposal of the project's electric energy include adequate reservations of water for all the primary water objectives of the project.

LEGAL PHASES OF THE CENTRAL VALLEY PROJECT

The original plan for the construction of the Central Valley Project provided for the issuance of State bonds and the repayment of these bonds from the sale of power and water. Because of the depression, which began some 13 years ago, all persons interested in the Central Valley Project were very happy to have the Federal Government take over the construction of this project and to supply the money therefor.

Because of various bills that were introduced in the Legislature during recent years which had for their purpose the stimulation of the sale of power and water to cities and districts for the purpose of repayment to the Federal Government of the money advanced by them, it became interesting and a subject of much inquiry as to what the legal status of the Central Valley Project was or as to who is responsible for the repayment of the money and how.

As a result of this confusion and inquiry on the part of the people of the State and particularly members of the Legislature, a questionnaire was addressed to the Legislative Counsel Bureau. The following letter is in reply to said questionnaire:

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, December 28, 1942

Honorable Bradford S. Crittenden, Chairman
Joint Committee on Water Problems
Bank of America Building
Stockton, California

Central Valley Project, No. 5497

Dear Senator Crittenden:

This is in response to a series of questions relating to the Central Valley Project directed to us by the Joint Committee on Water Problems on December 11, 1942. As we explained to the committee at the meeting during which the questions were asked, it is somewhat difficult to discuss any phase or phases of the Central Valley Project without becoming involved in such a discussion of related matters that eventually a treatise on the entire subject, with all its ramifications, would result.

In view of the time limitations imposed upon compliance with this request we will attempt to confine our discussion to the specific questions, with no more elaboration than appears to be necessary to an understanding of the particular matters discussed.

Question No. 1: Assuming that the Central Valley Project is taken over by the Federal Government by the Federal Reclamation Act, what are the powers of the Federal Government over this project?

At the present time the Central Valley Project is being constructed entirely as a Federal project, and, unless the law is extensively changed, will be operated as a Federal project pursuant to Federal law.

Specifically, the project is being constructed by the Bureau of Reclamation of the Department of the Interior of the United States. The authority of the Bureau of Reclamation depends upon certain acts of Congress, which in turn depend for their validity upon the Constitution of the United States.

We believe that there is no serious question that Congress has the constitutional authority to provide, as it has done, for the construction and operation of the project by a Federal agency. The constitutional power of Congress arises from its power to regulate commerce, and more specifically, its power to regulate navigable waters.

The construction of the project as it is now proceeding is based upon an "authorization" of Congress contained in Section 2 of an Act of Congress, approved August 26, 1937 (Public No. 392—75th Congress, Chapter 832—First Session), as amended by an act approved October 17, 1940 (Public No. 868—76th Congress, Chapter 895—Third Session), and which in its present form reads as follows:

"Sec. 2. That the $12,000,000 recommended for expenditure for a part of the Central Valley Project, California, in accordance with the plans set forth in Rivers and Harbors Committee Document Numbered 35, Seventy-third Congress, and adopted and authorized by the provisions of Section 1 of the Act of August 30, 1935 (49 Stat. 1028, at 1038), entitled 'An Act authorizing the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors, and for other purposes,' shall, when appropriated, be available for expenditure in accordance with the said plans by the Secretary of the Interior instead of the Secretary of War: Provided, That the transfer of authority from the Secretary of War to the Secretary of the Interior shall not render the expenditure of this fund reimbursable under the reclamation law: Provided further, That the entire Central Valley Project, California, heretofore authorized and established under the provisions of the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of 1935 (49 Stat. 115) and the First Deficiency Appropriation Act, fiscal year 1936 (49 Stat. 1622), is hereby reauthorized and declared to be for the purposes of improving navigation, regulating the flow of the San Joaquin River and the Sacramento River, controlling flood, providing for storage and for the delivery of the stored waters thereof, for construction under the provisions of the Federal reclamation laws of such distribution systems as the Secretary of the Interior deems necessary in connection with lands for which said stored waters are to be delivered, for the reclamation of arid and semiarid lands and lands of Indian reservations, and other beneficial uses, and for the generation and sale of electric energy as a means of financially aiding and assisting such undertakings and in order to permit the full utilization of the works constructed to accomplish the aforesaid purposes: Provided further, That, except as herein otherwise specifically provided, the provisions of the reclamation law, as amended, shall govern the repayment of expenditures and the construction, operation, and maintenance of the dams, canals, power plants, pumping plants, transmission lines, and incidental works deemed necessary to said entire project, and the Secretary of the Interior may enter into repayment contracts, and other necessary contracts, with State agencies, authorities, associations, persons, and corporations, either public or private, including all agencies with which contracts are authorized under the reclamation law, and may acquire by proceedings in eminent domain, or otherwise, all lands, rights-of-way, water rights, and other property necessary for said purposes: And provided further, That the said dams and reservoirs shall be used, first for river regulation, improvement of navigation, and flood control; second, for irrigation and domestic uses; and, third, for power."

It will be observed that the authorization declares:

"that, except as herein otherwise specifically provided, the provisions of the reclamation law, as amended, shall govern the repayment of expenditures and the construction, operation, and maintenance . . ." (of the project).

The "reclamation law" referred to in the authorization comprises a considerable body of Federal statutory law, which is collected in Chapter 12 of Title 43 of the United States Code. This comprises the Reclamation Act of June 17, 1902, the Reclamation Project Act of 1935, and various other amendatory and supplementary acts relating to this subject.

Some of the provisions of the reclamation law are obviously not applicable to the Central Valley Project. Provisions relating to the authorization of projects are inapplicable because the specific authorization of the Central Valley Project is, of course, controlling. Various provisions of the reclamation law relate to public lands of the United States and apply to the Central Valley Project only to the extent that such public lands are, or may be, involved. Numerous provisions of the Reclamation Project Act of 1939 were directed to "repayment contracts" or obligations connected therewith which were outstanding as of the date of that act (August 4, 1939) and therefore are not applicable to the Central Valley Project. Certain provisions in the reclamation law are directed to specific projects, for example, the Boulder Canyon Project, and do not apply to the Central Valley Project.

The effect of the residue of the reclamation law, which is applicable to the Central Valley Project, can not be summarized adequately and at the same time briefly; but most of the more important features will be touched upon in our answers to the other questions.

If so, how far can the Government go in the collection and from whom can they collect?

The appropriations made by Congress for the construction of the project are declared, in the several acts making the appropriations, to be "reimbursable under the reclamation law." The congressional authorization set out above also refers to the repayment of expenditures. Therefore, it is clear that it is contemplated that the cost of the project will be repaid to the United States as provided in the reclamation law.

Apparently in the case of a multiple purpose project such as the Central Valley Project it is contemplated that certain allocations be made of the cost of construction pursuant to Section 485h, Title 43, U. S. C., which is Section 9 of the Reclamation Project Act of 1939. Subdivision (b) of that section provides for the allocation to flood control or navigation of the part of such cost which the Secretary of the Interior may find to be proper. No provision is made for the reimbursement of this amount.

The balance of the construction cost is then to be allocated as follows:

- (a) To irrigation to be repaid by the water users;
- (b) To power to be returned from net power revenues;
- (c) To municipal water supply and other miscellaneous purposes to be returned to the United States.

In so far as electric power and water for municipal water supply or miscellaneous purposes are concerned, it is apparently contemplated that the secretary may deal direct with individuals, corporations, or any governmental agency that may desire to contract, except that in the sale of electric power or the lease of power privileges preference is to be given to municipalities and other public corporations or agencies and also to cooperative and other nonprofit organizations financed in whole or in part by loans made pursuant to the Rural Electrification Act of 1936.

As to sales of water for irrigation purposes the situation is somewhat different. It is provided in Section 423e, Title 43, U. S. C. (which is based upon the act of May 25, 1926), that no water shall be delivered until a contract or contracts in form approved by the secretary shall have been made with an irrigation district or irrigation districts, organized under State law, providing for payment by the district or districts of the cost of constructing, operating, and maintaining the works.

Similarly, in Section 485h, Title 43, U. S. C. (which is based upon Section 9 of the Reclamation Project Act of 1939) it is provided that no water may be delivered until an "organization satisfactory in form and powers to the secretary" has entered into a repayment contract with the United States.

We believe that the last mentioned provision applies to Central Valley Project by virtue of subdivision (b) of Section 485f, Title 43, U. S. C. (which is based upon Section 7 of the Reclamation Project Act of 1939) and that the contract need not be made with an irrigation district but may be made with any "organization" meeting the requirements.

The term "organization" is defined in Section 485a, Title 43, U. S. C. (which is Section 3 of the Reclamation Project Act of 1939) to mean "any conservancy district, irrigation district, water users association, or other organization, which is organized under State law and which has capacity to enter into contracts with the United States pursuant to the Federal reclamation laws."

Therefore, it appears that the contracts for water for irrigation purposes will not be made direct between the United States and the individuals involved but rather through such an "organization."

The money which is to be collected will be collected pursuant to the contracts and the Federal Government will collect from the other contracting party, which in the case of water for irrigation purposes will probably be a district such as an irrigation, county water, or similar district; but in relation to power and water for municipal water supply or miscellaneous purposes does not have to be a district, but, of course, may be one.

Question No. 3: Can they attach private property, or business activities?

The law does not contemplate the establishment of anything in the nature of an assessment or taxing district in which assessments will be levied and collected by the United States. However, since the United States by virtue of its contract will become a creditor of a district or possibly of an individual, it is possible that private property may be sold to meet the obligations due to the United States under the contract in the same manner as in the case of a contract with a private person. For example, assuming that an irrigation district should make a contract for water for irrigation and should levy an assessment to meet the obligation so incurred. Then, upon the failure of the landowner to pay the assessment his property could be sold for delinquency in such payment.

In connection with the matters as to which a direct contract from the Federal Government to the individual is possible, upon the failure of the obligor to pay the amount due to the United States under the contract an action on the contract could be brought, and we can see no reason why the United States could not attach any property not exempt therefrom in the same manner as any other contracting party may do in such a civil action.

Therefore, even though there is no direct assessment or tax by the Federal Government, it is quite within the realm of possibility that private property might eventually be so sold, and this would not in all cases be restricted to agricultural property but might include urban, or possibly even personal property. The exact nature of such possibilities would be dependent upon the nature of the arrangement, whether a contract with a district or with a private individual, and, also, in the case of a district, to some extent upon the particular provisions of the statute of the State under which the district operated.

Question No. 4: Is there a limit to the extent of taxing persons or property under the act?

Question No. 5: If persons fail to pay assessments, does that then constitute a lien upon their property?

In so far as these questions relate to a possible tax or assessment levied by the Federal Government they are covered above. In so far as a municipality within this State or a district organized under the laws of this State may become involved the limitation on the power of assessment would depend upon the State law under which the particular agency involved was operating. There are several types of districts which might become involved and, in general, it is safe to say that if the particular agency has the power to enter into such a contract with the United States in the first place, it will be found to have the power to collect by assessment or otherwise within its geographical area such money as may be necessary to meet its obligations under the contract.

Whatever taxes or assessments there may be in connection with the operation of the project, all will be levied pursuant to the State law, and it is safe to assume that as to any particular agency that has not, under State law, sufficient power to levy and collect the necessary money, the secretary will not find the requisite suitability of form and powers which is expressly required in the case of sales of water for irrigation purposes, and which probably would be required as a matter of course by the secretary in any event.

As to proceedings upon failure to pay assessments, that matter is also covered by the particular State law relating to the agency involved.

Question No. 6: Can the benefits of the Central Valley Project be limited to provide only for ownership of 160 acres of land?

Question No. 7: Whether the limitation of ownership to 160 acres would apply in regard to the Central Valley Project?

These questions involve the so-called "excess lands" provisions of the reclamation law. Some of these provisions in the law are obviously directed to situations where entries are made on public land of the United States within the project and would apply to the Central Valley Project only in so far as such public land is or may be involved. There is, however, one such provision which we think may apply to the Central Valley Project.

A portion of Section 423e, Title 43, U. S. C., which provides for contracts with irrigation districts as a condition precedent to the delivery of water of a project initiated after May 25, 1926, reads as follows:

"Such contract or contracts with irrigation districts hereinbefore referred to shall further provide that all irrigable land held in private ownership by any one owner in excess of 160 irrigable acres shall be appraised in the manner to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior and the sale price thereof fixed by the secretary on the basis of the actual bona fide value at the date of appraisal without reference to the proposed construction of the irrigation works; and that no such excess lands so held shall receive water from any project or division if the owners thereof shall refuse to execute valid recordable contracts for the sale of such land under terms and conditions satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior and at prices not to exceed those fixed by the Secretary of the Interior; and that until one-half of the construction charges against said lands shall have been fully paid no sale of any such land shall carry the right to receive water unless and until the purchase price involved in such sale is approved by the Secretary of the Interior and that upon proof of fraudulent representation as to the true consideration involved in such sale the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to cancel the water rights attached to the land involved in such fraudulent sales."

This provision is taken from the act of May 25, 1926. The Reclamation Project Act of 1939 provides for somewhat similar contracts with "organizations, satisfactory in form and powers to the Secretary" and does not contain a comparable excess land provision. However Section 16 of the Reclamation Project Act of 1939 provides that "the provisions of previous acts of Congress not inconsistent with the provisions of this act shall remain in full force and effect."

Therefore, by giving full weight to the continuation provision in said Section 16, the excess lands provision in Section 423e, Title 43, U. S. C. quoted above, is legally applicable to all contracts for the delivery of irrigation water to districts or organizations.

Some indirect support may be given to this contention by the fact that by a special act of June 16, 1938, 52 Stats. 764, an express exception was made as to the Colorado-Big Thompson Project:

"The excess land provisions of the Federal reclamation laws shall not be applicable to lands which on June 16, 1938, had an irrigation water supply from sources other than a Federal reclamation project and which will receive a supplemental supply from the Colorado-Big Thompson Project." (Sec. 386, Title 43, U. S. C.)

The fact that such an express exception was made is some indication that Congress believed that without such exception the excess lands provisions would have applied in that instance.

Question No. 8: Will it require Federal or State legislation in order that the Bureau of Reclamation will have power to operate the project or tax for repayment of money advanced?

Question No. 9: Is the act self operating or must we have enabling acts, either State or Federal, to carry out the purposes of the Central Valley Project?

The portion of question 8 relating to a "tax" for repayment of money advanced is covered in the foregoing discussion of the provisions relating to reimbursement. There will be no Federal tax as such upon the lands involved.

As we have indicated above there now exists, within the four corners of the reclamation law provisions under which the project can be operated, and when considered from a strictly legal standpoint there is no absolute necessity of any amendment to any State or Federal statute.

Assuming that no further legislation is enacted by Congress or by the State Legislature we believe that the administrative machinery now set up in the reclamation law is legally sufficient to permit the operation of the project.

When the project is put in operation the Federal Government will apparently contract in relation to water for irrigation purposes with organizations, satisfactory in form and powers to the Secretary."

We have not examined the State laws relating to the various types of water districts, irrigation districts, et cetera, to ascertain if any amendment is needed to the laws under which such districts are formed. Apparently irrigation districts organized under State law have power to enter into such contracts and the same appears to be true of county water districts. Presumably, if any of the various types of districts are lacking in the necessary powers the statutes to provide appropriate amendment will come from persons interested in the particular type of district.

This report would not be complete without some mention of the proposed study of the Central Valley Project initiated by the Bureau of Reclamation and referred to in a press release of December 2, 1942, with which the committee is undoubtedly familiar.

This program poses 24 basic problems which are to be studied and apparently certain State agencies, private organizations, and educational institutions in the State are to be invited to participate.

In so far as departments, boards and other agencies of the State are to participate in these discussions and studies it may be possible that some amendment to the law under which the State agency operates might prove desirable expressly to authorize participation in the program. Until we know what agencies are involved there is no way of telling what possible amendment might be advisable. It is quite possible that all agencies that will become involved have already sufficient power to engage in such activities.

The result of the proposed studies will, of course, be reflected principally in amendments to the Federal law. The project now is entirely Federal in character and any State legislation affecting the project would operate only on the ancillary features such as the amplifying of the powers, or the possible creation of new types, of districts under State law. What will be required or appropriate in the way of State legislation can not at this time be foreseen and will depend to a very large extent upon the result of the proposed studies.

When the proposed studies reach the point where it becomes clear what State departments or other agencies are to be invited to participate in the discussions the Legislature might desire to make sure that the State departments or agencies involved had sufficient statutory authority to proceed in the premises, or to do what otherwise may be possible to facilitate the completion of such studies.

Before closing we wish to express our sincere regret that the lack of time and pressure of other matters in this office have rendered it impossible to make a more complete and detailed report on this subject. In any discussion of a matter as complex and important as the Central Valley Project it is difficult to generalize without leaving room for misleading implications in relation to matters not under discussion.

Under the circumstances, we have attempted to answer the specific questions to the best of our ability without going into any more extensive detail than is necessary. We trust that there is no implication that we consider matters not discussed are unimportant or that all problems relating to the project are solved herein. If we may borrow Mr. Churchill's phrase relating to the progress of the war, the Central Valley Project is now at "the end of the beginning."

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel
By JOSEPH W. PAULUCCI, Deputy

RECOMMENDATIONS

Your committee recommends to the Legislature of the State of California, and to the people of the State, that the conservation of water for the irrigation of the lands of the State and the protection of fertile lands from overflow and erosion due to floods, is basic; that all other economic and social development follow in proportion to the amount of lands we thus furnish with water and protect from overflow.

Your committee recommends that the State adopt for the present and after-war development, as a basic policy of the State, an intensive engineering investigation as rapidly as practicable of all of the many water conservation and flood control projects of the State; that the State, through its proper agencies, strive to coordinate the activities of local interests, the Federal Government and the State Government in the construction of the projects mentioned hereafter.

Your committee recommends that an interim committee again be appointed to study the data already accumulated and filed; to investigate such parts of the State as have not been visited by this committee; to continue the consideration of the water problems of the State, and of the local governmental agencies, public districts, persons and areas within the State to the end that coordinated plans, programs and policies may be formulated in order that a more rapid, feasible and comprehensive development of the State's water resources may be attained.

Your committee urges the immediate construction of all of the units of the Central Valley Project. The committee is of the opinion that this is the outstanding water conservation and flood control project in the State at this time. The complex engineering problems necessary to be solved in order to construct the Delta Cross Channel and the Delta-Mendota Canal should be worked out at once.

The committee makes the above recommendation because it believes the several demands for the construction of Shasta, Friant and Keswick dams are more urgent now than in 1927 when the project was first set up, and that it is obvious that millions of acres of land are available for cultivation as soon as water can be obtained from this project.

Your committee recommends that the State of California, through its proper agencies, cooperate with the Federal Government at once and proceed to determine how much and in what manner money for the construction of and maintenance of Central Valley shall be paid to the Federal Government.

Your committee recommends that the State put forth such effort as is necessary, in any reasonable way necessary, to protect great areas of the Sacramento Valley from overflow, whether caused by the present reclamation system or not, and also keep in mind the protecting of the levees of the great Delta area.

Your committee recommends that the State, through its proper agencies, adopt a plan and assist where necessary in the adoption of a coordinated plan which will solve the beach erosion problem along the entire coastline of California, and particular reference is made to the beaches near metropolitan centers or places that are highly developed. Particular attention should be paid to coordinating efforts being put forth by city and county agencies locally and by the State and Federal Government.

Your committee recommends that the State interest itself and do such things as are necessary to assist the local water conservation and flood control projects in the coastal counties. These projects are varied in their nature and are becoming more and more important. The State should strive to coordinate the efforts of those representing the local projects, the Federal Government and the State Government wherever engineering reports show them to be economically feasible. Hundreds of thousands of acres of farming land and a great wealth of municipal and home properties can be benefited by such a State policy.

OTHER PROJECTS

Your committee recommends that the State cooperate with the Colorado River Board and give them such assistance as is necessary to complete the Colorado River Project, and to protect the State's water rights in the Colorado River.

Your committee recommends that the State, through its proper officials, cooperate with the City of San Diego in such ways as it may be helpful or necessary to furnish water to this extremely rapidly growing metropolitan city. This is urgent as a matter of National defense.

Your committee recommends that the State, through its proper agencies, take an active interest in assisting in finding a solution at the earliest possible date to alleviate the destruction of property at Needles due to the overflow of a considerable portion of this small city from waters of the Colorado River.

The Mojave and Barstow areas represent a project of growing importance with considerable opportunity for future development, which the State should assist in developing from time to time.

Another project with an opportunity for development affecting a great area is that in and around Tulare Lake including the proposed Pine Flat Dam, and the Isabella Dam on the Kern River. The State should bring these projects into its water conservation and flood control picture.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 11

CHAPTER 130

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11—Providing for the appointment of a joint committee to study and to report upon the water problems of the State.

[Filed with Secretary of State June 16, 1941.]

WHEREAS, The Legislature of California has had before it for the past 20 years the problem of the determination of the available water resources of the State; and

WHEREAS, Year by year the question of available hydro-electric power and the demand therefor has rapidly become a paramount problem and is closely correlated with the conservation of water; and

WHEREAS, A legislative committee and a gubernatorial committee worked jointly for more than four years on the water problems of the State, and as a result of the work of these committees and the assistance of the Department of Public Works, the project known as the Central Valley Water Project was determined upon and approved, and the great dams of Shasta Dam and Friant Dam and other works are now being constructed pursuant to the law growing out of such studies; and

WHEREAS, Said dams will be completed in a few years and additional water and power will be made available; and

WHEREAS, Year by year there is a growing need for such water for the irrigation of the hundreds of thousands of acres of land within the Central Valley; and

WHEREAS, There is a growing need for the operation of said dams for the purposes of navigation, flood control and saline control; and

WHEREAS, There is a growing need for the supply of power for the pumping of water for irrigation of said great quantity of valley land, and for the use of power for domestic purposes, such as the demands of people of cities, towns and industry located therein; and

WHEREAS, There is a great demand for the solving of the most feasible way and manner and the soundest economic way of distributing such water and power; and

WHEREAS, There are great demands made upon the members of the Legislature to provide for the distribution of such water and power in several different ways: One, by complete governmental control; two, by as near complete private control as possible; three, by a combination of city, town, district and State control, with private control of distribution; four, by a combination of State and Federal control; and

WHEREAS, These various methods are urged upon us as the result of the near completion of the Central Valley Water Project and a growing demand for water and power, and, therefore, of great interest to the people of the State; and

WHEREAS, There is much confusion in the minds of our people and in the minds of members of the Legislature, which confusion becomes the greater in the absence of a thorough study of present conditions and in the presence of widely divergent views and opinions heralded and expressed in the spirit and atmosphere of political partisanship; and

WHEREAS, Diverse methods of financing are presented to us, including the method of revenue bonds in their several forms; and

WHEREAS, Perhaps the most crucial problem now before the State is that of determining the basic principle which should be adopted in the solving of these issues, including the avoidance of bureaucratic extravagance as well as private monopoly, either of which might result in costly administration of water and power; and

WHEREAS, A long term program should be devised, formulated and adopted, comprehending all future demands for water and power for the agricultural lands of the Great Central Valley of California, and the conservation, development, utilization and regulation of the water resources of the State for the purposes of flood control, river flow control and equaton, domestic use, irrigation, reclamation, power development and other beneficial uses, in furtherance of which it is necessary that the Legislature have available to it information adequate to enable its members to legislate advisedly and appropriately in respect to any and all phases of this subject; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, the Assembly thereof concurring, That a committee, to be known as the Joint Committee on Water Problems, consisting of the Speaker of the Assembly and five members of the Assembly appointed by the Speaker, and the President pro tempore of the Senate and four members of the Senate appointed by the Committee on Rules thereof, is hereby created, to make a thorough study of the water problems of the State, including any and all aspects thereof indicated in the above recitals hereof and to report to the Legislature from time to time, its final report to be submitted to the Legislature within 30 days from the date of convening of the Legislature at its Fifty-fifth Session, together with the recommendations of the committee as to needed legislation upon any phase of this subject, which report, among other things, shall include findings as to

(a) The amount of water that will be available at Kennett or Shasta Dam and at Friant Dam,

(b) The demand for water both now and in the future for the development of all the agricultural lands under the Central Valley Project,

(c) The amount of water required for saline control within the project,

(d) The amount of water from these projects that can be controlled and used to assist flood control, and how it can be utilized in aid of navigation,

(e) As definitely as possible, how much water there will remain that can be used for primary power after fulfilling the requirements of the needs hereinbefore mentioned,

(f) What methods of distribution adopted to fulfill the needs hereinbefore mentioned will be most feasible and economic to the people of the State of California,

(g) What methods of financing of the distribution of power and water may be used or adopted and what method is the more economic and feasible to the people of the State of California, and

(h) How, after the adoption of any of the suggested plans for distribution of water and power, the plan may be continued in operation free from selfishness either of private enterprise or political control;

All of which findings shall be detailed and specific, showing every element and factor upon which the findings and the accompanying recommendations are based; and

The committee in exercising its powers and performing the functions vested in it by this resolution shall have all the powers conferred upon legislative committees by Article 8, Chapter 2, Title 1, Part 3 of the Political Code, and all powers necessary or convenient to accomplish the objects and purposes of this resolution, including but not limited to the following duties and powers:

The committee passed a resolution requesting the War Department of the United States to take immediate action, and further resolving that the committee recommend to the Senators and the members of the House of Representatives from California in the Congress of the United States that they submit to the officials of the War Department a request that the sum of $500,000, or as much thereof as may be necessary be authorized from any fund already available for the purpose of correcting these deplorable conditions.

Another resolution was adopted by the committee resolving that the Senator and the Assemblyman representing the County of San Bernardino in the California Legislature; the Supervisors of the County of San Bernardino; officials of the Metropolitan Water District; officials of the Santa Fe Railroad; the Mayor and City Council of the City of Needles, California; the State Engineer of the State of California; and the officials of the United States Bureau of Reclamation, contact the Senators and the California members of the House of Representatives in the Congress of the United States, and each agency above mentioned, strongly urge and recommend to the members of the Congress of the Ford and Senator Thomas Keating, told of the damage caused by flood waters in San Rafael, Novato and the Greenbrae areas. Assemblyman Richard McCollister asked for funds from State or Federal sources to alleviate the problem of heavy taxation for maintaining flood control works. V. M. Moir, State Chamber of Commerce, outlined various flood control problems in that area. Marshall Wallace, county engineer, spoke on the erosion problems of the Petaluma Watershed and the Russian River and asked for temporary State aid in channel clearing. William Isaac, Engineer, representing the industrial waterfront of Petaluma, and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad, explained the silt problem on the Petaluma River and how it has affected navigation. Otto C. van Seggern, Engineer, United States Army Engineers, told how the Army Engineers are trying to check erosion to make navigation on the Petaluma River possible. Howard Knight, supervisor, Sonoma County, explained how dredging on Sonoma Creek would aid flood control. Osear Larsen spoke on the same subject. Thomas P. O'Keefe, Northwestern Pacific Railroad, suggested construction of retention dams on the streams to cut flood peaks. Lloyd Cullan, supervisor, Sonoma County, spoke on water conservation to supply the City of Santa Rosa and irrigation. George Kennedy spoke on sheet erosion and soil conservation in the Petaluma area. Dr. E. H. Crawford, chairman, Santa Rosa Sportsman's Organizations, asked for aid from the State Engineer's Office and the State Fish and Game Commission in maintaining the Jenner Jetty. Lee Shelford, Cloverdale, talked on flood control. Herbert Waters, editor, Santa Rosa Press Democrat, told of the water problems encountered by the summer resorts in that area. Jim W. Keegan, Department of Agriculture, urged channel clearing. Senator Slater summed up the flood control problem on the Russian River, Novato Creek, Petaluma River and Sonoma Creek.

Senator Crittenden presided. Ed. Haehl, chairman of the Upper Russian River Conservation District and director of the Russian River Flood Control Association, explained the flood control problems on the Russian River and Feliz Creek. Everett Cox spoke on flood control in Mendocino County and stressed the necessity for channel clearing. Norman Buhn, county agricultural commissioner, told of the losses sustained by floods. Lloyd Bittenbender and George Jones spoke on the same subject. Otto van Seggern, United States Army Engineers, stated that a program working out channel clearance on the Russian River is important and that the engineers have made studies on the main river and its tributaries for storage and flood control. Edgar Dutton told how the Russian River meandered, taking with it the rich alluvial soil along the banks. Thomas P. O'Keefe explained the flood situation at Cazadero. S. A. Kerr, United States Bureau of Reclamation, talked on the reclamation work done and being planned by the Bureau and Army Engineers on flood control on the Russian and Eel rivers. Edward Hyatt, State Engineer, suggested the affected areas actively campaign for assistance in their flood control problems. Colonel A. M. Barton, the Reclamation Board, proposed that they request Congressman Lea to use his influence in releasing the Russian River Report made by the Army Engineers in order to obtain Federal aid for flood control. George Anderson, president, Title and Land Company, stated the situation had been aggravated by the diversion of the Eel River water into the Russian River. Hal Bruner, president, Ukiah Chamber of Commerce, told how the river is affecting agriculture by continuously cutting new channels.

Frank Kenny explained how high water interrupted traffic during the winter on State Highway 101 and at times stopped traffic on the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. V. M. Moir stated that about 15,000 acres of grazing land and 15,000 acres of grain land was involved.

The State constructed a jetty costing $7,000 and the county contributed $3,000 to repair it, but the structure was ineffective. The water, sweeping in on a wide curve, has cut out a five-acre ranch on the east side and several ranches are going out on the west side. Already two bridges are submerged in this location. The railroad company has put in four jetties to protect its bank on the opposite side, which are holding. The problem concerns the shifting of the channel, which has caused several wide bends in the river and is cutting away the banks. State Highway No. 101 is involved at several points, also the railroad, and farm properties of high value.

Senator James Quinn presided and spoke on the flood control situation as related to the Eel and Van Duzen rivers in Humboldt County. Assemblyman M. J. Burns spoke on the same subject and asked that the committee make a recommendation that sufficient funds for permanent work be allocated for the river lands in that area. Frank Kelly, county surveyor, described bank erosion and channel clearing work on the Eel, Mad and Van Duzen rivers, and Redwood Creek. J. J. McCloskey, deputy assessor, told how the assessment rolls had been diminished due to loss of lands washed away by the rivers. George Lindley, member, board of supervisors, explained the problems threatening the Eel River Valley. George J. Cole and L. Yocum, members, board of supervisors requested the State to repay money owed to the county. Fred G. Anderson, supervisor, stated the problem in the vicinity of Loleta is the continued spreading of the river. Albert Pedrezzi told of the loss of lands on the banks of the river due to sand bars filling the river bed. Ralph Herriek described the drainage problem caused by silt and willows in the stream. Thomas O'Keefe explained the various problems confronting the railroad in that area. J. Benbow recommended that more dams be built. Otto C. van Seggern, United States Army Engineers, said that the Army Engineers have found the flood control problem in that area is very serious and comparable to any other river in California, and recommended a matching program to secure Federal appropriations for flood control work. Edward Hyatt, State Engineer, stated he believed Humboldt County is entitled to consideration for State and Federal aid on policies applicable to the whole country. A. M. Barton, the Reclamation Board, suggested formation of a district to permit the raising of funds for flood control and reclamation so that when the war is over the projects recommended by the Army Engineers can be carried out.

FLOOD CONTROL POLICY OF THE CALIFORNIA STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

FOREWORD

In March, 1938, the California State Chamber of Commerce recognizing the paramount need for full coordination of flood control activity in this State and the full recognition of sound management principles in carrying out this activity, appointed a State-wide Flood Control Committee charged with the responsibility of drawing up a sound flood control policy upon which the board of directors might base its judgment in dealing with flood control problems that from time to time might be submitted for its consideration and action.

Outstanding leaders from all parts of the State having to do with water—its use and control, were selected for membership on this committee.

Early in its activity and throughout the time required to develop the policy, constant contact was maintained with all State and Federal agencies, dealing with the flood control problem, who willingly acted in the capacity of technical advisors. Their names are given below and their wholehearted cooperation is hereby acknowledged:

S. B. Show, United States Regional Forester

Colonel Warren T. Hannum, United States Army Engineers

Harry E. Reddick, California Regional Conservator of the Soil Conservation Service

Edward Hyatt, State Engineer

E. I. Kotok, Director of the California Forest and Range Experiment Station

John H. Lawrence, Executive Secretary of the Flood Control Committee of the United States Department of Agriculture

Dean C. B. Hutchison, College of Agriculture, University of California

On December 2, 1938, the following declaration of principles was unanimously adopted by the directors of the California State Chamber of Commerce, as its State-wide Flood Control Policy for the coordination of flood control activity in this State.

In adopting this policy the State Chamber assumes no responsibility for sponsoring any specific flood control projects.

FLOOD CONTROL POLICY

1. All flood hazard areas in California should have definite flood control management.
2. Flood hazard areas are construed to include all areas from which floods may originate in such proportions as to threaten the destruction of human life, public and private property, productive lands and crops and those areas where such destruction may occur by reason of floods.
3. Flood control management is construed to mean the handling of a drainage area in such a manner as to control water run-off and the downstream movement of silt, gravel, and debris, giving maximum protection against flood damage while serving the other purposes for which water conservation and control are vitally important in California.

4. The primary services to be performed by flood control in this State, listed in the order of their importance, are:
  - A. Protection of human life.
  - B. Protection of all public and private property.
  - C. The conservation of water and soil.
5. In determining the order in which the parts of a comprehensive state-wide flood control program shall be undertaken, full consideration should be given to the above purposes as outlined.
6. No flood control project should be undertaken unless supported by facts showing that its cost is clearly justified by resulting benefits.
7. Any long time flood control program to be undertaken in this State should include steps looking toward control of floods at their source, and or downstream works where needed for adequate protection.
8. In so far as practicable water conservation, because of its paramount importance to the State, should be recognized as an integral part of each project undertaken.
9. It must be recognized that effective flood control will, in many areas, necessitate cooperation between governmental agencies and cooperative agencies charged with flood control work on the one hand, and owners of sections of stream channels and other lands required to be used in flood control. Every effort should be made to promote such cooperation, but where necessary and economically feasible, natural channels and debris cones now in private ownership, should be placed in public or cooperative ownership and used for flood control and water spreading grounds.

To this end, a complete study of present ownerships and hazards should be undertaken by the proper governmental agencies for the purpose of guiding the nature of projects to be undertaken.
10. Intensive protection and/or rehabilitation of ground cover on drainages contributing water run-off to flood hazard areas should be effected wherever possible.
11. Where investigations have shown, or shall show that flood control works are, or will be necessary in any area, all necessary steps should be taken to insure that sites for such works shall not be incorporated into any other use or purpose, but shall remain available for use when and as needed for flood control.
12. Where it is found that public interest requires a form of management for flood control inconsistent with the free and unhampered use of privately owned lands existing on watersheds of high flood hazard, such privately owned lands should be acquired for public or cooperative ownership and management.

13. Any invasion of existing water rights or other property rights necessary in carrying forward needed flood control projects should in all cases be promptly and equitably adjusted in such a manner as to protect and compensate for all existing valid rights.
14. Flood control projects should be constructed for flood control benefits as a first consideration, but in so far as is practicable and not in conflict therewith, utilization of flood control projects for development of hydroelectric power, irrigation, water conservation, protection of wild life, and prevention of soil erosion should be considered.
15. Complete coordination of the flood control efforts of all official agencies dealing with projects in this State is essential.
16. In order to prevent piece-meal consideration of the flood control needs of any flood hazard areas the flood hazard area under consideration should be treated as a unit.
17. The Federal Government should, among other things, bear the cost of construction and maintenance of flood control projects in so far as they apply to protection of life, or property, or navigation and the cost of adequate bank protection.
18. Flood control projects should be constructed and operated at all times with full recognition of and in accordance with the laws of the State governing water rights.

W. E. STEWART, Secretary
State-wide Flood Control Committee

THE SACRAMENTO RIVER FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT

Submitted by COLONEL A. M. BARKER, Chief Engineer and General Manager of the Reclamation Board

The Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage District is a super drainage district created by Act of the Legislature (Chap. 170, 1913). It contains approximately 1,515,300 acres, and lies within the borders of fourteen counties (Glenn, Butte, Colusa, Sutter, Yuba, Sacramento, Yolo, Solano, Contra Costa, San Joaquin, Stanislaus, Merced, Madera and Fresno), extending from Chico Landing on the Sacramento River, on the north, to opposite Kerman, Fresno County, on the south.

The Reclamation Board, which is the governing agency of the district, was created at an extra session of the Legislature in 1911, and as it at present exists, is organized pursuant to an amendment to the original act (Chap. 170, Statutes of 1913). The board consists of seven members, and is selected by each Governor to represent different parts of the area under its jurisdiction. This board is charged with carrying out the provisions of the Reclamation Board Act, the Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage District Refunding Act, and the Reclamation Board Bond Act. It is the State body, designated by law, which collaborates with the Federal Government in the planning and execution of flood control plans for the Sacramento and San Joaquin River Valleys.

The California Debris Commission, the Federal agency cooperating with the Reclamation Board, consists of three officers of the Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., appointed by the President to control navigation, debris, and to deal with flood problems of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers.

A former agreement between the State and the Federal Government provided that one-third of the estimated cost was to be paid by assessments on the landowners benefited, one-third by the State and one-third by the United States. Later the financing of the project was altered when the Federal Government assumed all construction costs and confined local or State cooperation to providing rights of way, incidental construction items, borrow material and flowage easements.

Construction expenditures to date on the Sacramento River Flood Control Project are distributed approximately as follows:

Landowners .....	$30,000,000—41 per cent
State of California .....	19,300,000—26 per cent
Federal Government .....	27,700,000—33 per cent
	$77,000,000

The Sacramento Flood Control Project is the foundation upon which the control of floods affecting about one million acres in the floor of the Sacramento Valley is dependent. The project is designed to protect properties valued at over one billion dollars from flood waters. Completion of this project to protect the property and lives of the 300,000 inhabitants of the Great Valley of California from flood danger has been a matter of urgent concern since this area was settled first. The loss by floods in the Sacramento Valley prior to 1937 is estimated at $15,000,000. Subsequent estimated losses aggregate approximately $19,700,000, making a total of $34,700,000.

The purposes of the project are to restore navigation on the Sacramento River and its tributaries, which was practically ruined by debris from hydraulic gold mining in the early days; and control the floods of the Sacramento River system.

To accomplish these purposes, extensive studies were made by the Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., and the engineers of the Reclamation Board. These studies resulted in the Grant Report, which was adopted by both the Federal Government and the State of California as a project. A contract for carrying out the project construction was entered into by the United States and the State of California.

Briefly, the adopted plan contemplates that the river bed will be required to carry as much water as possible. This assists in scouring out the accumulation of mining debris and provides a maximum of water for navigation purposes. To this end river levees are raised to a standard grade; dredging of the river waterway at points is undertaken; and five weirs constructed to retain the water in the river channel as long as practical. When the waters reach a height that the river bed can no longer carry them, these excess waters are diverted over the weirs into by-passes, which are auxiliary river channels for use in emergencies.

Thus, the Butte, Colusa, Sutter, Tisdale, Yolo and Sacramento By-passes were created. Based on the floods of 1907, it is contemplated the flood control works will dispose of 600,000 second feet, of which 500,000 would be carried in the by-passes and 100,000 in the Sacramento River proper.

An outlet had then to be provided, to care adequately for the vast volume of water brought down by these by-passes. The Sacramento River below Rio Vista was as the neck of a bottle, and this bottle neck had to be removed. Accordingly, the plan provided that the Sacramento River at that point should be enlarged and widened.

Some idea of the magnitude of this river enlargement may be obtained when it is pointed out that the total amount of earth excavated for the Panama Canal only exceeds this excavation by 25 per cent. One hundred and seventy million cubic yards of material was moved by suction dredgers at a cost of $12,000,000.

The project in brief, involves the construction of 122 miles of by-pass levees; 669 miles of river levees; the acquisition of over 200,000 acres of flowage rights and all levee and construction rights of way; the clearing of some 15,000 acres of timber and brush from by-pass and river channel and the construction of five weirs, together with numerous other smaller construction items.

The Sacramento River Flood Control Project is approximately 86 per cent completed structurally, but in view of the knowledge gained during the floods of record, it is apparent that areas such as Butte Basin should be afforded protection comparable to other parts of the Sacramento Valley. The Army Engineers are at present engaged in making an exhaustive flood control study and report of the entire Central Valley. Their work includes a resurvey of the Sacramento River Flood Control Project for purposes of determining what changes and revisions are necessary in existing plans.

A study in which the solution to the seepage problems of the Sacramento Valley is being sought is now under way by both the United States Army Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation, United States Department of the Interior.

With reference to the San Joaquin Valley: Plans for flood control of the San Joaquin River and its tributaries have been studied from time to time by the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, and the engineers of The Reclamation Board. The Army Engineers in their present comprehensive study of the entire Central Valley will develop remedial flood control measures for this area. Under existing State law (Section 12 of The Reclamation Board Act, as amended by Chapter 883, Statutes of 1939), The Reclamation Board is in a position to sponsor a coordinated and cooperative flood control program for this area when the Army's studies are completed.

The War Department has advised the Board that it plans to provide funds for the next fiscal year for strengthening, raising and widening approximately 100 miles of levee at various points throughout the project.

The State of California and particularly the Sacramento Valley occupies a most critical geographical position within and adjacent to a designated combat zone, in connection with the total war now being waged by the United States and its Allies against the Axis powers. Contained within the area protected by the levees of the Sacramento River Flood Control Project are numerous important military establishments, strategic communication and transportation facilities, war and other industries contributing directly or indirectly to National Defense.

The War Department considers the prosecution of this flood control program vital to the winning of the war, and does not anticipate any major curtailment of the construction program outlined in conjunction with The Reclamation Board for the next two years.

The yardstick of the past is the only method of anticipating what may occur in the future so far as floods are concerned. It is evident that serious consequence due to the destruction of lines of communication, interruption of railway and highway facilities and the production of farm crops that are of paramount importance to the war effort may again occur if vigorous steps are not taken for the continuous construction and maintenance of protective levees and other flood control works already completed.

The normal rates of contribution of each member, who is also a member of the California Highway Patrol, shall be based on his age at July 1, 1935, or at his later entrance into the retirement system, and his age when he entered Highway Patrol service, both ages being taken to the next lower completed quarter year. The age at entrance into the Highway Patrol service, if said entrance was prior to July 1, 1935, shall be determined by deducting the total of such service credited to the member at July 1, 1935, from his age at that date. The normal rates of contribution of each such member who entered Highway Patrol service at or below age 45 shall be such as, on the average, for such member, if his service on full salary be uninterrupted and when accumulated with regular interest, added to the equal accumulated contributions of the State and applied according to the tables adopted by the board will provide a retirement allowance upon retirement for service at the age of 60 years, or upon completion of 20 years of Highway Patrol service at an age higher than 60 years, equal to one-half of his final compensation, less that part of the retirement allowance set forth in Section 83a, which is to be provided by contributions of the State on account of Highway Patrol service rendered prior to January 1, 1932, if such member affirmatively exercises the option in Section 65d; otherwise, less a pension calculated in the same manner as the pension in Section 83a, but on the basis of Highway Patrol service rendered by him prior to July 1, 1935. If such member entered Highway Patrol service at an age greater than 45 years, then his normal rate of contribution shall be such as will provide an average annuity at age 65 equal to one-eighth of his final compensation, according to tables adopted by the board, for each year of Highway Patrol service after July 1, 1935, or after entrance into the retirement system if he affirmatively exercises the option in Section 65d. The normal rate of contribution of any member who received credit for service rendered as a member of the Highway Patrol of a county in California, shall be adjusted in such manner as may be necessary to comply with this section.

SEC. 15.2. Section 65b of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 65b. If a member ceases to be a member of the California Highway Patrol or a city fireman or city policeman and continues to be a member of the retirement system in a different employment status, or if the reverse be true, then the accumulated contributions standing to his credit or redeposited by him shall remain in his individual account, and the rate of his contribution thereafter shall be the normal rate provided herein for persons in his new group or class of employment and at his then attained age. [when he first became a member, subject to Section 76 hereof in the event he did not redeposit accumulated contributions withdrawn from the system.]

SEC. 15.3. Section 65e of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 65e. The normal rates of contribution of each member who is also a city fireman or city policeman shall be based on his age at his entrance into the retirement system and his age when he entered fire or police service, both ages being taken to the next lower completed quarter year. The age at entrance into fire or police service shall be determined by deducting the total of such service from his age at his entrance into the retirement system. The normal rates of contribution of each member who is a city policeman or city fireman and who entered the fire or police service of the city, or became a member of the retirement system, if no credit for prior service is granted, at or below age 45 shall be such as, on the average for such member, if his service on full salary be uninterrupted and when accumulated with regular interest, added to the annual accumulated contributions of the contracting city and applied according to the tables adopted by the board will provide a retirement allowance upon retirement for service under Section 79, at the minimum age at which said retirement is permitted, or upon completion of 20 years of service at an age higher than said minimum age, equal to one-half of his final compensation. If such member entered the fire or police service of the city, or became a member of the retirement system, if no credit for prior service is granted, at an age greater than 45 years, then his normal rate of contribution shall be such as will provide an average annuity at age 65 equal to one-eighth of his final compensation, according to tables adopted by the board, for each year of fire or police service as a member.

SEC. 15.4. Section 79 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 79. Upon attaining the age of 60 or more years and completing 20 years of continuous State service credited under this act, among which must be included one year of service after becoming a member of the retirement system, any member, who is not a member of the California Highway Patrol, city fireman or city policeman, shall be retired upon his written application to the board.

A member who is also a member of the California Highway Patrol and who has completed 20 years of continuous State [Highway Patrol] service credited under this act and attained the age of 50 or more years shall be retired upon his written application to the board.

A city fireman or city policeman who has completed at least 20 years of continuous State service credited under this act, and who has attained at least the minimum optional retirement age, which shall be not less than 55 years or more than 60 years, specified in the contract provided by Section 38c in lieu of 60 years required of other members, shall be retired upon his written application to the board. Any member, other than members employed by a contracting city and members of the California Highway Patrol, who is separated from State service because of a detachment or such service or a change in the manner of performing such service, but not because of resignation or dismissal under charges, and who has attained the age of 50 years and is credited with 15 or more years of State service, shall be retired upon his written application to the board, provided, said board determines said separation to be of an extended and uncertain duration, and not the separation normally experienced by members in positions known at the time of employment to be of limited duration or employed on a seasonal or intermittent basis.

SEC. 15.5. Section 83 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 83. An additional pension, purchased by the contributions of the State, for members other than [members of the California Highway Patrol,] persons who are employees of the university at the time of becoming members, and members employed by a contracting city. Such additional pension shall be equal to one-sixtieth of the average annual compensation earnable by him during the three years ending December 31, 1934, multiplied by the number of years of prior service other than Highway Patrol service credited to him, except that if a member retires before attaining the age of 65 years, the additional pension shall be reduced to that amount which the value of the pension computed as provided in this paragraph as deferred to age 65, will purchase at the actual age of retirement."

April 26, 1943

Hon. Bertrand W. Gearhart
House of Representatives

DEAR MR. GEARHART: This will acknowledge the receipt on April 23d of a copy of your letter of April 12th to the Hon. J. A. Beck, Secretary of the Senate, Sacramento, California, and the letter from Mr. Beck and Senate Resolution No. 94, mentioned therein. The latter relates to the danger of the introduction of foot and mouth disease through the importation of cattle or meat from countries where that disease exists and mentions an inspection of the situation in Argentina at that respect made by Dr. Plummer of this Bureau a little more than a year ago.

The countries of the world in which foot and mouth disease or swine pest has been determined to exist, in harmony with the provisions of Section 306(a) of the Tariff Act, are listed in our B. A. I. Order 373, copies herewith, and the statute mentioned will be found in the appendix to that order. The importation from any of those countries, among which Argentina is included, of domestic ruminants or swine, or fresh, chilled or frozen meat derived from such animals, is prohibited. So far as we are aware there has been no proposal to import cattle or other live animals specified in the statute, from any infected country, but questions concerning the importation of fresh meat from Argentina have arisen from time to time.

It is undisputed that foot and mouth disease is enzootic in the central and northern regions of Argentina, which include all of the principal cattle producing areas. Argentine authorities claim only that the far southern territories, where only sheep and lambs are produced and slaughtered for export, are free from the disease. It is well established also that fresh, chilled or frozen carcasses of ruminants or swine from regions where the disease is prevalent are dangerous as possible carriers of the infection, as it has been determined that the virus can and does survive for long periods in certain tissues of such carcasses. This is not true of other than fresh, chilled or frozen meats and, as you probably know, large quantities of canned and cured meats were imported from Argentina and other South American countries before the war.

In respect to the investigation a year ago, which related primarily to conditions on the Island of Tierra del Fuego and the nearby mainland of Argentina and Chile, I have to state that decision as to the availability of the information gained rests with the secretary. It is understood that a representative of his office recently discussed this matter with members of the California delegation, in relation to Resolution No. 94 of the State Senate.

The enclosures with your communication are returned herewith as requested.

Sincerely yours,

A. W. MILLER, Acting Chief of Bureau

Senator McBride Presiding

At 6.15 p.m., Senator McBride of the Thirty-third District, presiding.

(b) No gratuity or any part thereof received by such employee shall be included as a part of the wages of the employee, and no gratuity or any part thereof received by any such employee who is a minor or a woman shall relieve any such employer of the necessity for paying the minimum wage fixed for such employee by the Industrial Welfare Commission under Chapter 1 of Part 4 of this code.

(c) The Legislature also expressly declares that it is the purpose of this section to prevent the diversion of the gratuity from the person for whom it is intended, thus destroying the incentive for efficient, faithful and courteous service warranting the giving of the gratuity.

The Legislature hereby declares that any contract between employer and employee entered by this section permitting an employee to share in gratuities given to the employee violates the spirit, intention and terms of the obligation between the employee and the donor. Such a contract between employer and employee is in its nature unconscionable and fraudulent inasmuch as the employer is fully compensated for whatever he furnishes by the regular charges fixed, and the employer should not be permitted to take in whole or in part that which the donor intended for another.

"SECTION 1. In addition to any other sum appropriated, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the State treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000), or as much thereof as may be necessary, to the California State War Council, to be used by the War Council during the Ninety-fifth and Ninety-sixth Fiscal Years for supplemental support of child care centers created pursuant to Chapter 3 of Part 3 of Division 6 of the School Code and Chapter 11 of Division 9 of the Education Code.

SEC. 2. Of the sum hereby appropriated twenty-two thousand two hundred dollars ($22,200) shall be expended by the State War Council only for the purpose of making allocations to the Director of Education for the purpose of supervising such child care centers.

SEC. 3. The remainder of the sum hereby appropriated shall be expended by the California State War Council only for the purpose of making allocations to local districts which have established such child care centers, for the purpose of supplementing support from the Federal Government, parents of children cared for, and industry where those sources are insufficient to meet the costs of operating the child care centers.

SEC. 4. In making this appropriation, the Legislature makes the following statement of its intent:

(a) That child care centers are intended as emergency institutions, to be conducted for the period of the war only, and are to be discontinued completely within six months after the cessation of hostilities.

(b) That the Legislature views the problem of caring for children whose parents are employed in essential war industries as essentially a part of the National defense effort, and that the obligation of supporting the child care centers is primarily a Federal responsibility.

(c) That since the parents of the children are employed in industry, they are able to contribute to the cost of their care, and are primarily liable for furnishing the necessities of life for the children.

(d) That participation by the State or locality in payment of the costs of the program should be of supplementary or emergency nature only, until the Federal Government, parents, and industry can maintain its full support.

(e) That limitation of the operation to care for children of day workers only should be encouraged, and industry, parents, and school districts should be encouraged to arrange for employment of mothers in daytime only.

(f) That employment of mothers of more than two children of very tender years appears inadvisable except in extreme cases.

(g) That the Legislature recognizes that the cost of maintenance of the child care centers should not be imposed against local real property, but must be paid for upon a broader tax basis.

SEC. 5. Before allocating the funds appropriated the California State War Council shall make every effort to arrange for support of the child care centers by the Federal Government, parents of the children, and industry. If sufficient funds for the purpose can not be secured from these sources, the War Council may allocate to the respective child care centers such sums as it deems necessary for supplemental use only.

SEC. 6. Before making any allocation to any district, the California State War Council shall determine that the district is operating efficiently. In making such allocations the War Council shall not recognize costs based on elaborate organization or standards that are excessively high or extravagant.

SEC. 7. The California State War Council shall make a survey of the respective child care centers petitioning for allocation of funds, and after determining the necessity, costs, and support derived from the Federal Government, parents, and industry, shall allocate such sums to the respective child care centers as it deems necessary to insure their efficient operation.

SEC. 8. This act shall remain in effect until the one hundred eighty-first day after the cessation of hostilities in all wars in which the United States is now engaged, and the powers hereby conferred upon the California State War Council shall thereupon terminate."

WHEREAS, The said Pacific States Savings and Loan Company had, at the date of the seizure of its assets by the commissioner, many thousands of investment certificate holders and depositors, many of them elderly people and widows, as well as guardians, trustees and other fiduciaries, and the great majority of said depositors and investment certificate holders were and now are residents of the State of California; and

WHEREAS, Constant and long continued litigation has resulted from the seizure as aforesaid, with attendant great expense for fees of attorneys, accountants, and other specialists, as well as court costs and expenses, to the great loss and disadvantage of the investment certificate holders of Pacific States Savings and Loan Company; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature at its last two regular sessions has had before it numerous proposed laws arising out of the problems presented by the seizure of said Pacific States Savings and Loan Company and the administration of its assets and affairs; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature is likely to be called upon at its next regular session to pass legislation amendatory of the present Building and Loan Association Act and in aid of the orderly administration of the affairs of the said Pacific States Savings and Loan Company by the commissioner; and

WHEREAS, It is necessary that the Legislature be fully and independently advised upon all of the details and facts surrounding the administration of the affairs of said Pacific States Savings and Loan Company and to be fully aware of the problems presented therein in order to prepare and advise the Legislature upon such legislation as may be necessary in the interests of the certificate holders and depositors; now, therefore, be it
